Freeze Rents At Last Jan. 1 Level, House To Be Asked

District Committee Also Will Propose Commissioners Pick Law's Administrator

The House soon will receive the unanimous recommendation of its District Committee that residential rents in Washington be frozen at their level of last January 1.

Moving swiftly to hasten early legislative action, the District Committee yesterday agreed that the Commissioners and not the President should appoint a rent administrator for the District.

Thus is laid down a policy of "home rule for the Nation's Capital which other communities throughout the country seeking emergency rent control may well model after, committee members pointed out.

Other Points Settled

Other points of the rent control bill settled yesterday in committee were:

Reports on the conduct of rental establishments will not be required of the rent administrator, although he will have the power to demand adequate information of both landlord and tenant in the settling of disputes.

Hotels, rooming houses and residential establishments furnishing living quarters to two or more persons will require licenses.

December 31, 1945, is set as the termination date of the emergency rent control administration, although it might be terminated sooner or prolonged by Congressional action, depending on the state of national emergency.

The ceiling, placing rents at the January 1 rate, was reached by compromise. Karl Borders, of the Office of Price Administration, and E. Barrett Prettyman, representing local real estate interests, recommended before the committee that the rates be pegged at those of last March 1.

The date represented a compromise between September, 1940, and September, 1941, which their respective groups had urged.

Lease Dates a Factor

Representative Sam M. Russell (Democrat), of Texas, proposed October 1, 1940, as the freezing date after Commissioner Guy Mason, who attended the meeting, stated that most new leases in the District were

Gen. Reckord Captured in Mock War in Carolinas

Jefferson, S. C., Oct. 20.—Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding the Twenty-ninth Infantry Division, was captured today at noon by a motor patrol believed to be from the Thirteenth (Old Hickory) Division. With him were his aide, Lieut. William G. Gold, jr., of Philadelphia, and an enlisted chauffeur.

Command of the division was turned over to Brig. Gen. Amos W. W. Woodcock, commanding the Fifty-eighth Infantry Brigade, until Gen. Reckord can be exchanged.

Maj. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall, commanding the Second Army Corps, took the capture of his most aggressive division commander philosophically.

"We have just captured a whole truck load of First Corps bedding rolls," he said. "Maybe we can make a trade. If they won't give Reckord back, they can sleep cold tonight."

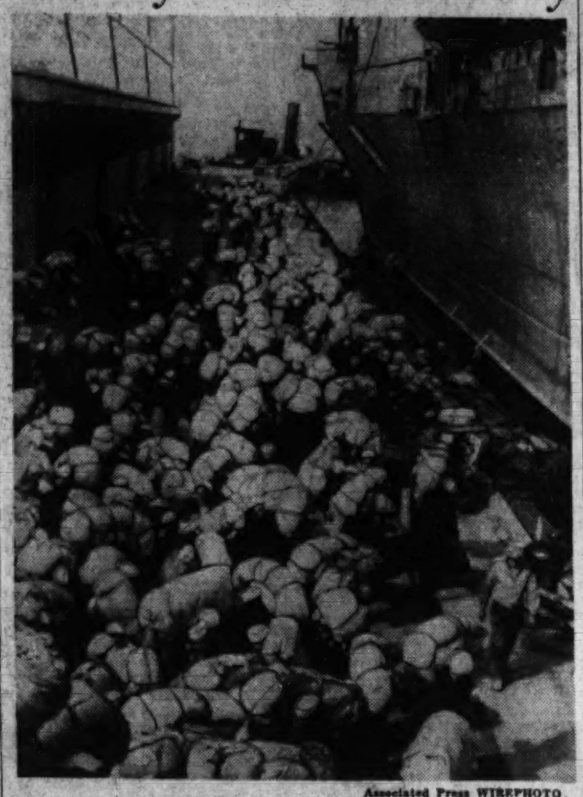
11 on Kearny Died for Liberty, Knox Says at Hornet Ceremony



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Sailors board the aircraft carrier Hornet at Norfolk

By the Associated Press

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 20.—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, speaking today at commissioning ceremonies for the aircraft carrier Hornet, said every man who lost his life on the U. S. destroyer Kearny lost it as a volunteer in an "ultimate sacrifice" so that men everywhere may "keep the hope of human freedom."

The Secretary paused in an extemporaneous address to pay tribute to the 11 men reported missing in the torpedoing of the Kearny and said the future peace of the world depended upon a combination of sea and air power.

Knox said the ceremonies for the new 31-million-dollar warship were held "under the shadow of the first news" of casualties at sea and that 11 men "have given up their lives to the cause of human liberty." It has been sacrifices like these, he added, that have made "this country of ours possible."

The ship, he added, is "a part of our guarantee that wherever we go on the seven seas our Nation's power will always be exercised in the behalf of human liberty and free men."

Jury May Get Confession of Catoe Today

Accused Sex Slayer Attempts to Hang Himself in Cell

Justice James W. Morris indicated late yesterday that he would turn over to the jury today for its consideration the confession of Catoe to the rape and murder of Mrs. Rose Abramowitz last March.

This turn in the case came two hours after the 35-year-old Negro defendant had reportedly tried to hang himself in his cell at District Court. Catoe was said to have undressed himself in the cell during the lunch recess, and then attached his belt to a sink faucet, apparently planning to put the other end of the belt around his neck.

A bailiff removed the belt, and Deputy Coroners Richard Rosenberg and Christopher Murphy were rushed to the scene, where Catoe told them: "I don't know how I got undressed and what happened. I had one of my spells and everything went black."

However, the physicians reported to Justice Morris that Catoe was unharmed and that there was nothing wrong with him. The defendent was brought back to the courtroom, adjusting his necktie as he entered.

Aid Bill Rider For D. C. Police Believed Dead

Senate Objection To Method Reported; Previous Bill Held Up

The Senate Appropriations subcommitte last night was believed to have stricken out of the $5,985,000,000 lend-lease bill the rider of Representative John J. Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri, which would have provided funds for 100 additional District policemen.

Coincidentally, while the subcommittee was considering the rider, Inspector Arthur E. Miller, head of the accident prevention bureau, pointed to the District's rising traffic fatality toll and reiterated a request for more traffic police.

Several sources on Capitol Hill indicated last night that there was probably not so much objection to the 100 additional policemen which Superintendent of Police Edward Kelley has requested as there was in the method the House used in sending the same measure to the Senate again.

Some definite announcement on the fate of the rider is expected today when the full committee takes up the bill.

The House voted $136,570 for the additional policemen as a rider to

Long-Awaited Reform

Bill to Curb 'Baby Brokers' In District Sent to Congress

The Commissioners late yesterday struck a long-awaited blow against so-called "baby broker" activities here by sending to Congress a bill which would license and provide rigid standards for all child placement agencies.

Aimed at ridding the city of commercialized adoption rackets, the measure establishes a $300 fine, a penalty of 90 days in jail or both for persons or agencies convicted of unlicensed operations.

Interest in the fight for regulation and control of child placement activities has grown constantly since early in 1940 when The Post, with a series of stories entitled "Babies for Sale," called public attention to the need for special legislation.

The Post brought to light a thriving baby brokerage business here and has been a leader since then in the movement pressing for action which the Commissioners yesterday took.

City-wide civic and welfare groups joined The Post battle, and Congressional leaders already have indicated they would give the Commissioners' measure full support when it reached Capitol Hill.

Under the bill, the Commissioners are authorized to appoint a committee to formulate rules and regulations prescribing standards of placement, care and services to be required of all licensed individuals or agencies.

Any agency making application for a license would fiirst be investigated carefully by the Board of Public Welfare and the measure further provides that upon issuance of a permit, the agency "shall in no case charge or reveive any compensation for its services in placing a child in a family home."

Urging early consideration of the bill, the Commissioners told Congress:

"The purpose of this act is to regulate the placement of children

OPM Bars Civilian Use Of Copper

Drastic Order Affects Hundreds Of Commonplace Consumer Articles

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

In an order having the most drastic effect on the civilian economy of any yet issued under the defense program, the OPM yesterday forbade the use of copper and its alloys next year in the manufacture of more than 100 broad categories of consumer products.

Although the items on the banned list were classified by the OPM Priorities Division as "less essential," they included such widely-used items as radios, most building supplies, almost all plumbing equipment, all burial equipment, cooking ware, household and office furniture and supplies, and photographic equipment.

Designed to save from 150,000 to 200,000 tons of copper a year—or from one-fifth to one-fourth of the estimated shortage of the scarce defense metal in 1942—the order's sweeping inclusiveness runs the gamut of the civilian economy from the brass rings on merry-go-rounds to the brass rails in saloons.

Copper Wire Allowed

In addition to specifying a huge itemized list in which no copper may be used next year, the order also reduces to 70 per cent the amount of copper and its alloys which may be used next year on all items not separately listed.

Besides the specific prohibition of copper use next year in the items listed, and the 30 per cent curtailment for other commodities, the order also:

Restricts the use of copper in the listed civilian items to 60 per cent for the period from now until the end of 1941.

Forbids the use of all copper in building construction beginning next November 1.

Exceptions provide that the ban does not extend to military and defense contracts; to products covered by underwriter or other safety regulations in effect at the first of this month; to copper used as a conductor of electricity, and to copper used in scientific work or specialized industrial plants such as refineries and power plants where corrosive action prevents the use of substitutes.

750,000-Ton Shortage

The order also permits plating, provided that the plating is not decorative but is essential for use of the product. In items formerly made entirely of copper, such functional plating is permitted providing the plating uses only 5 per cent of the metal formerly needed.

The seven general categories included in the list are building supplies and hardware, house furnishings and equipment, dress accessories, jewelry, gifts and novelties; burial equipment, automotive, trailor and tractor equipment, and mis-

Willkie's Hand Seen

Three Democratic and three Republican Senators broke away from the limitations of the armed ship bill yesterday to ask more sweeping revision or outright repeal of the Neutrality Act of 1939.

The Republicans' repeal proposal was presented after the sponsors reportedly had conferred with Wendell Willkie.

Administration leaders declined comment as two sets of amendments, one striking down combat zone and port entry restrictions and the other wiping out the entire act, were introduced in a Senate deeply stirred by the Kearny incident.

The President called a conference of his Congressional leaders at the White House today, presumably to determine whether the bi-partisan drive for all-out revision in the Senate will have Administration support.

Ships Bill Hearings Set

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee meanwhile by a 12 to 9 vote approved four days of closed hearings, starting today, on the House-approved armed ship bill.

Taughtened Senate nerves later crackled in a series of angry clashes between Administration and non-interventionist Senators. Isolationists were charged with a deliberate defense program "slowdown." Committee leaders were accused of "gag" tactics in closing the ship bill hearings.

A resolution to broaden the ship-arming measure to repeal the Section 3 combat zone restrictions and the Section 2 ban on deliveries to Allied ports was introduced by Senators Lee, of Oklahoma, Pepper, of Florida and Green, of Rhode Island, all Administration Democrats.

G. O. P. Members Act

Earlier, three Republican Senators, Bridges, of New Hampshire; Gurney, of South Dakota, and Austin, of Vermont, jointly introduced an amendment to the armed ship bill to eliminate all neutrality legislation from the books.

The two independently sponsored moves apparently assured votes both in the Foreign Relations Committee and on the Senate floor on the question of removing immedi-

Speeding of Aid Expected

Harriman Gives Roosevelt Optimistic Report on Russia

By Douglas B. Cornell
Associated Press Staff Writer

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Orders for "speed and more speed" in supplying Russia with arms to resist Nazi military might appeared likely tonight after W. Averell Harriman told President Roosevelt he had "great confidence" in the Russian situation.

Harriman dropped a hint that some public pronouncement on stepping up aid to the Red forces might be expected in Washington tomorrow, from the President, himself, or both.

For three hours, Harriman conferred today with the Chief Executive and with Harry L. Hopkins, who directs the lend-lease program for Mr. Roosevelt. He gave his first personal report to the President since he returned Saturday from Europe, where he led an American mission to Moscow to consult with British and Russian delegations on Soviet armament needs.

Immediately after the parley he left for Washington by plane to confer with State, War and Navy Department chieftains tonight and the President again tomorrow.

As the blue and silver navy transport warmed up, making his words difficult to catch, Harriman told reporters at the new Hackensack, N. Y. airport:

"I reported I had great confidence in the situation. He (Mr. Roosevelt) is going to see me again tomorrow, and I might have something to say in Washington tomorrow."

He fended off questions whether he carried to the President a personal note from Russian Premier Stalin or whether he thought Russia would keep on fighting.

His assertion of great confidence in the Russian situation apparently opened the way for any additional steps the Administration might care to take to speed assistance to the beleaguered Soviet Union.

Although Russia has been paying in gold or vital materials for help

1000 Leaders Of Protestants Urge Red Aid

Petition to Roosevelt Assails All Who 'Speak The Mind' of Hitler

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 20.—More than 1000 Protestant leaders—bishops, educators, clergymen and editors—in a petition to President Roosevelt, tonight pledged readiness to accept any sacrifice asked of them in furthering aid to Russia.

Urging the Chief Executive to act swiftly so that freedom "may march on its enemy and that it may march from Washington," the Protestant leaders, from all parts of the country, declared:

"Our quarrel is with all who under whatever holy or unholy banner or on whatever good or evil pretext would join even for one instant with Hitler in his attempt to unwrite the history of four centuries of human tolerance and freedom.

"You (Mr. Roosevelt) have undertaken to assist these defenders (Britain and her Allies) with material aid. We pledge you our moral support and our prayers that this aid be effective and lightning-swift. We join our petitions with those of the English Church and the Russian Orthodox Church for the people of Russia, the Red army and the Soviet leaders.

"At this moment when your representatives and the representatives of Great Britain have met with the heroic defenders of Russia and have worked out quick and effective means of coordination between the three countries to the end commonly desired, we . . . want you to know that we shall not permit ourselves or our people to be confused by those opposing voices who al-

Nazi General Assassinated; French Fearful

Severe Reprisals Expected for Slaying Of Nantes Commander

By the Associated Press

Vichy, Oct. 20.—Gen. Holtz, German commandant of the important Nantes region of western occupied France, was killed today by two gunmen who escaped, and tonight Frenchmen fearfully awaited severe Nazi reprisals.

The general was the highest German officer yet attacked in the wave of terrorism in the occupied zone, and German sources warned that the assassination "might have very serious consequences."

German and French police began a thorough round-up of suspects who may be executed as hostages under the German system of exacting many French lives for every slain German soldier.

The gunmen apparently were well aware of Gen. Holtz's routine. They lay in wait on the tree-lined Cours St. Pierre in front of St. Pierre Church.

As the general passed shortly after 8 a. m. en route to his office they opened fire. The general was reported to have suffered both pistol and shotgun wounds, two of them in the head.

Before police could ring the area the gunmen disappeared.

Nantes is up the Loire River east of Atlantic port city of St. Nazaire, the frequent target of British bombers. Holtz was described as gendarmerie general, charged with maintaining harmony between the French people and the German occupation troops.

Nazi authorities promptly instituted a 7 p. m. curfew in Nantes to replace the 9 p. m. one put in effect after a German garage had been burned.

Events Indicate Drive on Capital Has Been Slowed Or Even Halted

(Detailed stories on Page 2.)

By the Associated Press

The Russians claimed early today to have broken strong and repeated German tank attacks on the Moscow approaches and every indication was that the Nazi offensives upon the city had been materially slowed down, if not substantially halted.

In heavy fighting, said the Soviet command's early morning communique, the Red armies fought on in unchanged areas—about Mozhaisk, 57 airline miles west of the capital, and Maloyaroslavets, 67 miles below it.

Thus supported was the general impression from other quarters that there had been no Nazi advance of consequence in the last 24 hours.

There was, in fact, much to suggest that the last decision for the capital might be long delayed.

Berlin's accounts played down the Moscow front and played up instead the progress of a major far southern thrust toward the important Donets River city of Kharkov in the Ukraine and toward Rostov on the Don River, farther to the east, the gateway to the Caucasus and a keystone in the southern Russian communications structure.

Little Said About Moscow

There, it was asserted, although the claim was substantially denied in London, the invaders were developing a new encirclement maneuver against Soviet armies claimed to be in headlong flight. Nazi sources sought to give the impression that the fall of both Kharkov and Rostov was imminent.

The Soviet, not conceding the loss of Taganrog, as announced by the Germans, reported violent and apparently inconclusive fighting about the town on the Sea of Azov.

As to Moscow, the Germans said very little yesterday. An authoritative commentary, the Dienst aus Deutschland, offered the inference—but only that—that fighting had reached points "within Moscow's fortifications zone."

The same agency in effect said the siege of Leningrad was likely to be only that for sometime to come, remarking:

"A precipitate prestage attack on this city, whose every cellar perhaps is loaded with explosives, would now demand unjustifiable sacrifices. Leningrad's hour, however, will strike just as surely as did Kiev's or Odessa's."

This concession that Leningrad's fall—which had been claimed as imminent half a dozen times—was still in the unknown future appeared interesting in view of the fact that Moscow's inner defenses are generally presumed to be at least as strong, if not much stronger.

Reds Claim Success in North

It seemed easily possible that just as all-out frontal asaults on Leningrad have been long deferred, the supreme head-on assault on Moscow might await developments in Hitler's adventures in the South. There already have been some indications that the Germans might elect to try to strangle Moscow rather than try to storm it stone to stone.

The Federal Diary

Carmody Resignation Reported In Housing Agencies Shakeup

By Jerry Kluttz

Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody is rumored to have resigned in what apparently presages a general shake-up of the Federal housing agencies. Carmody is in the Virgin Islands on a vacation. His doctor ordered the trip for Carmody, who hasn't been in the best of health. The President, it is understood, will insist that the hardworking Federal Works Administrator remain in his Administration. Carmody, a faithful New Dealer, will be given his choice of several jobs. The vacancy on the Maritime Commission appears to be the most likely spot. Carmody is interested in public power and a place may be found for him in one of the power agencies. He formerly headed the Rural Electrification Administration.

CARMODY

Brig. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Wage and Hour Administrator, is in line to take over Federal Works. However, this plan may be stymied. The hard-hitting Army engineer also is wanted by the Office of Production Management to administer the Property Requisitioning Act which became law last week. He's reported to be the choice of Donald Nelson, SPAB executive director, who is understood to be planning to ask the President to detail him to OPM. Nelson apparently wants to appoint Fleming deputy director of OPM's Priorities Division in charge of administration of the Requisitioning Act. Fleming, who once helped Public Works Administration launch its construction program, is in Walter Reed Hospital with an infected leg.

It's also reported that Nathan Straus is on his way out as Administrator of United States Housing Authority. The impending retirement of Straus, who made a heavy contribution to the 1936 Democratic campaign fund, has been rumored for several years. A plan now under consideration calls for his being "promoted out." The appointment of Straus to OPM as a housing consultant is a possibility. Two persons who have been mentioned to take over USHA are John Breen, chairman of the Boston Housing Authority, and B. J. Hovde, chairman of the Pittsburgh Housing Authority.

The housing shakeup plans are said to call for revamping of the Office of the Defense Housing Coordinator which is headed by Charles F. Palmer. Carmody and

Warner Says He Feared Harm When He Paid Bioff $20,000

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 20.—Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., testified in Federal Court today that he paid $20,000 to William Bioff, West Coast labor leader, because "I was afraid of what would happen to the business and because I was afraid of bodily harm."

Bioff and George E. Browne, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, are on trial charged with extorting $550,000 from the motion picture industry in violation of the Federal Anti-Racketeering Act.

Harry Warner's brother, Maj. Albert Warner, in earlier testimony had said he paid Bioff $20,000 in 1936 and 1937, on Bioff's demand for $50,000 a year from each major company in the industry.

Harry Warner said Bioff called on him in November, 1937, following a one-day strike at the studios of Columbia Pictures, Inc. He reported the following conversation:

"Do you know of the strike at Columbia?" Bioff asked.

"Yes, I do," the witness said he replied.

"Do you know that your company owes me $20,000 as the last payment?"

"I haven't got the money."

"You better get it up, you know."

The witness said Bioff told him: "I only get a small part of it; the boys in Chicago get most of it."

The witness said he told Bioff he would see what could be done about it.

A telephone conversation with his brother in New York resulted in a decision not to pay the money.

Warner said Bioff called on him again in December, 1937, and said, "The boys need the money for Christmas presents and the boys

U. S. Envoy Reaches New Red Capital

By the United Press

Kuibyshev (Samara), Russia, Oct. 20.—United States Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt, the diplomatic and press correspondent corps arrived here tonight after a five-day trip from Moscow.

The journey to this temporary Soviet capital was made by train and was without special events.

During the five-day trip Steinhardt and the United States Embassy staff provided food for the entire American party.

(Kuibyshev, a city of about 171,000 population, is about 550 miles southeast of Moscow on the Volga River.

[By train, the journey is about 750 miles. The fact that the diplomatic-correspondents' party required five days to travel this distance may indicate that the railroad is heavily crowded with movement of military supplies and possibly reinforcements flowing west to back up the Moscow front.]

Airmen for Britain

A British Port, Oct. 20 (AP).—A group of United States Army officers and technicians arrived in England today aboard a flotilla of troopships which brought one of the biggest contingents of Canadian-trained airmen yet to arrive, plus thousands of other Allied troops.

Accompanying the reinforcements for the British Empire's rapidly expanding air force were the first group of volunteers from the United States and Canada for the Polish air force in Britain and a Canadian - trained detachment of Netherlanders.

U. S. Destroyer Given Britain Believed Sunk

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 20.—Eye-witness account by D. N. B., official German news agency, of the German submarine attack on a British convoy in the North Atlantic last week declared today that one of two destroyers sunk apparently was one of the former United States warships traded to Britain for bases.

The account said that a lone submarine opened the attack in which the high command said Saturday that 10 freighters and two destroyers were sunk.

Flames and explosions from three sinking vessels, D. N. B.'s anonymous eye-witness reported, attracted other U-boats to the scent of the midocean battle which lasted at least three days and nights.

He said that he was aboard the submarine which spotted the convoy and that it included more than 20 merchantmen in addition to protecting vessels.

The convoy was encountered at 8:30 p. m. in violent weather, with visibility cut down by a rainstorm, and the first successful torpedoes struck home about an hour later, he said.

The weather grew worse the next day, yet the submarines kept on the convoy's trail, D. N. B.'s reporter said.

"For hours on end, the detonation of wildly and aimlessly dropped depth charges would not cease," he recounted, adding that heavy R. A. F. Sunderland fighting boats also joined the battle.

This account said the two destroyers went down within a few minutes of each other and termed the one identified as a former United States vessel a "Churchill class" ship.

Industrial Donets Basin Will Soon Be Taken, Berlin Feels

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 20.—Axis armies were described tonight as smashing eastward toward Kharkov and Rostov to carry the fight quickly to a new Russian defense deep in the Donets Basin, where the battered Russian forces were expected to be reinforced by fresh troops from the east.

A military commentator said the high command already had a great new encirclement under way to meet the Russian attempt to guard important war industries along the Donets. The commentator added that retreating Red army units were being followed so closely they had been unable to rally.

"The hot pursuit of (Marshal) Budyenny's fleeing forces especially threatens the great harbor and industrial city of Rostov on the Don," said the commentary Dienst aus Deutschland.

It added that in German military opinion the Donets Basin campaign would prove to be easy once the Germans reached Rostov, only 30 airline miles east of captured Taganrog.

Rail Lines Imperiled

Military commentators also interpreted the fall of Taganrog, announced by the high command over the weekend, as giving the Germans an effective stranglehold on shipments from Russia's Caucasus port of Batum.

Earlier, it was said, the Russians eased pressure on their rail lines by shipping from Batum to Taganrog by water and then carrying on by train to Moscow. Now, it was pointed out, the water route has been cut except for the southern stretch from Batum to Novorossilk, and the rest of the rail route is in close bomber range.

There were indications that the Germans expect the early fall of Kharkov, in the heart of the Donets Valley. Foreign correspondents were handed German releases pointing out the importance of the city of 634,000.

The Germans said it was a metal trades center, with factories for agricultural machinery, tractors, trucks, tanks, bicycles, motorcycles, automobiles and locomotives.

All along the Eastern Front German forces were said to be "following up the advantages gained by recent decisive battles"—the encirclements at Vyazma, Bryansk and north of the Sea of Azov.

Military advices said there were mud, rain and snow on the front, but spokesmen said mechanized and motorized forces had not been halted.

Lennigrad Discussed

Dienst Aus Deutschland described the German siege of Leningrad as "one of strength saving," but said that at any time the high command chose the "fist around the city on the Finnish Gulf can be closed.

"A precipitate prestige attack on this city whose every cellar perhaps is leaded with explosives would now demand unjustifiable sacrifices . . . Leningrad's hour will strike just as surely as Kiev's or Odessa's did," the commentary added.

Dienst said repeated Red army attempts to sally forth from the beleaguered city had been smashed with intense fire and attempts to land forces from barges likewise were repulsed.

Military reports said German planes in the Far North crippled a Russian merchant ship found yesterday far out in the Arctic Ocean. Authorized sources intimated that the Russian fleet in the Black Sea also was dwindling rapidly and said revelations on its condition might be forthcoming soon.

U. S. Now Must Decide Its Course, Ickes Asserts

Chicago, Oct. 20 (AP).—Declaring that America should not be content merely to play the role of arsenal of democracy, Harold L. Ickes asserted tonight that the time had arrived when "we must decide which is our side and take our stand irrevocably and determinedly on it."

"We have tried to put off the evil day of decision by pretending that no evil lies in wait for us, or, that, if lying in wait, we can fend it off by some of our customary wishful thinking," the Interior Secretary said in an address prepared for the Sinai Temple Forum. "But who, if he can read and think honestly and objectively, longer doubts that the time for our final decision is here? We must face the issue."

Ickes did not say directly whether he referred to the issue of war or peace.

Justice Department officials said yesterday that part of a special fund of $100,000 earmarked by Congress for the Federal Bureau of Investigation would be used to check up on the list of Government employes accused by the Dies Committee of subversive tendencies.

The money was set aside for the investigation of such charges under an amondment by Representative Jones (Republican), of Ohio, to the Justice Department's regular appropriation bill last April.

Officials said that some of the money already had been used in inquiries, in compliance with the Congressionl directive.

While Congressional sources said it had been understood at the time the money was earmarked that the Dies Committee would furnish the FBI with all data in its files regarding subversive Federal employes, Justice Department officials emphasized that the list of 1124 names transmitted by Chairman Dies (Democrat), of Texas, was in response to a request by Attorney General Biddle dated October 7.

It was not the first time, however, that the Dies Committee had branded Government workers as subversive. About two years ago, it made public the names of several hundred Federal employes found on a "membership and mailing" list in the files of the local office of the American League for Peace and Democracy.

At that time the committee was sharply criticized by President Roosevelt for making the names public without giving the persons involved a hearing.

R. A. F. Fighters Reported Helping to Defend Moscow

By International News Service

London, (Tuesday), Oct. 21.—British pilots and fighter planes are reported to have plunged into the epic defense of the Russian capital.

A Stockholm dispatch said R. A. F. planes and fliers had been brought down from both the Murmansk and Leningrad fronts and "are now participating in the Moscow battle."

Into the very thick of the fighting before Moscow, a Stockholm dispatch to the Daily Express said, Josef Stalin rode aboard hi armored headquarters train, mounting antiaircraft guns.

Through Clouds of Planes

Still refusing to follow his own government to Kuibyshev, Stalin was said to have "supervised the defenses after running through clouds of German bombers and heavy artillery fire being constantly directed at the railroads in the Moscow zone."

During his tour, the dispatch added, Stalin conferred with chief of the general staff Gen. Gregory Zhukov, commander of the outer defenses of Moscow, "who gave a satisfactory account of the Russian position and reported that his troops were making a series of flank attacks against the panzers attempting to pierce the Mozhaisk and Maloyaroslavets areas."

[The Associated Press said the Ankara radio broadcast a Havas (Vichy French) news agency report that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko, commander of the Russian armies on the Central Front, had been dismissed.]

The Moscow radio was quoted by Reuter's News Agency as announcing that German troops had been forced by Soviet counterattacks to withdraw entirely from the far northern front west of the ice-free Artic port of Murmansk.

The Germans, it was stated, left "mountains of dead and large quantities of booty."

An earlier Moscow broadcast said 2000 German officers and men had been slain in recent fighting west of Murmansk.

With the German threat apparently eliminated, the latest Moscow announcement indicated Murmansk, the biggest and best of Russia's far northern harbors, may shortly become available for delivery of British and American materials to the Soviets.

The Moscow wireless also said Leningrad's anti-aircraft guns had shot down 200 German bombers in the last few days, while 200 Luftwaffe planes were downed during 40 raids on Murmansk.

The newspaper Pravda was quoted by the Moscow radio yesterday as saying German casualties in nearly four months of the war amounted to 4,000,000 dead and wounded, but that the Nazis "keep coming on like swarms of evil locusts."

'Chutists Behind Red Lines

London (Tuesday), Oct. 21 (U.P.).—German spies, saboteurs and terrorists were reported parachuting behind Moscow's defenses, and the Moscow radio was heard today warning the population against them.

Some parachutists were said to be disguised as Russian officers and it was believed they were trying to disorganize the citizens' army, now moving into battle alongside the Russian soldiers.

Spanish Curfew Reduces G.W.T.W. To a Breeze

Madrid, Oct. 20 (U.P.).—Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind," adapted forthe stage by Madrid's Teatro Espanol, was reduced to a mere breeze today because its length was too much for the 1 a. m. curfew.

The play, cut from three to two acts, features a honey-haired blonde Spanish girl, as Scarlett O'Hara. Rhett Butler is a fast-talking, nervous and excitable Spaniard.

The play opened Wednesday night and ran for 4½ hours. That sent the audience streaming out of the theater at 2:30 a. m., which was more than the curfew could stand.

The adapter, a young playwright named Cayetano Luca de Tena, working under the handicap of censorship as well as making the subjectof life in the Southern United States understandable to his countrymen, made a hasty revision to comply with the curfew law.

Moscow Lines Unchanged in Day, Reds Say

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Tuesday), Oct. 21.—Repeated attacks by large formations of German tanks were reported repulsed by the Red armies on the central front before Moscow today, with the battle for defense of this capital raging heaviest in the Mozhaisk and Maloyaroslavets sectors to the west and southwest.

In the far southern zone, fierce fighting was in progress around Taganrog, the Soviet information bureau announced.

(The Germans claim to have captured Taganrog, 30 miles west of Rostov, in the drive to conquer the Donets Basin.)

Mozhaisk, 87 miles west of Moscow, and Maloyaroslavets, 65 miles southwest, are the same areas where the heaviest fighting has been reported for the last 24 hours, implying no appreciable Nazi gains.

Of the far northern front, Pravda, organ of the Communist Party, said German assault forces had lost ground until they found themselves occupying positions no nearer the important Arctic port of Murmansk than they were 100 days ago.

(The Moscow radio, heard in London, said, German troops have been forced to withdraw in the Murmansk area.)

Pravda, quoted in a Tass broadcast, said the failure to smash on into Murmansk by October 1 forced the Nazi commander to cancel arrangements for a victory feast at Murmansk's Arctika Hotel.

"Fighting for Murmansk!" the newspaper asserted, "is going on not at the approaches to the town but far away in the mountains."

Pravda reported the Germans lost more than 200 planes in repeated attacks on the town, but said bomb destruction within the city amounted to only one store, two hospitals, a stadium and several wooden houses.

Japanese Premier Tells Army To Prepare for Sacrifices

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, Oct 20.—Declaring Japan "encircled" by foreign powers, Premier Gen. Eiki Tojo today called upon the country's people and fighting forces to display the "iron unity" necessary to bring the empire through its "crucial hour."

His appeal for unity and an address in which he told war officials to be prepared to sacrifice everything for their country were made against a backdrop of newspaper assertions to the effect that Japan would neither challenge the United States and Great Britain to war in the Pacific nor shrink from a challenge from them.

Japanese understood that by encirclement Tojo referred to recent military and economic measures taken by the United States, Great Britain, China and the Netherlands East Indies, and Russia's war against the Axis powers.

Two Japanese liners sailed today for United States ports to bring home Japanese subjects alarmed by the tension in the Pacific. The Hikawa Maru left Yokohama for Seattle and the Taiyo Maru sailed from Kobe for Honolulu. A third ship, the Tatuta Maru, was already en route from Yokohama to San Francisco on the same mission.

One of Tojo's first steps as he settled into his new authority on return by plane from a pilgrimage to the grand shrine to the Sun Goddess at Ise was to order a sweeping and unexpected change in Japan's police bureau heads.

Shigenori Togo, new foreign minister, in a statement to the nation declared that "the ultimate goal of Japan's foreign policy lies in the maintenance and promotion of world peace, but we are firmly determined to defend our country

Tojo to Be Urged To Bolster Axis Ties

Tokyo (Tuesday), Oct. 21 (U.P.).—A resolution urging the new "army" government headed by Premier Gen. Eiki Tojo to strengthen Japan's "Alliance" with Germany and Italy, and "eliminate the challenging acts of third powers hostile to Nippon," will be presented to the government today by a strong group of members of the Lower House of Parliament.

Without mentioning the United States by name, the Parliamentarians, known as the "throne assisting Diet members league," will make clear their opposition to any policy of "temporizing" in discussing Japanese-American relations.

Greek Reports Hint Nazi Morale Slump

Unrestrained Looting Indicates Lack of Discipline

By Harold Denny
Copyright by New York Times

Cairo, Oct. 20.—Observers recently in Greece believe that the orgy of looting by individual German officers and soldiers as one of several indications that all is not well in the German Army. It is so revolting to all standards of decency and military honor that one would suppose it would not be countenanced by any army, not even the German.

No German military police are accessible to the public to protest against rowdy soldiers, which is contrary to practice of the armies of normal nations. In the invasion of Austria, for instance, German officers frequently interfered indignantly with local Nazis for abusing and humiliating the Jews.

But the fact that the German troops in Greece received a free rein to rob and abuse the people seems to indicate that the higher command was catering to them. This deduction is reinforced by the conspicuous tendency of German officers to salute passing soldiers, often before the soldiers saluted them, which certainly is not "according to Hoyle" in the German army.

Another indication that the German army is not up to its original standards, at least in Greece, is the fact that its personal appearance has deteriorated. German soldiers' uniforms, besides being too hot for service in Greece, are badly worn and ill-fitting. The German troops look tired.

Indications of discontent and dissatisfaction are especially conspicuous among Austrians, who express their dissatisfaction publicly after a few glasses of wine or beer.

In general the Germans are able soldiers, but it appears in Greece as if they had had enough and wanted to go home and were beginning to lose faith because of Hitler's repeated postponement of the date of final victory.

Women Rebuke Officer

Among innumerable reliable accounts of the coldness with which the Greeks treat the German military is one of an officer in a German uniform who asked two Greek ladies lunching in a popular restaurant whether or not he might sit at their table. They gave him no answer, nevertheless he sat down.

Trying to make conversation, he remarked that "Athens is a beautiful city."

One of the ladies replied bitterly: "Athens was a beautiful city," emphasizing the "was."

The officer hesitated a moment, then said:

"I am a Viennese. Vienna also was a beautiful city." Then he continued; "But why should you complain. Wait until your city has been occupied as long as mine."

If the means by which the Germans looted Greece of nearly everything portable, including the bulk of its food supplies, automobiles, ordinary merchandise and the country's stock of raw cotton which forced Greek textile mills to close, were contemptible, their methods of obtaining big loot must evoke the admiratoin of every big-time gangster and every pirate in big or little business. They reduce Al Capone's most grandiose exploits to the level of stealing pennies from children.

The technique is simple and its basis is the almost worthless Reichskreditkassenmark.

In buying immovable property and large enterprises, the German negotiators prefer the outright purchase of the entire enterprise, or of a controlling interest, to obtain a technically legal title that would stand up against the Italians. If the property owner is not amenable to persuasion, stronger methods are used, including threats of manhandling and imprisonment by the Gestapo.

In the lesser pilfering, German officers are likely to impress outsiders having to deal with them as irresponsible muddlers. A visitor seldom finds the same officer twice in succession in the same office and no records seem to be kept. But this confusion is simulated and/or part of the German technique of thievery.

Always a New Officer

The new officer the visitor finds in the office denies all knowledge of the steps taken by his predecessor and the next time the outsider applies there is still another new officer there professing equal ignorance.

By means of this system the victims of looting or seizure of goods without receipt is deprived of any recourse. German officers and men wear only the most general insignia, so that it is virtually impossible to identify the guilty individual. And it appears to be the deliberate practice to sign all documents illegibly.

In getting hold of the country's large and, for the most part, immovable assets, German efficiency is only too visible. Soon after the Germans entered Athens, the inhabitants noticed German officers whose faces seemed to be familiar. In many instances it turned out that they were reserve officers who had lived, or done business, in pre-war Greece.

These Germans immediately looked up their former Greek contacts and, with first-hand knowledge, began pushing through high-pressure private business deals in a wide variety of Greek enterprises.

Slanguage

New Army Has a Word For Anything

By John Ferris
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Oct. 20.—Before matters get entirely out of hand, the War Department would be well advised to take its glossary of Army slang, put it in a time capsule and bury the capsule at Fort Knox, Ky.

In this way, students of language as yet unborn may be saved the tedious labor of thumbing through piles of sere newspaper clippings of the year 1941 to learn that a galvanized gelding was a tank and a bubble dancer was an Army private assigned to dishwashing.

The Navy, unless it breaks from its tradition of language, has less cause for worry. In Nelson's time when a sailor wanted a drink of water he went to a cask called a scuttlebutt. The sailor of 1941 calls the porcelain drinking fountain a scuttlebutt, and it isn't likely it will ever be anything but a scuttlebutt, a pungent nautical term reasonably extended to modern usage.

Slang, to be good, ought to be fairly spontaneous, though even when it is of easy origin it frequently loses its vigor and dies. As an example there is the term glamour boy for a drafted man. The juices of the humor in this have already evaporated.

Food for Fun

Humor—the humor without bitterness in its implied judgment—is an element of all slang, and in the new Army slang is especially strong, as anyone knows who has heard a squad tent called a boudoir; a machine gun, a devil's piano; and a motorcycle a popsickle.

This humor colors the soldier's language whenever he speaks of food and equipment, his superiors, his work and his recreation.

Thus coffee is battery acid, bootleg, blackstrap, ink or java; ketchup is blood; beef is canned willie or tiger meat; white fish is sewer trout; chicken or turkey, buzzard meat; food in general, chow.

Since eating seems a great deal more important to the soldier than to the civilian, the men have still other terms: Armored car for canned milk; punk for bread; bean gun for a rolling kitchen; beans for a commissary officer; army strawberries for prunes; bug, any solids in soups. Slum gullion is hash, a slum burner is a cook, and belly robber is a mess sergeant.

Zombie to Us

A raw recruit is a yard bird; a man ignorant of military affairs, a zombie. A recruit is also a big john, although the term rookie also is still used. Bantam cars are jeeps and a man who is unduly excited is higher than a Georgia pine. Jawbone is credit, the chaplain holy joe; a lieutenant a jeeter, and an old soldier, old issue, old file or old settler.

The lethal weapon which in civil life the soldier called an automatic rifle suddenly becomes a Chicago atomizer, and a medical officer, plain butch. An enlisted man is a dogface.

A wheelbarrow becomes a general's car; a pearl diver is a man on kitchen police; liquor is serum and a man who is drunk is draped or starting to spoil. A portable radio receiving and transmitting set is a walkie-talkie and a temporary tent city in a cold spell, a Valley Forge.

If his girl sends a soldier a letter, it is a sugar report, and the reply, a behavior report.

Air Corps Specialties

The Air Corps also has come through with a language of its own.

Here are some of the terms used by the flying men:

Bunk flying—Aviation talk in barracks.

Buzzing a town—To fly over it.

Chinese landing—A landing with one wing low.

Flying the iron beam—Following a railroad.

Blind flying—A blind date.

Flying boxcar—A bomber.

Funeral glide—Plane out of control.

Prop wash—Expression of disbelief.

Skirt patrol—In search of a girl.

In a spin—Unsettled mind.

The skipper, regardless of age, is still the old man; a battleship is a battlewagon, a submarine a pig boat and destroyers the tin can Navy. There are no floors in the Navy; they are decks, and walls are bulkheads; and all brass, tarnished though it may be under rare circumstances, is bright work.

Like his brother ashore, the sailor is concerned about food, and applies his own terms.

Stew becomes slop or slum; cold meats, horse meat; chicken or turkey, sea gull; powdered milk, sea cow; ketchup, red lead; hash on toast, mud on a shingle; coffee is joe, java, jamoka or mud.

When a man is wakened in the morning he is told to show a leg and when he gets up he hits the deck.

When a man goes ashore on leave he hits the beach, and when he sizes up a man he studies the cut of his jib. A good ship is home to him.

The sailor who uses lilac water or other toilet water to make him smell better uses poofoo as far as his mates are concerned, and if he changes his underwear without taking a bath he is accused of taking an electric light bath.

Early Morning Breezes Chill His 'Dukes'

United Front Faces Japan, Canberra Says

By the Associated Press

Sydney, Oct. 20.—Completion of negotiations for a united Pacific front composed of Britain, the United States, China, the Netherlands East Indies, Australia and New Bealand was reported today in Canberra.

Australian Prime Minister John Curtin said the degree of cooperation between the participants would be substantial, and at the same time reiterated a warning that possible extension of the war in the Far East constitutes a serious menace.

The prime minister disclosed he had conferred yesterday with Air Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, British commander in chief in the Far East.

He also said he had talked by telephone with Richard Casey, Australian minister to Washington, and Sir Earle Page, special minister to London, now en route to Britain.

Curtin said Australia's defensive supply arrangements were stronger than ever before.

"The navy is at the highest pitch of efficiency, the home defense army is well-trained, equipment is greatly improved, the air force's strength is largely increased and production of armaments is growing weekly," Curton declared.

The Melbourne Herald said it would be folloy to pretend that Japanese aggression could be prevented without the fullest aid from the United States, "the only power able to put in the Pacific a navy to prevent Japanese aggression in any direction."

Australia is prepared to follow the United States lead in a Pacific front "with all the resolution and resources it possesses," the Herald asserted.

In Canberra former Prime Minister Arthur Fadden said "Australia has been greatly encouraged by the policy (in the Far East) of the United States."

(The British radio reported today that Brooke-Popham had abandoned his trip to New Zealand to remain in Australia for further consultations there. The radio added that Walter Nash, New Zealand finance minister, was leaving for Australia to join in the talks. C. B. S. heard the broadcast.)

Negro Officers' Training Urged

A letter has been addressed to President Roosevelt urging the establishment of a Negro officers' training camp at Des Moines, Iowa, Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro Council and president of the United States Government Employes, announced yesterday.

Only 20 Negro soldiers during the past year have been admitted to the hundreds of officers, schools, Brown stated in the letter, pointing out that there are nearly 70,000 Negros in the Army at present.

A plea was also presented asking the President to provide scholarships for at least 50 Negro soldiers to the United States Military Academy.

Former U. S. Ship Hit by Torpedo

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—The former U. S. Maritime Commission freighter West Amargosa, sold to the British and renamed the Empire Crossbill, has been torpedoed in the North Atlantic, marine circles said today.

The 5462-ton freighter, built in San Pedro, Calif., in 1919, was last reported leaving Philadelphia for England on August 20. It was not known here when or where she was struck. Officials said there were some casualties.

Main Interest Is Not Dress, Wallis Says

By International News Service

New York, Oct. 20.—This metropolis had a surprise for the Duke of Windsor today and the Duchess of Windsor in turn, had a surprsie for it.

First, his royal highness, who took the city by storm and tied New York traffic into knots when he was last here 17 years ago, strolled virtually unnoticed through her streets today.

Second, Wallis flatly told the press that she was not "nearly as interested in clothes as I'm credited with being. I am more interested in the infant welfare centers I'm starting in Nassau."

The duke and his American-born duchess, virtually smuggled into New York shortly after daylight this morning, wound up their first day here with a quiet little dinner party in their four-room suite at the Waldorf-Astoria.

In between their 6:30 a. m. arrival from Washington at the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Terminal, in Jersey City, and tonight's dinner, the duke and duchess accomplished a medley of jobs. These ranged from a public encounter with the press, photographers and newsreels at noon to such personal items as a steam bath for his royal highness and a nap, shampoo and finger wave for the duchess.

Late in the afternoon, the duke, reveling in his anonymity, walked briskly up Park Avenue to the swanky Racquet and Tennis Club, where he was entertained during his historic visit in 1924, for a steam bath. Bareheaded and overcoatless in the warm autumn sunshine, the duke, who was mobbed wherever he went in New York on that memorable occasion, was unrecognized by more than a half-dozen persons. And they went about their business.

The guests invited by the duke and duchess to dine with them tonight included old friends from America, London and Cannes, and among them were Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Rogers, who sheltered Wallis at their Cannes villa following the abdication crisis.

Others included Lucius Boomer, head of the Waldorf-Astoria, and Mrs. Boomer; Alfred P. Sloan, jr., head of General Motors, and Mrs. Sloan.

Tomorrow, the duke and duchess are scheduled to see three of New York City's own distinct and distinguished phenomenons: Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, who will receive them at City Hall; former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and the Empire State Building.

15,000 Greeks Reported Slain By Bulgars

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 20.—The Greek government in exile said today 15,000 Greeks had died in "a series of brutal massacres" by Bulgars in the Kavalla District and Province of Drama, Greece.

The government said it had received the information in a cable "from official sources."

The Greeks, although virtually unarmed, killed 330 Bulgars and 7 Germans, the cable, dated Sunday, said.

The Kavalla District and Drama Province are in that part of Macedonia occupied by Bulgaria after the Axis invasion of Greece.

(A Greek uprising in the Drama region was reported recently to have been crushed.)

The cable said revolt broke out in the Kavalla District after Greek and Jewish hostages had been shot "indiscriminately."

Rebellion which spread all over Drama Province was deliberately exploited by agitators, the cable said, adding that, "based on the statement of eyewitnesses, 15,000 was a "conservative estimate" of the number killed.

Nazi Raiders Damage Town In Merseyside

By the Associated Press

London, Tuesday, Oct. 21—Eight or nine German raiding planes flew over a Merseyside town at half-hour intervals last night and early today, droping bombs which caused some acknowledged damage and a few casualties.

It was the first time since midsummer that the area has been visited by more than one or two raiders.

Ground defenses put up a heavy barrage and the sky was lit by their searchlights and by flares dropped by the Germans.

Several bombs also were dropped in an east coast area.

The R A F yesterday groundstrafed German troops and blasted an ammunition train from the tracks in a broad sweep across occupied France, the Air Ministry announced.

The returning pilots said "a high percentages of casualties" was inflicted among the troops caught by surprise in a Nazi convoy. These same pilots machine-gunned a number of grounded German planes before calling it a day.

Other R A F targets included two freight trains, reported damaged, and a group of barges near Calais, which were set afire.

Two More Americans Killed

London, Oct. 20 (INS).—The latest Royal Air Force casualty list today revealed that two more American volunteers had been killed in action. The men were Sergts. B. A. Cukell and T. M. Park, both of New Jersey, who were serving with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Ship Fired, Berlin Says

Berlin, Oct. 20 (INS).—German bombers hitting at several ports and other targets along Britain's southern rim during the night, set fire to a large merchant ship in St. Georges Channel, the high command said today. The news agency D. N. B. reported that Great Yarmouth was among the ports attacked and that "numerous" hits were scored in the harbor and the eastern section of the city.

British Set Convoy Fire

Cairo, Oct. 20 (AP).—British planes set fire to the largest vessel in an Axis convoy and probably damaged a second vessel in a central Mediterranean attack yesterday, the British announced today.

Its communique also told of a destructive raid Saturday night on Bengasi, Axis base on the Libyan coast.

The Priorities Division explained the necessity for the order by these figures:

Estimated supply of copper for 1942 is 1,650,000 tons, of which about 600,000 tons are imported and hence subject to shipping hazards.

Defense demands for copper next year, including all military and lend-lease requirements, are 1,050,000 tons. Essential civilian demands during the period are 250,000 tons. Other civilian demands are 1,100,000 tons.

Total demands of 2,400,000 tons, measured against estimated supply of 1,650,000 tons, leaves a deficit, or shortage, of 750,000 tons.

Limited Expansion Possible

The OPM pointed out that expansion of domestic copper supply was possible only to a limited extent, and that the expected maximum of new copper facilities to be brought into production next year would supply only about 10 per cent more than the present production of approximately one million tons.

In South America, it was declared, any large increase would have to come from new deposits in areas not yet explored, inasmuch as present deposits were being worked almost at capacity.

Although the OPM has taken the direct approach of outright limitation in a few other minor commodities, yesterday's order is the first to forbid uses of a vital, generally-used raw material. Observers believed that the list of articles for which copper was banned included almost every major civilian commodity, leaving only a few essential industrial uses of the metal unrestricted.

Hits Entire Metal Industry

As distinct from the shortages in such metals as aluminum, which have virtually removed the light metal from civilian use, the copper scarcity and consequent civilian limitation cuts deep into the entire fabric of the American metal products industry.

Aluminum and magnesium, it was explained, are relatively "new" metals and thus have "overlaid" the industry. Unlike copper, they have not been made integral and almost indispensable parts of thousands of commodities.

Primary defense demands for copper are shell casings made of brass, wire and cable for electrical transmission lines and a variety of maritime uses where salt water corrosion must be avoided. Demands for shell casings in 1942 are alone expected to take one-third of the total 1942 supply. This demand, it was freely admitted, will skyrocket under the impetus of a "shooting war."

The list of articles covered by the copper prohibition follows:

Automotive, Trailer and Tractor Equipment

Garage and automotive repair equipment, headlamps and headlamp parts, heaters, horns, hub and gas tank caps, miscellaneous fittings and trim moldings, rear view mirrors and hardware.

Building Supplies and Hardware

Air conditioning equipment (except small, moving parts and bearings), blinds, including fixture fittings and trimmings; builders' finish hardware, conduits and tubing, decorative hardware—including house numbers, door knockers, checks, pulls and stops, doors, door and window frames, sills and parts, elevators and escalators, except bearings, gravel stops and snow guards, grilles, gutters, leaders, down spouts, and expansion joints, incinerator hardware and fittings, letter boxes and mail chutes, lightening rods (except for electric power stations and industrial stacks), lighting fixtures, ornamental metal work, pile butt protection.

Plumbing and heating supplies: Bands on pipe covering, convectors and local heaters, fixture fittings and trimmings (excluding valve seats), hot water heaters and coils (except as provided in Defense Housing Critical List issued by director of priorities, September 12, 1941, as the same may be amended), pipe and fittings (except as provided in Defense Housing Critical List issued by director of priorities, September 12, 1941, as the same may be amended), shower rods, heads and pans, sinks and drainboards, toilet floats, cistern and low water floats, towel racks.

Push, kick, switch, floor and all other device plates, roofing and flashing, screening and screens, screws, nuts, bolts and hooks, shelves, stair and threshold treads, termite shields, terazzo strips, reglets and moldings, ventilators and skylights.

Burial Equipment

Burial vaults, casket hardware, caskets, memorial tablets, morticians' supplies.

Dress Accessories

Buckles, buttons, dress ornaments, handbag fittings, metal cloths.

Won't Send Note on Kearny To 'Highwaymen,' Hull Says

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

ON A HAPPIER DAY—Lloyd D. LaFleur, who has been listed by the Navy as missing from the torpedod destroyer, U. S. S. Kearny, is shown with his bride after their marriage in June. LaFleur, a pharmacist mate, second class, made his home in Beaumont, Tex.

The torpedoing of the American destroyer Kearny by Germany was denounced by Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday in scathing terms. He referred to Adolf Hitler as an international highwayman.

The destroyer was attacked last Friday 350 miles southwest of Iceland with the apparent loss of 11 members of the crew and the injury of 10 others.

The Kearny has reached port, according to a Navy Department announcement Sunday night, but what port and in what condition has not yet been revealed. Whether the destroyer was operating independently on the North Atlantic patrol or was convoying British merchant ships has not been disclosed. Nor has it been indicated whether she attacked first or was engaged only in defensive action.

Whether President Roosevelt will make the incident the occasion for a drastic extension of his war policy was a question that officials here would not answer in the absence of the President in Hyde Park.

When Hull was asked at his press conference whether a protest would be made to Germany he remarked acidly that one did not very often send diplomatic notes to an international highwayman.

His condemnation of the torpedoing of the Kearny was unsparing.

That incident, Hull said, is one more in connection with the known and confessed effort of Hitler to get control of the seas as well as the continents. He has notified all nations to keep out of an area 1600 miles by 1500 covering a large portion of the north Atlantic.

No nation, Hull declared, in self-defense or otherwise, shall send a ship in there, under the German blockade warning, without the penalty of having it sunk without trace. Of course, he added, Hitler proposes to drive other countries by intimidation or frightfulness off the high seas as a part of his plan of conquest by force.

Then off the Earth?

The question as Hull sees it is whether ships or nationals will get off the seas, and then, he supposes, if they did, Hitler would want them to get off the earth.

He had no definite information to impart on the question of whether the United States Navy has inflicted any damage on Axis warships since it was ordered to shoot on sight.

Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, warned in a statement that the Kearny incident should arouse the Nation "to the perils of the course which we are now pursuing," a course he added, which "must inevitably lead to war."

"We are as yet in the dark as to the circumstances under which the Kearny was torpedoed," Senator Walsh said. "Congress and the country ought to be acquainted with the full facts at the earliest possible moment. Until the facts are known, we should reserve judgment and avoid loose statements and impetuous conclusions.

"But it is perfectly apparent that when we undertake to patrol belligerent waters and give safe conduct to contraband of war, we do so subject to all the risks of war and must be prepared to accept the gruesome consequences."

Roosevelt Hears Harriman Report

thus far extended by the United States, some authorities expect the Administration to open up lend-lease assistance for her under the $5,985,000,000 appropriation pending in the Senate.

(In Washington, Secretary Morgenthau announced late today that the Treasury had bought 30 million dollars' worth of Russian gold to provide the Soviets with cash to buy war materials in this country. He revealed the Russians had completed delivery of ten millions dollars' worth of gold purchased two months ago in a similar transaction.)

Support for a belief that some type of action was impending was seen in the fact that the Chief Executive conferred with Harriman a day earlier than expected. Originally, he planned to delay the conference until he reached Washington tomorrow.

Hopkins, at the Roosevelt estate for the weekend, drove to Harriman's home at Arden, N. Y., and spent Saturday night. He brought to the President the next day a preliminary report on Harrimans findings in Europe.

White House officials made no effort to discount suggestions that this report was of sufficient importance to warrant Mr. Roosevelt's seeing Harriman at once.

While Harriman was flying to the Capital in a plane assigned to James V. Forrestal, Undersecretary of the Navy, the President was winding up a relatively quiet weekend at his country home here.

In addition to another conference with Harriman in Washington tomorrow, he expected to see John Biggers, lend-lease "expediter" in Britain, who also returned to the United States over the weekend.

Gen. Williams Renamed Marine Quartermaster

President Roosevelt renominated Brig. Gen. Seth Williams yesterday to a second four-year term as quartermaster of the Marine Corps.

Gen. Williams, a native of Foxboro, Mass., is 61 and a graduate of Norwich University. A Marine officer since 1903, he was officially commended for his World War services.

Palmer have been out of accord for months. Apparently Palmer will retain his ob, but his power over housing agencies will be restricted. Its proposed that Palmer spend more of his time coordinating defense housing construction by private industry and the Government. With nondefense construction greatly restricted, private industry apparently is more than willing now to build defense homes Palmer will retain his authority to determine the need of defense homes.

Judge Samuel I. Rosenman, the man who suggested creation of SPAB, the potent defense policy board, is attempting to coordinate the various housing agencies on orders from the President. However, a group of officials close to the President have been working on a coordinating plan for several weeks and it appears that Rosenman is double-checking their suggestions.

Federal Housing Administration, Defense Homes Corporation and the remaining housing agencies are being examined by Rosenman and his associates. The only change affecting these agencies will be closer cooperation with all other housing agencies. Rosenman also is reported to be looking into the types of material used to build defense homes, in an effort to construct them more economically and to conserve critical materials for other defense activities. The housing shake-up is expected to be made public within a week or 10 days. Of course, the President can spurn the recommendations.

Rosemary S. Davenport has been elected the employe member of the Board of Review on efficiency ratings at the State Department. Her alternate is John O. Bell. She polled 379 votes in the run-off; Bell, 293, and Joseph B. Maire, 150. Charles A. Jones has resigned as general manager of HOLC effective November 30. His resignation was predicted here after HOLC was ordered transferred to New York City. Jones will remain here. He has been succeeded by Charles F. Cotter, who was deputy general manager in charge of loan service.

Sidney Hillman, associate director of the Office of Production Management, returned to Washington yesterday after an absence of three weeks and began preparing a full recital of the circumstances surrounding the formulation of the stabilization contract in the building and construction industry between the OPM and the American Federation of Labor.

At the same time Senator Truman, chairman of the committee investigating defense contracts, announced that the witnesses before the committee tomorrow, including Hillman, would be examined on several cases growing out of the work of the Board of Review set up in the stabilization agreement.

R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.), in a telegram to President Roosevelt and John Carmody, administrator of the Federal Works Agency, protested against the failure of the FWA to grant a contract for 300 defense houses to the Currier Lumber Co., which has a signed contract with the United Construction Workers Organization Committee (C. I. O.), headed by A. D. Lewis.

Neutrality Act Repealer Offered

ately the rigid provisions of the act barring direct delivery of lend-lease supplies.

"I am sure the President favors it, but he has been forced to half-measures by isolationist opposition," Senator Lee told reporters.

Pepper said the joint Democratic amendment was not an Administration move but he hoped it would have Administration support. He said he decided on the effort with Lee and Green when they became convinced that it would provoke no more debate, and take no longer to pass, than the President's armed ship bill.

Both Senators told newsmen that hope for the United States remaining out of the war "is rapidly dwindling" and that repeal of Neutrality Act restrictions to permit swift aid to the Allies "is our only chance of remaining out."

After the Bridges-Gurney-Austin repeal amendment was introduced, reportedly following conferences with Willkie, Senator Briges told the Senate the Neutrality Act is "a green light for Hitler" and "detrimental to the best interests of the United States."

"The time to seek shelter is now, before the storm turns toward us," said Bridges. "We believe there is yet time to render effective aid to those who would stop Hitler in his tracks."

Senator Gurney in a Senate speech called the armed ship bill a "half-way" measure and said the United States has "come to the limit of compromise."

Calls For Decision

"Either we, here and now, decide to put aside the policy so far followed of half-way measures in an effort to half help our friends and at the same time half placate our avowed enemies—or we must definitely state that our help to the beleaguered nations shall be withheld."

Only difference in the two sets of amendments offered by the Republican and Democratic Senators is that the former would clean the slate of all neutrality legislation and the Lee-Pepper-Green amendment would retain munitions controls and other relatively minor provisions.

The President in his message to Congress ten days ago declared for repeal of Section 6 and Section 2 and complained as well of combat zone restrictions. To speed passage, leaders advised limitation of the bill to arming of ships, and this was done in the House.

Whether this strategy will be recast at today's White House conference, in the light of the torpedoing of the Kearny and Japan's pro-Axis moves, leaders declined to hint, but they pointed out there are no restricting rules in the Senate and any Senator can force a vote on broader revision.

Senate hearings meanwhile will open this morning on the armed ship bill, with Secretary of State Hull and Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, before the Foreign Relations Committee. Chairman Connally is expected to leave the hearings briefly to attend the White House conference.

Decision to close the hearings to the public came on a motion by Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, after the committee had agreed to conclude testimony at 5 p. m. Friday.

Committeemen voted 12 to 9 to close the hearings, as follows:

For the Glass motion—Senators Connally, George, Wagner, Thomas of Utah, Murray, Pepper, Green, Barkley, Guffey, Glass, Lee and Tunnell (George and Wagner voted by proxy).

Against the motion—Senators Gillette, Clark, Johnson of California, Capper, La Follette, Vandenberg, White, Shipstead and Nye.

Senator Clark, (Democrat), of Missouri then moved that no hearings be held if they were not to be public. His motion was rejected 14 to 7. On this vote, White and Gillette shifted to the majority.

La Follette, Clark and other opponents of the bill left the committee room complaining that "gag rule" was being invoked. Senator Danaher (Republican), of Connecticut, took up the protest in a sharp clash with Chairman Connally on the floor.

Connally told the Senate closed hearings were asked "because there are those people in the country who would like to embarrass Cabinet officers" and the present crucial international situation "is no time to harass and annoy and cross-examine and heckle members of the Cabinet who do not desire to talk publicly."

If hearings were open, Connally said they would be used as a sounding board for some people "to parade their political opinions, their private prejudices and their exalted ego."

"They want to cuss Woodrow Wilson for what he did 20 years ago," said Connally. "They want to give F. D. a kick in the pants."

A bitter personal exchange developed between Connally and Danaher after Connally accused the Connecticut Senator of "prying into everything." Danaher later took the floor to accuse Connally of "police court tactics" and "a caustic, mocking, jeering" attitude.

In midafternoon, Senator Lee took the floor in an attack on "isolationists who have done all they can to tear down the defense program which offers our only chance of stopping short of war."

"They are doing it by a slow-down process," said Lee. "They want a week of hearings on this bill. They want another chance to rip the country wide open on a question that has already been decided."

Lee mentioned by name Charles A. Lindbergh and Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, and meetings he said the two sponsored in Oklahoma.

"What is the result of everyone of those meetings if it isn't to forge weapons for Hitler?" Lee said. "Who are they helping? There is but one answer—Hitler."

Unchanged Aid Bill Passes Subcommittee

The Administration's $5,985,000,000 second lend-lease appropriation yesterday was approved by a Senate Appropriations subcommittee without a single change.

The large outlay, passed ten days ago by the House, today will be submitted to the full Senate Appropriation Committee, and sped to the Senate floor tomorrow.

The bill, bringing total lend-lease appropriations to $12,895,000,000, earmarks funds for maintaining and speeding the flow of planes, tanks, guns, munitions and foods to nations whose defense "is vital to the defense of the United States."

No effort was made in the subcommittee to attach limiting amendments barring aid to Russia, and leaders said any such attempt in the Senate will be defeated, as it was in the House.

Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, chairman of the subcommittee, disclosed only that the $5,985,000,000 appropriation was adopted without change, subject to full committee approval.

He declined to discuss subcommittee changes in additional deficiency appropriations carried in the bill.

Stressing the need of prompt passage of the full lend-lease outlay, if the Government is to contract ahead for needed aid supplies, leaders are pressing for final approval by the Senate this week. This would clear the way for debate next week on the bill for arming ships.

'Off-the-Record' Creator Joins Defense Cartoonists

'ON THE RECORD' FOR DEFENSE—Ed Reed, who draws "Off the Record" for The Post, yesterday was enlisted to promote the sales of defense savings stamps and bonds. Eugene W. Sloan, executive director of the Treasury's defense savings staff, came over to The Post yesterday to watch Reed work on a cartoon reminding readers to buy stamps and bonds.

Ed Reed, nomad creator of the daily Post cartoon, "Off the Record," yesterday joined the ranks of funny-page men promoting the sale of defense savings stamps and bonds. Operating temporarily from the offices of The Post, he was visited by Treasury savings staff officials who gave approval to a cartoon, scheduled to appear a month hence, reminding readers via an illustrated gag to buy stamps and bonds. More of them are planned.

Reed is a traveling man. Though making his official headquarters in Des Moines, Iowa, he actually produces his cartoons from all over the country. Traveling from city to city, he finds, helps his inspiration, sometimes sorely taxed by the task of having to be funny at the rate of 12 cartoons a week.

For instance, on a recent visit in Boston, he witnessed a battleship launching which promptly inspired a battleship launching gag. The constant shift of situations, scenes and people make it easier to turn up new material, he says.

As a matter of fact, the whole national defense consciousness has been a boon to the cartoonist, Reed admits. The Army camp, service men on leave, Army and Navy rookies, and so on, have opened a whole new field of humor, he adds, estimating that it is now furnishing him with about one quarter of his material.

The 35-year-old cartoonist has been turning out "Off the Record" for seven years now, and previous to that was engaged in advertising layout work in Dallas, Tex.

A strange sense of humor is indicated by the fact that two summers ago Reed selected Washington as his summer resort. However, he confesses that it go too hot here, and he was forced to seek cooler climes in Louisville, Ky.

Fascists Ridicule Long's Talk

By the Associated Press

Rome, Oct. 20.—Fascists declared today that the idea of a German attack on Italy was ridiculous and said the hint of such by Breckinridge Long, United States Assistant Secretary of State, was nothing but propaganda.

They said Long's Sunday broadcast asserting that Germany was asking for one million Italian troops, perhaps to make a German attack on Italy easier, failed to comprehend "the bond of alliance and ideals between the two nations." The broadcast was beamed toward Italy.

One spokesman said it was the "usual song and dance about Italy being in the hands of the Germans," and that in addition it sought to give the impression that the Germans are running short of man power and that the Italians, although "no good for fighting," could be used for occupying territory.

Virginio Gayda, authoritative journalist, wanted to know why the British did not send a landing party if they believed the "fable of a million Italian men destined for Russia, France and Yugoslavia" and of Italy "preparing to empty herself of fighting men."

Recent Italian accounts said that Italian troops were being sent to fight in Russia, occupy territory behind German lines, and that other forces were keeping order in Croatia, Montenegro and Greece.

At the time it was said more Italians had answered the call to arms and that Hitler had been promised many more troops.

Military experts said, however, that because of Italy's limited supplies it would be up to Germany to equip the men for cold winter campaigning.

Gayda said it was true that Italy had furnished some surplus foodstuffs to Germany and had sent men and arms to the English Channel, but that Germany in return had supplied Italy with coal and raw materials and sent forces to the Mediterranean.

(Authoritative Berlin quarters also resentfully attacked Long's broadcast and declared it was a blow below the belt to intimate Germany and Italy ever would have a falling out.)

("Read German history and you will find no instance where the Reich ever stabbed a friend in the back," said a German spokesman, referring to Long's assertion that Italians were wondering if their country was not to become "another Russia."

(This source said it was noteworthy that the speech of Long, a former Ambassador to Italy, followed so closely the return to Washington of the present Ambassador, William C. Phillips.)

Meanwhile, Lugi Fontanelli, editor of Lavoro Fascista, said in a periodical for the working class that the war would be "hard and long."

Services Held For Rep. Connery; House Adjourns

The House adjourned yesterday in tribute to Representative Lawrence J. Connery (Democrat), of Massachusetts, who died of a heart attack Sunday at his home, 533 Norwood Street, Arlington, Va.

Twenty Representatives paid their final respects to the 46-year-old Massachusetts Congressman who succeeded his brother, William P. Connery, jr., in office in 1937 after the latter's death.

Representative John W. McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, House majority leader, termed Representative Connery's life "an example for all to follow." He lauded his service "to country, in peace and war."

Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, House minority leader, said that Representative Connery's death was a "loss to both thec ountry and his State." He said he "was devoted to the workers of the United States."

Prior to the House session yesterday funeral services for Representative Connery were held by Post No. 17 of the Irish War Veterans of the District. His body was returned to his home in Lynn, Mass., a few minutes after the House adjourned.

William Schwartz Funeral Set For Tomorrow

Funeral services for William Schwartz, 58, who died in Alexandria Sunday following an illness of several months, will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Alexandria. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

A native of Austria, Mr. Schwartz came to this country as a youth, and for many years he was engaged in the bakery business in Alexandria before retiring several years ago due to ill health. He resided at 114 South Fayette Street.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Julia Schwartz; two sons, William J., and Robert J., both of whom are members of the Alexandria police department; two daughters, Mrs. Dorothy M. Eddington and Miss Julia Schwartz, both of Alexandria, and a sister, Miss Bertha Schwartz, of Washington.

INSTALMENT IX

(January-March, 1940)

SHIRER

BERLIN, January 3, 1940—The press is beginning to harp about "Britain's aggressive designs in Scandinavia." Hitler, we hear, has told the army, navy, and air force to rush plans for heading off the Allies in Scandinavia, should they go in there to help Finland against Russia. The army and navy are very pro-Finnish, but realize they must protect their trade routes to the Swedish iron ore fields. If Germany loses these, she is sunk.

BERLIN, January 9—Harry C., probably the best-informed man we have in the Moscow Embassy, passed through today. The Russians, he says, have hopelessly bungled the attack on Finland. A hundred thousand casualties already, the hospitals in Leningrad and the north jammed with wounded. But they are the lucky ones because thousands of lightly wounded died of cold and exposure. Harry says everyone in Moscow, from Stalin down, thought the Red army would be in Helsinki a week after the attack started. They were so sure that they timed an attack on Bessarabia for December 6, and only called it off at the last minute.

BERLIN, January 11—Cold. Fifteen degrees below zero centigrade outside my window. Half the population freezing in their homes and offices and workshops because there's no coal. I'm surprised the Nazis are letting the situation become so serious. Nothing like continual cold to lower your morale.

Hitler is back in town and last night at the Chancellery, I hear, he and Goering lambasted the big industrialists, who had been hurriedly convoked from the Rhineland, for being slack. These great tycoons, who made it possible with their money for Hitler to climb to power, sat there, I'm told, with red faces and never dared utter a peep.

Hitler also saw the military yesterday and today and there is talk about a big push in the spring. The army, according to my spies, is still against an offensive on the Maginot Line despite party pressure for it. Will the Germans try to go through Holland, as many think? They want air bases on the Dutch coast for the take-off against Britain. Also fantastic talk here of an invasion of England.

AMSTERDAM, January 18—Here for a few days. The Dutch still lead the good life. The food they consume as to both quantity and quality is fantastic. They dine and dance and go to church and skate on canals and tend their businesses. And they are blind—oh, so blind—to the dangers that confront them.

The queen, they say, stubbornly refuses to allow staff talks with the Allies, or even with the Belgians. In the meantime, as I could observe when I crossed the border, the Germans pile up their forces and supplies on the Dutch frontier. If and when they move, there will be no time for staff talks with the Allies. The Dutch tell you that if they even whisper to the Allies about joint defense plans, Hitler will consider that an excuse to walk in. As though Hitler will ever want for an excuse if he really decides to walk in.

BERLIN, January 24—I think Percival W., a retired American businessman of German parentage who has spent most of his life in this country, sees something I've been trying to get straight.

Said he: "For Germans a thing is right, ethical, honorable, if it squares with the tradition of what a German thinks a German should do; or if it advances the interests of Germanism or Germany. But the Germans have no abstract idea of ethics, or honor, or right conduct." He gave a pretty illustration. A German friend said to him: "Isn't it terrible what the Finns are doing, taking on Russia?" When Mr. W. remonstrated that, after all, the Finns were only doing what you would expect all decent Germans to do if they got in the same fix, his friend retorted: "But Russia is Germany's friend."

In other words, for a German to defend his country's liberty and independence is right. For a Finn to do the same is wrong, because it disturbs Germany's relations with Russia. The abstract idea there is missing in the German mentality.

That probably explains the Germans' complete lack of regard or sympathy for the plight of the Poles or Czechs. What the Germans are doing to these people—murdering them, for one thing—is right because the Germans are doing it.

Mr. W. tells me he was in Germany until shortly before we entered the war in 1917 and that until the winter of 1916-17 there was no suffering among the civilian population at all. He says the present rations and shortages are about the same as Germany experienced in the third year of the World War. He is sure things cannot go on as at present, with the front quiet and nothing but hardship. "What the Germans must have" he said, "are a lot of quick victories."

BERLIN, February 25—X told me a fantastic story today. He claims a plan is afoot to hide S. S. shock troops in the bottom of a lot of freighters, have them put in at ports in Scandinavia, Belgium and Africa, and seize the places. I don't get the point. Even if they got into the ports, which is doubtful, how could they hold them? I suspect this story is a plant and that the Nazis would like us to put it out as part of their nerve war. I shan't.

BERLIN, March 1—The offensive seems imminent. Troop trains pouring through Berlin every day west-bound. All air-wardens have been warned to be ready for duty after March 15.

One hears—you never know here—of big troop concentrations against Holland. From what I saw in the Netherlands, the Dutch will be easy pickings for the Germans. Their army is miserable. Their famous defensive water line is of doubtful worth. Switzerland will be tougher to crack and a doubt if the Germans will try.

BERLIN, March 13—In Moscow last night peace was made between Russia and Finland. It is a very hard peace for Finland and in Helsinki today, according to the B. B. C., the flags are at half mast.

BERLIN, March 17—Much excitement on this Palm Sunday in official quarters over a war communique claiming that the Luftwaffe hit and damaged three British battleships in Scapa Flow last night.

BERLIN, March 18—For 2½ hours this morning, while a snowstorm raged, Hitler and Mussolini conferred at the Brenner. We opine Hitler wanted to make sure of the Duce before embarking on his spring plans, whatever they are.

BERLIN March 19—John Chapman, foreign editor of Business Week, has just come up from the Balkans and Italy. He had some good dope. He doubts that Italy will go into the war. So do I. Italy can be blockaded. John said he saw Petain in Madrid. The old man said: "I pray that the Germans try to break through the Maginot Line. It can be broken through—at a cost. But let them infiltrate through. I'd like to be in command of the Allied army then."

BERLIN, March 20—Last night the British answered for the bombing of Scapa Flow by strafing the German seaplane bases on the island of Sylt for nearly seven hours. As usual, the high command claims no damage was done. The British, according to the B. B. C., did a lot. At noon the government offered to fly us up to see for ourselves, then called it off.

BERLIN, March 21—They took the American correspondents up to Sylt after all today but I was not invited. They telephoned Berlin tonight that they had not seen much damage at the chief seaplane base at Hoernum, which was the only one they were shown—a fact I pointed out in my broadcast tonight. The Nazi press has been ordered to make a terrific play tomorrow morning of the reports of these American correspondents.

BERLIN, March 22—Induced Irwin, of N. B. C., also to point out that the American correspondents were not shown all of Sylt. This afternoon the high command was very angry with me for having mentioned this.

(Later.)—Radio people called up. They will fly Irwin and me to Sylt tomorrow to inspect the northern part of the island.

BERLIN, March 23—At midnight last night the R. R. G. phoned to say our trip to Sylt could not be arranged after all. What did the British do on the northern end of the island that the Luftwaffe does not want Irwin and me to see?

British Labor Leader and M. P. Finds U. S. Is 'Supplying the Tools' to 'Finish the Job'

BRITON IS GUEST AT LUNCHEON—George A. Isaacs, British labor leader and member of Parliament, who was invited to this country by OPM to "look, listen and learn," was honored yesterday by Washington printing union officials at a luncheon in the Carlton Hotel. Pictured there were (from left) Louis Lopez, president of Printing Pressman's Union No. 1; Cornelius S. Ryan, president of Newspaper Pressmen's Union No. 6; George A. Isaacs, and Eugene Meyer, editor and publisher of The Post

George A. Asaacs, a Cockney labor leader, who is also a member of the British Parliament, said here yesterday that a month-long look at American industry in action had convinced him that "Freedom is going to ring again."

Freedom's going to ring again because America is doing what Churchill asked, giving us the tools," he said. "And we'll finish the job."

Isaacs, who is president of the British Printing and Kindred Trades Federation, and Will Lawther, who is leader of 650,000 British miners in the Mine Workers Federation of Great Britain, were guests of Washington printing union officials at a luncheon in the Carlton.

Both are members of a British Industrial Mission of eight men, representing British labor and British industry, invited to this country by the Office of Production Management "to look, to listen and to learn."

Wishes Hess Could Have Come

"We have looked, we have listened, and we have learnd a lot," Isaacs said, "and in England we shall become teachers, to tell them they can look forward with faith and hope that the tools are coming.

And Lawther said he wished they could have brought Rudolf Hess along with them. The latter, said Lawther, would have had to tell Hitler:

"Brother, you've made a tremendously big mistake."

Both Isaacs and Lawther voiced a quiet, friendly British determination to beat Hitler.

"If we get in the spring all we see coming here, then he (Hitler) is going to have a real summer," said Isaacs.

"The word defeat is not in our vocabulary," said Lawther.

Isaacs challenged the reported petition of British shop stewards for immediate invasion of the continent, and said "we believe that, about invasion, Winston Churchill knows best."

"When the time comes for invasion, there will be invasion," he said.

A Voluntary Policy

He pointed out that the British policy of no strikes was one that the laboring groups and employers had prepared and taken to the government, not one forced on the laborers by the government.

"It's a matter of pride to settle things among ourselves," he said.

"All the organizations in the production of munitions and war materials have agreed to set aside the conditions for which they had fought for years, and the only guarantee is the word of the employers that these conditions will be returned at the end of the war.

"We have had many merry fights in the past, we shall have more merry fights, but one thing we have learned is that our employers keep their word," he stated.

Isaacs said that there had been minor work stoppages in England, "but they have been set right." Some of the stoppages were the work of Communists in the labor movement, some the work of employers, because "there are fools on both sides," he said.

Since the Russian war began, he said, the Communists in Britain had shifted "in a twinkle of an eye" from calling the war an imperialist war to a "holy crusade."

High Praise for the Women.

"Now they're telling the laborers to get on wi' their work."

Isaacs had high praise for the women of London—they can no longer get fish and chips for their husbands, but these "wonderful women make their meals up somehow," he reported.

He praised, too, the American women who are driving ambulances in London, and the women in this country who are helping deliver bundles of clothing and other articles to Britain.

"There's no giving 'way," he said. "Everybody's doing something."

Isaacs told reporters before the luncheon that "I'm a Cockney and proud of it." Eldest of ten children, he left school when he was 12 to help his father and, at 26, was general secretary of the National Society of Operative Printers and assistants, a position he still holds. Now 58, he has served in Parliament at intervals since 1923.

Lawther is 52 and a resident of Durham. Their tour of American plants started in Washington a month ago and extended to the West Coast. They expected to meet other members of the mission in New York this week, and visit Canada briefly before returning to England.

Louis Lopez Presides

Chairman of the luncheon meeting was Louis Lopez, president of Printing Pressmen's Union No. 1. Others whose organizations helped sponsor the luncheon were Cornelius S. Ryan, president of Newspaper Pressmen's Union, No. 5, and John E. Eagleston, president of Press Assistants' Union, No. 42.

Among other guests were Eugene Meyer, editor and publisher of The Post; Sam Kauffman, business manager of the Evening Star; Thomas Weir, production manager of The Post; William Shelton, business manager of the Times Herald; Earl Baker, publisher of the Daily News.

John DeViny, deputy public printer; Clark Long, assistant director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing; William Rodgers and George F. Todd, of the British Embassy counselor's staff, and other labor union officials of Washington and Baltimore also attended.

Army Lacks Ammunition, Thomas Declares

By The Associated Press

Representative Thomas (Republican (New Jersey), asserted yesterday that the United States ammunition stocks were insufficient to supply the Army for one week, if it were engaged in fighting on a scale comparable to present Russo-German operations.

Sabotage, strikes and other work stoppages caused by labor disputes, he told newsmen, have slowed up production to such an extent that ammunition on hand amounts to only about 2 per cent of a year's defense requirements.

He added that he had confidential information that the War Department had underestimated the time needed for adequate expansion of antiaircraft defenses and hence "not a city in the United States is protected from enemy air attack."

Consequently, he said, "American cities along the Atlantic seaboard must necessarily expect token air raids if our relations with Germany continue to grow worse."

With the sole exception of the Panama Canal, Thomas said, coast defenses were antiquated and had been weakened by transfer of artillery to Western Hemisphere bases of continental United States.

He conceded that "our Navy is already the world's most powerful, the air force is expanding rapidly, our pilots are probably of the best, our standing army is seasoned and well trained." But in view of the ammunition supply shortage, he said, an American expeditionary force now would be "just plain suicide."

"Irrespective of who calls strikes, the Government must crack down and put defense above all else," said the New Jerseyite, who is a member of the Dies Committee Investigating Un-American Activities. "Labor unions must clean house of leaders who cause strikes. I think that when a strike is called now the Government should step in and, if necessary, send in troops to see that the men are permitted to work at their machines."

Gulf Storm Kills Baby in Florida

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 20 (AP).—A small tropical storm killed an infant as it swept inland today and whirled northward from Cedar Keys with swiftly fading force.

The six-week-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Seiler died and the Seilers were injured when tornadic winds demolished their house near Ocala. The couple found the baby had been hurled from its basket into bushes 100 feet from the house.

Armistice Parades

Plans to hold three parades in Montgomery County, Md., on Armistice day, November 11, under the sponsorship of the American Legion council of Montgomery County, were announced yesterday by George B. Kissinger, president, will speak.

Mission to Buy Goods in Portugal For Vatican City

Vatican City, Oct. 20 (AP).—A Vatican news service said today that three officials of the papal court had gone to Portugal to buy clothing and, possibly, food supplies for Vatican City's 700 inhabitants as a result of rationing in Italy.

Members of the delegation were said to be Marchese Carlo Pacelli, Pope Pius' nephew and consular general of Vatican City; Enrico Galeazzie, chief of economic services and former Knights of Columbus representative at the Vatican, and Adolfo Soletti, chief of the merchandizing section.

They were expected to buy chiefly cloth for clothing and leather for shoes with the possibility that the Vatican may establish its own tailoring and shoemaking shops.

McNutt Has Plan To Federalize Jobless Benefits

By the Associated Press

Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security administrator, said yesterday legislation to federalize unemployment compensation systems in the States had been prepared and would be introduced in Congress after President Roosevelt recommended the change.

Back from a visit in Ohio, McNutt said he did not know when the President would send his message to Congress.

"No comment at all," was his answer to criticism of the program by H. C. Atkinson, director of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

Atkinson asserted at Columbus, "the Social Security Board is using whatever excuse seems handiest in each State to seize control of State administrative operations."

He criticized "attempts to federalize the 51 States and territorial systems and illegally seize the $2,250,000,000 reserve supposedly on deposit in the Treasury to the credit of these systems."

Tires that Laugh at Bullets

AMERICA'S new motorized forces roll on tires equipped with bullet-puncture-sealing Goodyear tubes that will keep on going without requiring change after being riddled by gunfire. These astonishing tubes prevent flats in action—enable combat cars to reach objectives on schedule—prevent snarl-ups in supply trains. They are another of Goodyear's many contributions to the nation's defense.

Steel Union Suspends 7 More in Strike

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Oct. 20.—Seven more men were suspended today by the Steel Workers Organizing Committee (C. I. O.) for calling an unauthorized strike at the Great Lakes Steel Corporation as efforts were continued to reopen the plant.

In announcing the suspensions, bringing the number to 16, Orval Kincaid, Detroit director of the S. W. O. C., disclosed he had asked the Federal Bureau of Investigation to investigate the background of the strike leaders.

Government and union officials have denounced the strike, called last Wednesday midnight by workers dissatisfied with wage increases granted by the company, and Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey, in urging employes to return to work, declared he had "to look for a more sinister purpose—sabotage" behind the work stoppage.

4000 Alabama Coal Miners Walk Out

By the Associated Press

About 4000 Alabama coal miners walked out yesterday, others talked of joining them, and the railroad operating unions refused to arbitrate a wage dispute.

Miners at the Sayreton mine of the Republic Steel Corporation initiated the work stoppage in the Alabama coal pits which supply fuel for important steel and iron plants. Workers in five other mines joined them.

Sources close to the United Mine Workers (C. I. O.) predicted 23,000 miners would be out soon unless a contract was reached with mine operators. Negotiations for a contract have been under way for six months, and the dispute now is before the Defense Mediation Board, which is expected to make recommendations this week.

The miners' demands include an additional 40 cents a day and vacations with pay. The base pay for a seven-hour day was raised $1, to $5.50, last May.

President Roosevelt's special fact finding board proposed arbitration of the railroad wage dispute. Arbitration means the disputing parties agree in advance to accept whatever recommendations the arbitrator may make.

The railroads agreed, but the five big operating unions, with 360,000 members, declined. Thus the unions reserved their right to strike if dissatisfied with the recommendations of the President's board. Nonoperating unions are to advise the board today of their attitude toward arbitration of demands made by their 900,000 members.

Under law, a strike may not be made effective until 30 days after the fact-finding board has reported.

The operating unions are asking 30 per cent wage increases and the nonoperating brotherhoods, increases of 30 to 34 cents an hour.

In Washington, labor interest centered for the time being on the dispute between the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers and Air Associates, Inc., of Bendix, N. J., which makes airplane parts.

Both Referred to OPM

The DefenseMediation Board referred the case to hte Office of Production Management and President Roosevelt Sunday after Air Associates rejected the board's recommendations calling for immediate reemployment of strikers.

Another labor development yesterday was c tension of a jurisdictional strike of A. F. L. machinists at the Weldon Spring, Mo., TNT plant to a 100-million-dollar small-arms ammunition plant under construction at St. Louis. Construction officials said there would be no work stoppage.

Dr. West Receives Medal For Work as Boy Scout Chief

REWARDED FOR SERVICE TO CHILDREN—Dr. James E. West (left), head of the Boy Scouts of America, receives from George J. Hecht, publisher of Parents Magazine, the medal for "outstanding service to children." Presentation of the award at the Mayflower Hotel inaugurated "Better Parenthood Week"

Dr. James E. West, product of a Washington orphan asylum, received a medal yesterday for "outstanding service to children" as head of the Boy Scouts of America.

The award was made by Parents' Magazine through its publisher, George J. Hecht, at a luncheon in the Mayflower Hotel inaugurating "Better Parenthood Week."

Dr. Thomas H. Parran, surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, and Charles P. Taft, assistant coordinator of health, welfare and related defense activities, also spoke at the luncheon.

Hecht praised Dr. West for building "the greatest organization dedicated to the welfare of children that ever existed in America."

As chief Scout executive since 1910, Dr. West accomplished this despite the handicap of being left on the steps of an orphanage here when a baby and of a physical disability resulting from a childhood illness, said Hecht.

As a resident of Washington before going to New York to take over administration of the Boy Scouts of America, Dr. West was a militant child welfare advocate.

After working his way through high school and law school, he became a Government lawyer who devoted practically all of his spare time to promoting child welfare. Among reforms credited to his efforts are the creation of a juvenile court and of a commercial high school.

In his three decades as Boy Scout head, declared Hecht, "Dr. West's work has influenced the lives of more than ten million young Americans who are healthier and better citizens because of their participation in Scouting."

Dr. Parran called os parents of the Nation to abolish conditions which resulted in rejection for physical disability of 900,000 of the two million young men called to military service.

Taft drew a parallel between one cause of misbehavior among children—frustration—and the cause for wars among nations.

"We have a primary obligation in working for a peaceful world," he said, "to train our children to intelligent cooperation without leaving any frustration in them that lead them to take it out on somebody weaker."

Supreme Court Refuses Review Of SEC Case Libel Suit

By the Associated Press

The Supreme Court yesterday refused to review a decision by the Court of Appeals here which dismissed a one million dollar libel and slander suit brought by J. Edward Jones, New York oil operator, against Joseph P. Kennedy, James M. Landis, and George C. Mathews, former members of the Securities Commission, and Robert E. Healy, a present member. Jones claimed the four, while members of the commission, sought to "ruin" his business by challenging a registration statement e filed and by other action.

After previously declining a review, the court agreed to pass on a decision holding that the use of a voice-recording device to pick up conversations between three New York attorneys later convicted of conspiracy in a bankruptcy case did not constitute an unlawful search. The attorneys involved were Martin M. Goldman, Theodore Goldman and Jacob P. Schulman. Each was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment.

The court agreed to review complicated litigation growing out of the denial of American citizenship to Louis Weber of Los Angeles, described as an "indigent and aged alien."

Counsel for Weber asserted that the denial of citizenship by the Federal district court at Los Angeles was "upon the sole ground," of "acceptance of relief and likelihood of remaining a public charge."

The justice department, however, said the Ninth Federal Circuit Court held on appeal that the district court had based its denial of citizenship upon the ground that Weber had not been attached to the principles of the Constitution.

"The statutes," the Justice Department said in agreeing to review, "contain nothing to suggest that age, or indigency, or a desire for an old age pension, disqualifies one from citizenship."

The Supreme Court denied permission to Louisiana to institute proceedings before the tribunal seeking to recover more than one million dollars from Abraham L. Shushan, onetime lieutenant of Huey P. Long, and others on account of alleged fraud and bribery in connection with the construction of a New Orleans airport.

The court's announcement said:

"Leave to file the complaint is denied for want of jurisdiction, it appearing that one of the named parties defendant is a citizen of Louisiana."

Daugherty Estate Under $500,000

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 20 (AP).—An estate estimated at "somewhat less" than $500,000" was left by Harry M. Daugherty, Attorney General in President Harding's Cabinet, who died October 12.

The estimate was made today by his attorney, Lyle M. Sandies, as the Daugherty will was filed for probate. The will sets up a trust fund from which a daughter, Mrs. Emily Rarey, will receive one-half the income or at least $4,000 a year. Other relatives and several Ohio churches also were named beneficiaries.

German Bomber Inspects U. S. Liner 200 Miles at Sea

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 20 (AP).—The master of the American export liner Excalibur reported today that a four-motored German bomber twice inspected his vessel at a low altitude on October 11 when he was about 200 miles west of Lisbon.

CAPT. S. N. GROVES

The Excalibur arrived with 125 passengers, of whom 56 were American citizens.

The master, Capt. S. N. Groves, said his passengers were frightened when the bomber flew so low that he could easily see the pilot and the gunners at their posts. He said the bomber's crew seemed particularly interested in a weather shack on the deck, set up to make observations for the American export airlines and it was his opinion they might have thought the shack concealed a gun.

The third junior officer, John Hewston, who was on watch, said the bomber dropped suddenly over the ship out of a rain squall.

Capt. Groves said the Excalibur passed a British warship about an hour before the bomber appeared.

Passengers said life-boat drill later that day was exceptionally well-attended.

Snite celebrated his twenty-seventh birthday anniversary from his "iron lung" at Chicago in 1937

'Boiler Kid' Now Family Man After Five Years in 'Iron Lung'

Miami Beach, Fla., Oct. 14.—Fred B. Snite, jr., still cheery after more than five years of artificial breathing assistance, is pursuing as nearly a normal existence as is possible for a chronic invalid.

The happily married father of a year-old daughter has been partially released from the imprisonment on which his life depended.

With the aid of a lightweight respirator which encases only his chest, he is able to sit outside in the sunlight, even walk a little. Snite has improved to the extent that he can breath for more than half-hour at times without the aid of a respirator.

The famed self-styled "Boiler Kid" still takes avid interest in sports, especially the football team of his alma mater, Notre Dame. While traveling here last week Snite arranged to hear a play-by-play account of the Notre Dame-Georgia Tech game on his train.

This is his fifth season at the winter home of his father, a Chicago small loan financier. While here he frequently watches football games and horse races from a specially built automobile trailer. Occasionally Snite visits the drive-in movie.

Snite was stricken with infantile paralysis April 1, 1936, a few weeks before his twenty-sixth birthday, at Peiping, China.

In June, 1937, an audacious journey from China to Chicago was made after plans arranged in minute detail. Snite was accompanied by a staff of 25 Chinese orderlies, nurses and technicians.

On August 10, 1939, Snite married Miss Teressa Larkin, of Dayton, Ohio, the sister of a Notre Dame chum.

A daughter was born to them September 22, 1940, in Chicago.

Snite was pictured outside the "iron lung" for the first time in 1939. He posed with his wife. Portable respirator made this possible.

1. 1938—In October, 1938, Fred B. Snite, jr., was freed from 900-pound "iron lung" in which he had to lie prone for two years. With the aid of a new type chest respirator, Snite was able to sit up

2. 1939—On August 10, 1939, the courageous young man who gave himself the name, "Boiler Kid," was married to Teresa Larkin, the Dayton, Ohio, girl who had long stood by the side of the paralysis sufferer

3. 1941—Snite, his wife and year-old daughter are in Florida to spend the winter season. They were pictured last week at their residence in Miami Beach

D. C. Praised For Its Part In Raid Tests

Washington yesterday received high praise from Federal defense officials on its report of participation in the recent air-raid warning tests.

The Districts report was the first to reach Col. Clifton Lisle, acting director of the third civilian defense region in Baltimore, and he immediately communicated congratulations to Col. Lemuel Bolles, executive director of the District Defense Council.

Col. Bolles, in turn, gave all credit to Herbert Friede, superintendent of the fire alarm system, who was in direct charge of the air raid precaution activities here.

"This is real praise," said Col. Bolles, "and Mr. Friede is entitled to great credit."

Col. Bolles last night was completing plans for a series of city-wide mass meetings Saturday night to establish an air raid warden service here.

Previously, the local civilian defense head has charged that Washington is lagging far behind other communities in this important phase of municipal defense.

The Saturday meetings will be held under sponsorship of the Defense Council, Federation of Citizens Associations and Federation of Civic (Negro) Associations.

Each civic group will be asked to set up air raid warden systems in its own community and special training programs are planned.

Tells House Group Canada and U. S. Are Not Comparable

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

The House Banking Committee yesterday was inferentially warned that because of differences in the economies of the two countries it might not be advisable for the United States to follow the lead of Canada in restraining wage increases in conjunction with ceiling controls of price and service cost levels.

By laying before the committee detailed statements covering the status of employment and production in the Dominion, Dr. Isador Lubin, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, made it clear that he disagrees with Representative Gore (Democrat), Tennessee, and some other committee members, that the Canadian move is proof of the "futility" of any inflation control plan that does not place restraints on wages as well as prices.

Dr. Lubin made his final appearance as a price control witness after the committee decided to close hearings Friday and to start drafting legislation in executive sessions beginning next Tuesday morning.

Wolcott Expects Substitute

Meanwhile, Representative Wolcott (Republican), of Michigan chairman of a special Republican price control committee, predicted that a majority of the minority members of the House would oppose a ceiling for wages, as established in the over-all control bill sponsored by Gore.

Wolcott declared he believed the committee, which he expected to call together in a few days, would submit a substitute for both the Gore and Administration bills.

Wolcott and a considerable body of Republicans favor substitution of a price control board for the administrator provided in the Administration bill. Many also are opposed to licensing provisions of the measure.

Representative Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, committee chairman, told reporters he hoped to be able to report a price-control bill to the House next week, but added:

"I missed my phophecy so much on the length of the hearings that I dislike to make another prediction."

The committee started hearings on the legislation August 4. In the time remaining before close of hearings Friday, it will hear Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard and Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones. Wickard is scheduled to start his testimony at 10 a. m. today.

Canada, Dr. Lubin told the committee, has attained almost full employment of workers and production facilities and has, in fact, attempted to increase the labor supply by reaching out for workers that in ordinary times are not wage earners.

Nearly one-half of Canadian production facilities are making war goods while the country is faced with the problem of producing consumers' goods formerly purchased in the United States, Dr. Lubin said.

Wage Ceiling "Not New"

The statistician then pointed out that in deciding to prohibit wage increases except with government permission Canada "has done nothing radically new." He explained that the new wage policy is an extension to nondefense industries of controls already in force in war industries.

While observing that the United States is not producing at the full capacity of either the Nation's industrial plant or its labor supply, Lubin estimated that addition of three million workers will be required to meet production schedules in the next 12 months.

In all of Canada, Dr. Lubin declared, only 47,000 are registered as unemployed and last June 3½ per cent of the country's trade union members were without work.

He demonstrated the extent of the Canadian inflation by testifying that the general level of wholesale prices in the Dominion has risen 27 per cent while the general cost of living has gone up 12 per cent.

Asked earlier in the hearing by Representative Dewey (Republican), of Illinois, how and when it will possible for America to achieve an armistice in labor controversies, Dr. Lubin replied:

"Only when there is an appreciation by America that the freedom of the American people is being threatened. They don't know it yet. Once we realize what we're up against, we will make sacrifices. No one is making sacrifices except those who can't help making them (because of priorities, chiefly).

"I hate to think that our people can't be made to realize the problem without going to war."

Crete a Costly Lesson to Nazis, U. S. Aide Says

By the Associated Press

A suggestion that Crete taught the Germans a costly lesson on how not to invade England was advanced yesterday by an American Army parachute officer.

Lieut. John E. Minter, jr., a member of the pioneer 501st Parachute Battalion at Fort Benning, Ga., estimated that upward of 13,000 Nazi parachutists were dropped on the Greek island, "apparently at random," and that a large proportion was wiped out.

"It was truly a pyrrhic victory," Lieut. Minter wrote in the Infantry Journal. "But in the long run it may have been a good investment, for the Nazi army cannot have failed to make radical changes in the plans for the projected invasion of England on the strength of the experiment."

Dropping parachute troops on a defended area, without previous effective steps to neutralize the defense, "is like pouring dishwater down the drain," Winter continued.

The Germans, he wrote, launched the attack by a promiscuous, and seemingly aimless and uncoordinated, dumping of parachute troops all over the island." Suggesting that they might have been experimenting with the idea of using parachutists as a substitute for artillery, he said they made a "pretty expensive substitute."

Aside from the desire to experiment in mass methods of air invasion, Winter said the reasons for the Crete attack were not yet clear. In British hands the island offered little threat to the Nazi forces in Greece as long as they maintained aerial superiority, he said, and it has not yet been used as a base to further the expected pincers movement on Suez.

Cocktail Party Here Dedicated To Beat Hitler

District Commissioner Guy Mason and Horsewoman Mary Elizabeth (Liz) Whitney played hosts yesterday at a cocktail party dedicated to the overthrow of Hitler.

Their services were enlisted by the Washington Chapter of Fight for Freedom, Inc., as substitutes for Burgess Meredith and Helen Hayes, who signed invitations to the affair at the Carlton Hotel but were unable to get there.

The party's object: To publicize the organization's show, "It's Fun to Be Free," to be staged November 4 at Uline's Arena.

"Hitler," declared Michael Straight, Washington editor of the New Republic and vice chairman of Fight for Freedom's Washington chapter, "has declared that confusion, fear and indecision are his weapons to defeat us.

"The Washington Chapter of Fight for Freedom and the stage, screen, radio and arts division will, I hope, play its part in ending the last traces of indecision, confusion and fear that exist among the American people."

Commented Commissioner Mason: "I am not in favor of immediate intervention in the war or for intervention at all if it can be avoided."

Straight assured him Fight for Freedom was not dedicated to intervention, but to support of the Administration foreign policy and countering of isolationist propaganda.

"Then I am 100 per cent for it," said Mason.

Said Mrs. Whitney: "I feel that the fight for freedom is on throughout the world and that it can be won only if all of us play our part in it."

in family homes for care or adoption and to prevent careless placement of babies without adequate consideration of the interests of the parents, the children and the adopting parents."

The Commissioners also pointed out that similar legislation already exists "in most of the States."

The suggested bill was prepared by a committee representing the Council of Social Agencies, the United States Children's Bureau and the Board of Public Welfare.

Efforts to obtain such legislation for Washington have been pending for more than a year.

Held in Port by Crisis, Ship Clears in Pacific

Manila (Tuesday), Oct. 21 (U.P.).—The United States Navy yesterday released an American-owned freighter flying the Panamanian flag which was ordered into port here during the weekend at the time of the Japanese cabinet crisis, it was learned today. The ship will proceed to an unrevealed destination.

There was no confirmation or denial of reports that normal American shipping activity in the Pacific is being resumed, but it was presumed the shipping situation was considered much easier now that Toyko's attitude has become clearer.

have got to have it.'"

"I thought he was serious this time," Warner said, "and I put through a voucher for $7,500. Then I telephoned my brother and told him that Bioff wanted the money and he had better send it out."

The balance of $12,500 arrived from New York and was paid to Bioff, the witness said.

Albert Warner said he discussed Bioff's demand with Samuel Carlisle, controller of the company, and instructed Carlisle to raise the money by padding executive expense accounts, adding to the cost of conventions and the exploitation of pictures.

Toward the end of May, the witness said, Bioff telephoned and asked, "Have you any money ready?"

"Yes, I have $10,000 ready—come over," Warner said he replied.

He said he left the money in an envelope with his secretary, and Bioff later went to the office and got it.

The same procedure was followed, he said, at the end of August, 1936, and at the end of December, 1936, when two payments of $10,000 each were made. He said in the middle of February, 1937, when Bioff telephoned to inquire whether he had more money ready:

"I was under the impression we had paid $50,000 and that our obligation to you was through," the witness said he told Bioff.

"Oh, no, you'll have to pay right along, $50,000 each year," he quoted Bioff as replying.

"Well, there's no other way out of it for me," he said he told Bioff, arranging for Bioff to call at his office that day, when a $15,000 payment was made.

Prettyman declared that of increases affecting 12,000 to 15,000 rental units since the emergency began, about 10,000 had come since March of this year.

The January 1 date was agreed on after Representative Russell withdrew his substitute motion.

Representative Joseph C. Baldwin (Republican), of New York, said "the Commissioners definitely should appoint the administrator, if you want the measure to be looked on with favor throughout the country. This measure is a kind of leader for the whole country."

He was seconded by Representative F. Edward Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana, who declared, "I, too, feel keenly about the necessity of local home rule."

Borders said, "Congress could extend the period of the bill's effectiveness if necessary." If the peak of the emergency has passed he said the act would tend to become ineffective near its termination date.

Chairman Jennings Randolph announced that the bill will probably be ready for legislation later this week. It will not be ready for District Day, which probably will be held today, however, he said.

Jury to Get New Evidence on Nazi Agents

Fresh evidence assembled by the special prosecutors of the Department of Justice propaganda squad will be presented to the special grand jury on German agents tomorrow.

Several witnesses who have not previously figured in the inquiry will be called before the 23 men and women appointed to ferret out Nazi propagandists.

Special Prosecutors William Power Maloney and Edward J. Hickey refused to name the witnesses they will shed additional light on in advance, but indicated that the activities linked to the German propaganda machine which, the grand jurors found, even used Congressional franks to distribute its material.

The grand jurors completed their regular tour of duty the first of the month, but were continued in an extraordinary capacity to complete their investigation. Between sessions, the jurors work at their regular callings, while the special prosecutors analyze evidence and interview witnesses to be taken before the grand jurors.

Clerk of the jury is Stanley Roderick Darcey, 41, 4500 Butterworth Place Northwest, who is assistant chief clerk at the Capital Transit Co. The poll clerk, Lester E. Purcell, 33, 1842 Fort Davis Street Southeast, is an inspector of electrical equipment.

Besides the officers, the grand jurors are: Morris Brody, 60, dry goods wholesaler, 758 Princeton Place Northwest; John Herbert Collier, 49, building contractor, 3725 Windom Place Northwest; James B. Elledge, 28, purchasing agent, 2616 University Place Northwest; Rufus P. Embrey, 56, salesman, 4027 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest; Mrs. Nettie Irene Etsler, 39, clerk, 247 Eighth Street Northeast; George Thomas Flaharty, 39, assistant foreman.

Also Mrs. Mildred G. Foote, 49, housewife, 3211 Northampton Street Northwest; Allan Russell Foster, 34, accountant, The Westchester; Mrs. Edna K. Gasch, 58, electrical contractor's associate, 1638 R Street Northwest; Norman C. Good, 39, photographer, 7613 Morningside Drive; Andrew Gough, 40, brewery foreman, 1430 Ives Place Southeast.

Also Roy Cicero Harbin, 47, accountant, 514 Oneida Place Northwest; Lawrence D. Jacobs, clerk, 3800 New Hampshire Avenue northwest; William G. Krupp, 38, tailor, 33 Adams Street Northwest; William H. Littleford, 62, waiter, 2421 Girard Place Northeast; George Edward May, 62, unemployed, 3108 Tennyson Place Northwest; John G. Reynolds, 59, salesman, 1533 Monroe Street Northwest.

Also Elmer A. Volland, 43, advertising man, 429 Rittenhouse Street Northwest; Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, 46, executive director, Washington Self-Help Exchange and president of the Board of Education, 5500 Thirty-third Street Northwest, and Charles L. the lend-lease measure last Friday. Representative Cochran's measure originally passed the House last August as a separate bill, and on August 15 was referred to the Senate Deficiency subcommittee.

The District's traffic toll rose to 74 yesterday, only five less than for all of 1940, when the sixth victim in ten days was fatally injured. Inspector Miller declared that at the present rate, the Capital's traffic fatalities would pass over 100 by the end of the year.

The accident prevention unit chief said that he had added five more motorcycle police to his force only yesterday, but there were neither more police nor motorcycles available for traffic duty.

Inspector Miller quoted the International Association of Police Chiefs as calculating that one-quarter of the total police force ought to be assigned to full-time traffic duty. But under present conditions, with the police department having inadequate personnel, only 13 per cent of the police are on traffic duty.

It is believed in police circles that at least 15 or 20 of the 100 men requested by Major Kelly would be assigned to the traffic prevention unit.

Price Ceiling

Canada's latest move to halt inflation calls for a type of ceiling over all prices that seems neither desirable nor administratively feasible for this country. The scheme is too comprehensive and too rigid for a country with ten times Canada's population and an economy infinitely more complex. Nevertheless Canada's vigorous efforts to curb rising costs of living and the half-hearted dilatory tactics of our legislators in dealing with the Administration's price-control bill present a contrast that Congress should take to heart. Every day brings further advances in living costs and adds to the pressure for higher wages and salaries.

Moreover, the patent unwillingness of both Congress and the Administration to adopt a really effective price-control measure embracing wages and farm products offers immediate encouragement to profiteering. The Canadian government has had the courage to insist that both wages and agricultural prices be stabilized as a means of protecting consumers. Accordingly no Canadian employer (with minor exceptions) may hereafter increase existing basic wage rates without government permission, though bonuses adjusted to cost-of-living indexes are to be paid in conformity with official rules.

As Mr. Mackenzie King says, it is "obvious that the prices of finished goods cannot be controlled successfully unless the cost of production is also controlled." Since wages are a large element in the cost of production, it follows inexorably that some method of holding wages in check is essential to keep prices down. Wage control is also imperative to prevent a continuous increase in labor's purchasing power that would absorb goods and services required for war and defense purposes. Canada's method of achieving her objective may not be suited to our particular needs, but Canada's forthright approach is worthy of emulation. What is chiefly important in our case is that our controls must not leave untouched the basic cost factors which so largely determine prices.

Nazi Morals

The various reports which have horrified Mrs. Roosevelt concerning the state of "Christian civilization" within Hitler's Reich afford an eloquent and sufficient commentary upon his holy war against atheistic Russia. The latest of these reports is a homily on patriotic duty attributed to Das Schwarze Korps, official organ of the S. S. boys. This journal declares that any unmarried Aryan German girl who "evades her highest duty"—i. e., of having a child by a German soldier—"is a traitor, just like a soldier deserting his flag." However, since even the absence of traitorous modesty or scruple in German womanhood cannot, of itself, assure a replenishment of cannon fodder to the state, the article concludes with the following exhortation: "S. S. men! Show you are ready not only to give your own life for your country but ready to present her with a new life before you go to your death." Minus rhetoric, this seems to mean that hereafter any Aryan girl is fair prey for any S. S. guard. Or, as Heinrich Himmler is said to have put it: "For pure-blooded German girls there exists a war duty outside of marriage and which has nothing to do with marriage."

One must note, to be sure, that the report of this article comes from Berne, via London. From this fact, as well as from the subject matter, it would normally be suspect. But then the official Nazi attitude toward sexual morals has already been well attested by reputable American correspondents. Indeed, it is implicit in many public statements by the Nazi hierarchs themselves. Nor is it at all probable that those extremists who perpetrated wholesale murders in the interest of race would balk at wholesale ravishments in the same cause. The report is therefore quite plausible.

The report will give rise for several ironic reflections. For example, under the familiar doctrine of "vae victis," the women of conquered populations have often been considered part of the spoils of war. But this, as far as we know, is the first time that a conquering nation has sought to make war booty of its own women. And whereas one of the very few scandals associated with Soviet Russia which turned out to have no basis in fact was that concerning the nationalization of women, such a charge in case of Germany is no longer too preposterous to be credible. Finally, those well-intentioned souls who have been so industriously spreading the eugenic gospel in America now have a sobering lesson in to what strange lengths their logic may lead.

Now Is The Time

The 21 casualties which occurred on the U. S. S. Kearny mark the beginning of the price we shall have to pay for our naval participation in the Battle of the Atlantic. There will be widespread sympathy for the victims and for the families of the missing. But, unless we are vastly mistaken, the news will put iron into the American resolution. We have determined to resist Hitler's dynamic threat to rule the Atlantic—a threat which has been underlined by the sinking of American and neutral vessels from Iceland to the South Atlantic. He has made our people "think in oceans," too. To the United States the maintenance of the Atlantic free of the swastika has become an insurance of survival as an independent Nation. This is what our people should keep in view when they read the sad news of the casualties on the U. S. S. Kearny.

It is abundantly clear to everybody not afflicted with acute myopia that the man who is seeking to drag this country into war is Hitler. He has said that his world and ours cannot live together. He is acting east and west and south of our Nation on that assumption. If our legislators did not believe that in Hitler's view America was the ultimate enemy, they would not have done any one of a dozen things since the war began. They would not have authorized the lend-lease program; they would not have appropriated gigantic sums for defense; they would not have authorized the turning of America into an armed camp. It is not the President who has taken all these and similar steps. Congress has taken them in response to the pressure of a people to whom the meaning of present events has become plain and obvious. They know in their marrow, even if they sometimes don't trust the evidence of their eyes, that the world is once again going through the travail of resistance against a revolutionary force which acknowledges no boundary but the ends of the earth. It is the barest common sense in such circumstances to meet such a force forehandedly. That is the American way. Any other is, as Senator Carter Glass put the matter, the way of "a nation of poltroons."

But first of all the Nation must show to the world a solid phalanx of unity. The winds are blowing too fiercely across both the Atlantic and the Pacific to afford anybody in this country any leisure for political differences which too many Americans have retained from the piping days of peace. There can never be any all-out effort on the part of the people as long as the spectacle exists on Capitol Hill of idle frittering with this world crisis. The country knows in its daily life that its involvement in the World War is direct and intimate. Neutrality in action has been cast into the same limbo to which our people consigned neutrality in thought when the war broke out. The reason is perfectly simple. The Neutrality Law simply did not work to keep us and our affairs isolated. Yet there are still scores of legislators who wish to cling to this carcass, who insist on perpetuating an inconsistency which does nothing but paralyze action and which advertises to our enemies a confusion of aim and a weakness in the political apparatus back of our preparedness. The absurdity of the spectacle is at last taking hold of some members of the Republican Party in the fresh effort to sweep away the ragged remains of the Neutrality Law. The casualties on the U. S. S. Kearny should rally to their support the members of both parties in the Senate so that a repealer could obtain the force of a signal and unmistakable demonstration of our national unity.

Wildcat Strike

James F. Dewey, conciliator for the Department of Labor, spoke advisedly when he referred to the wildcat strike in the Great Lakes Steel Corporation plant at Ecorse, Mich., as a case of sabotage. The company is almost wholly engaged in defense work. It has a contract with the Steel Workers Organizing Committee and there is no controversy between the company and union. Nor is there a fight between rival unions. Yet production was interrupted last week by the fourth wildcat strike in this plant during recent months. Apparently a recalcitrant minority of employes is attempting to thwart the will of the union, the employer and the Government.

Obstructionists of this sort are the worst enemies of organized labor in times of emergency. For their activities strike as viciously at collective bargaining as at national security. Only one proper response can be made to their anarchic tactics, and that is prompt dismissal for the trouble makers. Fortunately, that is precisely the action being taken in this case. Nine ringleaders of this unauthorized strike have been suspended by the S. W. O. C. and will thus probably lose their jobs. The Steel Workers are entitled to warm commendation for striking this blow for orderly collective bargaining. While the public is crying out for more responsible union leadership, the S. W. O. C. has demonstrated that it can act vigorously to protect its own interests as well as those of the Nation.

Cutting The Budget

The Joint Economy Committee recently set up by Congress will receive little aid and no encouragement at all from the Budget Bureau's report on the request for ways of cutting nondefense expenditures by one billion to two billion dollars. The order given the bureau, to be sure, was difficult. And conferences, hearings and consultations with departments would have been necessary to carry it out satisfactorily. All of these "normal budget-building practices," however, were lacking. So the results obtained cannot, in the nature of the case, offer very reliable guidance to economy-minded Congressmen. But, apart from such deficiencies, the report shows a complete lack of sympathy with the projected economy program. Its framers go out of their way to emphasize the "drastic" nature of the suggested reductions, and the allegedly unfortunate results of curtailing outlays for farm aid, public works and work relief by the suggested percentages.

Of course, economy always entails hardships and sacrifices. That is why legislators find it so difficult to cut appropriations. Unless money is actually being thrown away, any form of Government expenditure helps somebody or furthers some worthwhile cause. But the fact remains that the extent and variety of the activities a government can safely undertake are limited by its financial resources. If cost were no consideration, the Government would now be spending many more billions to make the American people happier and more comfortable. But cost is always a deterrent to unbridled spending, even in normal times, unless those in control are willing to risk financial collapse.

The need for economy in nondefense outlays is especially pressing at a time when we are compelled to spend countless billions to combat external dangers. It is not enough to point out obstacles to economies in peacetime activities. If subsidies and special benefits are cut to the bone, of course that will entail sacrifices. But such hardships must be faced to give us the military and economic strength we need to survive in this era of ruthless conquest. The fact that the Budget Bureau has passed over that necessity so lightly only throws upon Congress the greater obligation to face the facts without flinching. The Joint Economy Committee should press its economy explorations regardless of the cold water which those explorations have received from the Budget Bureau.

Invasion Cry

That no attempt has been made to divert Hitler with a landing force in the period since the German attack on Russia was launched has obviously been due to British official doubts as to the wisdom of such a diversion. Certainly a purely quixotic gesture leading to another and more disastrous Dunkerque or series of Dunkerques would not help the Russians. It might, moreover, seriously weaken Great Britain and make her more vulnerable to attack in the future. Nevertheless certain critics of British strategy in both Britain and this country will have nothing of such arguments. Thus factory stewards belonging to the National Council of Engineering and Allied Trades have passed a resolution demanding "the immediate opening of a second front" to aid Russia. It must be emphasized that these critics are speaking only for themselves. They are not speaking for all British labor, or even a considerable part of it. Indeed, the meeting at which this resolution was approved was officially banned by the Amalgamated Engineering Union executive council and frowned on by responsible labor leaders. More to the point was the resolution approved at the same meeting of shop stewards urging the speeding up of armaments production. Nothing would be gained, a good deal might be lost, if the British overextended themselves at this time, before their armed forces are sufficiently trained and equipped, before Britain possessed the vast tonnage that would be needed to supply a continental force, above all before Britain possessed undisputed command of the air over Europe's Atlantic coast. Heroic gestures win few battles. As Napoleon said, an army that cannot reinforce and supply itself is lost, and any such loss at this juncture might be fatal to the cause of victory.

SONNET

Lock up the spring-house. Let the flowers grow
Careless and whichway on every window sill.
I have heard voices under earth that know
Much wisdom from their sleep beneath the hill.

No misty willow by the urn may hide
Immortal scripture on the canceled tomb,
Whether the frugal friar lay there or the bride,
They both are peaceful in their narrow room.
For body only do I bid for rest,
My spirit was above the blades you cast.
And like the dead I lean most unimpressed
On stone that succors when the spirit passed.

I am not brave for I was ever free,
Or shall be now with my new livery.

Steps Toward War

For the last two years I have been hearing from Senators and Representatives that every measure the Administration has taken was "one more step toward war," yet we are still not at war.

I wish to ask these gentlemen how many more "steps toward war" are left us? What measures of the Administration do they consider as positively "steps toward war?" I for one stopped believing their nonsense after so many called "steps toward war" had been taken and nothing happened. These timid and rather provincial politicians reminded me of the saying in the Book of Proverbs:

The sluggard sayeth there is a lion in the way; a lion is in the streets.

If they sincerely love their country and not Hitler will they kindly leave the country alone and stop their confusion, especially after the country has repeatedly expressed its confidence not only in the President's foreign policy but also in his wise and conservative advisers.

Did they not accuse Mr. Roosevelt time and again of wanting to be a dictator. Now he has been nine years in office and I do not see any evidence of his dictatorship. I wish him to do one thing to stop these men who are playing in the hands of Hitler and causing confusion at a time when unity and singleness of purpose are sorely needed.

Retirement Pay

I see in your paper a lot about the raising of Government pay, but never a word about the forgotten man and woman, the retired who worked for long years for very small pay. Everything has gone up but the pensions. A lot of them never got a chance to save due to family burdens and now have to pay increased prices on a few dollars a week. ANNA MACK.

More Positive Stand

As the news from the war front comes in, it becomes more and more imperative that the United States take more firm and positive action. It becomes increasingly obvious that to talk of neutrality on our part is foolish and unrealistic. We are definitely not neutral and we cannot and must not cling to the vestiges of neutrality.

To talk of being neutral is like saying one will be neutral to disease in the midst of a raging epidemic. Hitler fascism, like the cancer of society that it is, has attacked and devastated Europe. We are not immune to the attack because of distance. We will be easy victims with our Nyes, Lindberghs, Wheelers and all the other domestic Fascists attempting to split us and hamper our national unity and our promised aid to Britain and the Soviet Union.

For Britain it is imperative that a western front be established. Never was the time more opportune, never was it more necessary. For the United States it is necessary to increase production and furnish the Soviets with all possible material assistance immediately, and one can say that on our part to send an A. E. F. now would be the best sort of preventive medicine.

The overwhelming majority of the people of this country know that this fight concerns them and want to crush Hitlerism. Let us not waste precious time merely talking and promising. Let us defend ourselves and all that we believe in by doing our fighting on the home industrial front and abroad now.

Wild Life In Takoma

Some years ago, when Takoma Park was in its infancy, it consisted mostly of a delightful wooded section, running wild in an attractive rustic manner, with wild flowers, birds, rabbits, squirrels, etc. In fact my father drove down Carroll Avenue when it was a road through the woods, in a two-horse outfit. That's how it was when we, who were almost pioneers, took up our abode in Takoma Park. I rambled through these beautiful woods during my childhood.

Takoma has grown considerably since my father's entrance. To be explicit, when my husband and I returned, after a two-year sojourn in Niagara Falls, we found exactly one house left vacant. Although we had previously purchased lots, we could not get water accommodations on that particular street. Our baby was born at my old home, amidst five or six boarders who came in to their meals. (Incidentally boarders are permissible.) I was in a delicate state and we needed a home. So we bought the one and only place we could get, a large old house filled already with roomers. Our dream of a lovely new home forgotten, for the time at least, we plunged into the rooming business, collecting our rents to help on our monthly payments, after putting together all we both had saved by years of hard work before our marriage. We made some improvements, and dreamed again—this time of a convenient and attractive real apartment house. This house has four floors, and it is difficult for one person to keep it clean all alone. When I had a small family on the different floors, each floor was kept looking neat and clean, and we were all happy together.

There are only four in our family. My daughter is now married. My son will soon be in the draft. The four of us were lost in this big house. What will my husband and I do alone? Our kind and benevolent neighbors want the wild life in Takoma to continue, and in spite of the people crowding into our city on account of defense, they will not tolerate the ghastly sight of more than one family coming out of one residence. They prefer the rural life. In fact, they object to anything that will make the scene of people coming and going. They refused to have a siding in Takoma Park, so that the trains from Union Station might use our town as an official stop. Therefore, if we are in a hurry to catch a train, we can either walk to Silver Spring (where a siding was welcomed) or we can grab a taxi, if we can find one. Isn't it lucky we don't have air raids, for if we did we would all have to go to Silver Spring for shelter, and our dead bodies would be strewn o'er the way.

Just suppose either my husband or I were to leave this world, what is the other one expected to do with the property for which we have worked so hard and so long to pay the price, the war price, of the property? Does anyone care whether we exist or not, as long as the birds, squirrels, etc., have their way?. It was my opinion 'God had given man dominion over these.'

Rule

An infallible fundamental rule regarding the freedom of religion, and other God-given freedoms, should be as follows:

When people believe in a God who is presumed to have the power of giving them freedom of religion anywhere, and other freedoms also, such as freedom from sickness and death, and those people do not receive such freedoms, either they worship a false God or they do not please their God sufficiently to merit the coveted reward.

Politics And Neutrality Revision

I am a Republican, but I am an American first. (Not, however, an American Firster.) As a Republican American I would like to submit a few remarks in support of the President's position on the neutrality bill.

The present situation is too serious to fool with. We are part of a world at war. This is no time to play politics with the future of the United States.

Recent history is one long succession of peace pledges broken by Hitler, and of peace prophecies proved false.

Too many of us are betting our national safety against their guess that Hitler can't win. Too many of us are gambling that, if he does win, it will make no difference.

Too many openly deny what in their consciences they know that in these days of savage conquest every nation is in peril, including our own.

Our greatest danger is not Hitler, but the failure of our people to realize their danger. And after that comes "business as usual." Until we recognize what a Hitler victory would mean to us, and act accordingly, we cannot be safe.

Next to admitting the obvious facts, what we need most is to be united—united against our common danger behind the Government the American people have chosen.

A good many persons are putting in their time opposing whatever Franklin Roosevelt is for, just because he is for it. That is their privilege. But when it goes to the length of sabotaging the Government of the United States in the face of a foreign enemy, that is a horse of another color.

Suppose an epidemic threatened your town. And suppose you chose a doctor to deal with it. Would you charge him with being a disease-monger because he took vigorous measures to protect your safety? But that is exactly what the isolationists are doing about the war.

Talking as if there were no war gets nobody anywhere. As a matter of cold fact, there is a war, and we are in it.

Playing politics with this war is about the worst sin an American citizen can commit. And there is too much of it. There is too much of it in the Congress of the United States.

Before we concentrate on politics, on trying to throw one party out and put another in, let us first make sure that Hitler will not prevent us from having any free political parties at all when this war is over.

If we are to be strong against enemies from abroad, our domestic quarrels must end at the water's edge.

The Allies are fighting our fight. While they fight, it is our business to supply weapons and food. Weapons and food will do nobody any good if Hitler sinks them in the sea.

Hitler has submarined international law. He is forcing us either to abandon our rights, our interests, and our ships or to protect them against piracy.

United States merchant ships have often been armed against pirates before this. Why not now?

Out of deep conviction, I urge every American to support the President in demanding modification of the neutrality law, for the safety and welfare of our country and the world. GIFFORD PINCHOT.

The Post Impressionist

This Women's Army

Today we are war-minded. Our sons or our brothers or our husbands have gone out to be part of an army which watches warily like a great cat preparing to spring. We feed it men and it grows strong. We feed it guns and it holds back its breath, waiting to cough.

We see them on the street, our khaki-clad. We look at them and think that might be Tom, or Dick, or Harry. I wonder if he gets enough to eat. I wish my boys were home again where I could feed them.

I wonder if they have a decent place to stay. I wish that I could glance up once to see them sprawled before the fire.

And all the little things we do not know, we ponder.

We learn about the Army, we who never knew a corporal from a sergeant. Strange that there should be a fashion, too, in thinking. Once a soldier was a man of disrepute. Now he is a boy of sterling worth. Our sons are soldiers.

Our sons are soldiers and our sweethearts and our husbands. We who stay at home in an echoing house, turn up the lights. The evenings are the hardest, for it's then we run all out of things to do; that is, the ordinary things. We take up knitting then or enter into club activities. Companionship is what we need and we find we are not alone.

But always—every day—we think of something we can write to them. We high-light all the happenings of our dreary day. And what they write to us is so inadequate.

"I had K. P. today. Tomorrow they will issue us O. D.'s."

At first we rack our brains—until we learn the lingo. We speak eventually a whole new tongue. Proudly do we listen to these strange new beings who, like changelings, mention things beyond our ken. Time was we knew their thoughts. Yet now we do not comprehend their words.

Into our solitude they rush, bringing a toothbrush and a razor. We greet them hastily and say, "Go take a bath. Your suit's been cleaned. Your underwear is in the drawer."

Then to the sound of splashing water, we putter over pots and pans. When they emerge, all shining clean, why we forget—illogically—that they have been away.

"We weren't expecting you so soon."

"Set the table," we say. "Put on the red checked tablecloth because I will have to open a can of spaghetti."

We learn to keep on hand the quick necessities of a meal.

"How did you come so soon?"

We marvel on about the ways of transportation.

They grin and say, "Somebody was coming down." Or "I hitched a ride. The buses left too late.

Perhaps they traveled across country before they found a way to travel down—or up. At any rate, they came and that is all that counts.

We forget how we worried over whether they would find a ride or whether they would be on the road somewhere as darkness approached. Whether they would get anything to eat on the way or arrive late and hungry. Whether they would reach home at all or have to sleep in a haystack, in a hotel or on a park bench.

And money, that is something else again. We have held a conference with a book and a pencil several times. Expenditures for travel are the largest of them all. Then there are insurance, postage, laundry, haircuts and a thousand and one things to eat the heart and body of the budget.

Not the least important item is that of long distance telephone calls. It is easier both from the standpoint of the most appropriate time and the amount of money involved for them to call us station to station. After several tongue-tied experiences wherein we paid for nothing as it were we wrote long lists of questions to be answered. This enlivened our conversation so, we found we had left ample time, after discussing requisite matters, to touch on small things of no importance but great interest. Yet all of these costs must be figured closely.

In our own particular case, our boy was transferred twice and went on furlough once, so that it took his pay three months to catch up with him.

However, when we smile at him across the table, the times we scrimped and saved fall into discard.

"How long can you stay?" we ask. We are almost afraid to ask. There is so much to cram into so few hours. There are so many relatives to see, so many friends to visit. We break up our days into hours—a certain number of hours for this, a certain number of minutes for that. Sleep, unfortunately, is also essential.

Before they leave for camp we all scurry to be sure no article is left behind. We mumble lists at each other—pass, keys, glasses, toothbrush, razor, clean set of underwear and so on. After they've gone—dashing out at the last minute to catch the streetcar—we pick up dirty clothes and throw away old razor blades.

The following day we start to look for mail, although we know it is too soon. When, we say to ourselves, will we see them again? What will have happened before that time? It takes so interminably long for letters to come and go. News is old by the time it is commented on. We who like to see things done quickly, find ourselves against a stone wall. This business of having our hearts drafted works both ways. Patience is a virtue we need to cultivate. And we get plenty of practice.

Quite suddenly our days drop into a settled pattern of waiting—but not inactive idleness, you understand—but waiting nevertheless. And what are we waiting for?

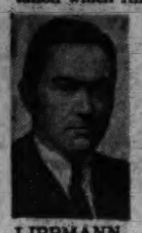
Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Strategy By Gallup



LIPPMANN

THE OUTCRY in Great Britain for the immediate opening of "a western front" is the kind of agitation which American naval and military men will recognize at once. Our history is full of painful instances in which the public sentiment of well meaning but necessarily uninformed crowds has overridden the better judgment of the commanders.

This is such an old story here that it is the recurrent nightmare of American soldiers and sailors: Before a war starts the public will not believe the danger is real enough to call for thorough preparedness. After the war has started, the public becomes impatient if victories are not quickly produced. Many years ago, long before Hitler had been heard of and in the days when the general public had no thought of war, I remember hearing a group of naval officers anxiously discussing this problem. They called it the problem of Bull Run, meaning that if we got into war, we should probably not be fully prepared but that, as soon as hostilities began, they would be expected to fight battles which, in fact, ought not to be risked in the opening phase of the war.

One wise old admiral summed up the matter by saying that the people are always too pacifist in time of peace and too belligerent in time of war: They are moved not by knowledge of the strategic situation but by their wishes. So they underestimate the danger of war before there is a war and refuse to take the necessary precautions; afterward they underestimate the enemy and insist on taking excessive risks.

THUS WE ARRIVE at the paradox of the British Labor Party, which would not listen to Mr. Churchill when he called for military preparedness and early precautionary defensive moves against Hitler, now insisting that Mr. Churchill is so cautious he will not invade the continent. We are asked to believe that Winston Churchill does not realize the importance of Russia and that Winston Churchill is afraid to fight. Those who take part in an agitation of this sort should write lyric poetry to relieve their feelings: That would be better than having them try to conduct a war.

THE DEFENSE of the United States has been a matter of critical importance since Japan attacked China in 1937 and Hitler seized Austria in 1938. We are now beginning to pay the price, and it is only the beginning, because for over four years the necessary preventive, precautionary, and defensive measures have been obstructed, delayed, and thwarted by the fact that we have acted not on the best judgment of the best informed but upon Gallup polls, popular illusions, and partisian politics. We could not arm ourselves early in this desperate phase of history; it took the fall of France to make preparedness popular. We could not support France when it was still possible to keep France in the war, or support Britain until she stood alone and at bay.

What we have done we have done when it was late, and we have done it on too small a scale, and hesitantly, and often by subterfuge. Never have we done what in the best judgment of the best informed we ought to do. Everyone's intention's have been for the best, but the fact is that never have we been able to take in time that stitch which would have saved nine.

FOR WE HAVE been too pacifist to do the big things that prevent, or at least limit a war, and so we are on the verge of war. And unless we pull ourselves together and realize that wars cannot be conducted by Dr. Gallup's researches, we shall probably make all the usual mistakes until we learn to trust the judgment of the commanders who alone have access to all the available facts.

Chromium, Once Wallflower, Now Is Vital Strategic Metal

The recent signing of a Turkish-German trade pact is another proof of the strategic importance chromium has today among military supplies.

"Only a century ago, chromium was a wallflower to metallurgists," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. "Today, it is one of the world's most sought-after metals.

"Until 1759, chromium was not known as an element. Chromite, the ore from which chromium usually is derived, was mixed as a cheap coloring matter in oil paints. Chrome yellow, an inferior but inexpensive pigment, is a feature of Van Gogh's famous sunflowers. The poverty-stricken artist made use of the cheap chrome color as a compromise; it darkened with age into the mysterious, tawny shades now much admired.

"Before the World War, the ore was used mostly as a lining for furnaces, because it is highly resistant to heat. In recent years, it has been discovered that chromium can be alloyed with other metals to give them hardness, toughness and durability. Presses, die machines, door knobs, pots, pans, water faucets and other ordinary objects are protected from corrosion by chromium-plating.

"Most important of the chromium alloys is ferro-chrome alloy, utilized in making stainless steel. In peacetime this alloy finds important usage in automobile, locomotive, and other machine shops. With it, machine tools and parts are made much more durable, and more able to withstand the stress and strain of modern high-speed machinery.

"In wartime the alloy is used in making rifle linings, projectiles, armament tools, airplane tools and parts, and many other important military supplies.

"In 1939 when the present war broke out, Germany was isolated from her ordinary supplies of chromite in Africa and Turkey. Britain's navy blocked her shipments from Africa, while an Anglo-Turkish trade agreement gave Britain a monopoly over the Turkish ore.

"In 1940 Germany obtained control of smelting furnaces in France and Norway, plus a considerable stock of ore. Then in the spring of 1941, the Nazis moved into the Balkans and took over the ore supplies of Greece and Yugoslavia. Recently, Germany went one step further in assuring a supply of chromite ore for her war machine. The long-awaited pact with Turkey was signed, giving Germany almost half of Turkey's chromium output after 1942 in return for immediate delivery of 100,000,000 Turkish lires worth of German war materials.

"Turkey, with widely-separated mines in the western part of the republic, southeast of Istanbul, is the world's largest known chromium producer, followed closely by southern Rhodesia and the Union of South Africa. Russia has a sizable output from the Ural Mountain mines, but no exact data on the country's production have been available since 1936. Poor transportation and a large domestic consumption, however, make foreign shipments almost negligible.

"The United States once led chromium production, and still has plenty of low-grade ore, but modern processes demand ore of high chromium content. Today, only one per cent of the domestic ore is used for alloys and plating, that mostly from California. Almost half of the chromium used in the United States comes from southern Rhodesia and the Union of South Africa. A quarter of it is imported from the Philippines, and 11 per cent came from Turkey before the Mediterranean was closed to American ships."

Panama Approves Arming of Vessels Under Its Flag

Panama City, Oct. 20 (AP).—The new pro-American government of Panama officially approved the arming of merchant ships of Panama registry today as the answer to "unjustified" attacks by German sea raiders.

The government of President Ricardo Adolfo de la Guardia thus reversed the last decree signed by Dr. Arnulfo Arias before he flew to Cuba and was overthrown two weeks ago. Arias, who has Nazi leanings, has been in jail since his return to Panama last week.

The government's new decision was set forth in a resolution which described the Arias government's action as "from all points of view inconvenient considering that recently there have been occurring sinkings of Panama-flag vessels by naval forces of the German government."

"Though the Republic of Panama has no naval forces permitting it to afford adequate protection to Panamanian ships, it must nevertheless interest itself that these vessels shall have at least facilities for exercising their right of self-defense," the decision added.

Jess Torpey spent all morning in the Emporium Barber Shop recently getting the entire war situation cleared up.

Luke Wennipper got caught in a Gallup Poll the other day, but escaped with a slight jostling. Luke didn't hear the question but voted yes.

Eb Hofacker, our esteemed fire chief, has been so busy with the local defense program that he is in no shape to go to fires.

Mrs. Ab Hosley has been dropped from the Goose Creek Corps of Airplane Spotters. She caused quite an alarm last week. It was found to be due to spots on her glasses.

Not many folks are venturing far off Main Street these days for fear of running smack into maneuvers. A number of people who got caught in one last month, ain't out yet.

Stacy Prendell, who hasn't been out of the house for years, went out last Friday just as a fleet of Army tanks passed by. He hurried back into the house again and fired the doctor who told him he was all right.

Mayor Lem Todd named the local air raid wardens yesterday and was impartial except for the post at the oil refinery, to which he named a member of the opposition party.

Seth Geers has been unable to get his regular fall supply of lumbago liniment. He also reports that Biggers' apothecary shop is out of his pipe tobacco. Priorities trouble.

Duke Barnum had a breakdown the other night as a result of trying to clear up the issues now before the American public by listening to a debate between some Congressional leaders.

Higbie Benham, who reported a fleet of enemy planes coming this way recently, admits it was a mistake. It was just a few dozen transports bearing American commissioners from Moscow.

Emma Jane Carters is in the hospital with bruises and contusions. A sham attack was held as a matter of Goose Creek preparedness last night. Emma, seeing all the lights and hearing all the disturbance, thought it was another personal appearance at the Bijou Movie House. She rushed out for autographs and got run over by three companies of militia.

Jeptha Baldwin, who said the war would never amount to much, has changed his mind.

Whoops!

Joe Stalin is now seeing his former ally, pal and buddy at such close range that he may be said to be meeting him two-face to two-face.

"U. S. Debt-Limit Rise Over 65 Billions Certain, Says Morgenthau."—Headline.

Remember away back when 40 billions was declared to be the outside? And when 50 billions was said to be the limit "positively?"

Elmer Twitchell says the Government's fiscal policy is the same as no-limit poker, with the deuces a little wilder.

Last week he stood looking at the inflated rubber boat at the Defense Exposition at Grand Central Palace, New York. "Imagine," he muttered after awhile, "falling into the ocean with one of them things and having to look around for a bicycle pump."

Traffic lights in the heart of Broadway, New York, now feature the word "walk," during an interval between the stop and go signs. Results to date tend to prove, beyond all further doubt, that very few New Yorkers can read.

Back Home Stuff

This correspondent thought he knew all about Emile Gauvreau, author of "My Last Million Readers," but he has discovered, only through the book, that Emile is a reformed piccolo player and used to play in the orchestra at dances in the old Second Regiment Armory back home. Maybe it is now time for us to confess that we once took lessons to be a snare drummer in Dick Miller's Orchestra, which used to play at Lenox Hall, over Winslow's Bakery, hard by the high school.

WPA Pushes Survey Of Trucks and Buses

Steps for quick completion of the national defense truck and bus inventory will be taken this week with a number of States mailing follow-up letters requesting all truck and bus owners who have not made returns to do so immediately, Acting Federal Works Administrator John N. Edy announced yesterday.

The inventory is being taken to set up records of trucks and buses for possible use in organizing highway transportation for national defense. It is being made for the War Department by the Public Roads Administration and the Works Projects Administration of FWA.

Mexican Socialism

By John W. White

Rights And Lefts Seek Control

Mexico, D. F.

MEXICO is fighting hard to keep its revolution on a straight democratic track and prevent its running off into a Leftist or Rightist ditch. A nation-wide sensation has been caused by the official disclosure that for several years the country's school system has been under the firm control of the Communist Party, these disclosures following President Avila Camacho's appointment of a new secretary of public education with orders to clean out the Communists. At the same time, Congress has taken several steps to curtail Fascist, Nazi and other Rightist activities which the senators and deputies consider constitute an even more dangerous threat against Mexico's democracy than that of the Leftist organizations.

Mexico is carrying out one of the most interesting social experiments in modern times and, as Secretary of Labor Garcia Tellez pointed out in his annual report, the revolution has reached its most difficult stage. With the completion of the initial period of violence which always accompanies such radical social changes, an effort is now being made to consolidate the advances achieved; to provide the people, especially the workers, with the advanced laws that were promised them; and at the same time prevent foreign-trained political workers from boring into the revolution and getting control of it.

Sources close to the President have not overlooked any opportunity, however, to deny the optimistic, and, perhaps, wishful, reports published in the United States that the President is seeking to halt the advance of the revolution in order to conciliate foreign capital. These sources insist that the President merely is determined that the revolution shall remain strictly Mexican and that the time has arrived to purge it of foreign influence.

EDITORS and the reading public accept, as another move against the Communists, the President's appointment of his brother, Gen. Maximino Avila Camacho, to be secretary of communications and public works. This puts under his control the roads, telephones, telegraphs, and especially the railroads, which recently had to be taken out of the hands of worker administrators after several years of scandalous mismanagement. The new secretary has carefully avoided any specific statement against the Communists, but he is an army man of strong will and action, who is known to have no patience with Communist strikes and other agitations that seek to tie up communications, and several of his declarations have been accepted by the Communists as well as others, as rather broad hints that he will not tolerate any violence or agitation in the many public services that come under his ministry.

But all other government activities have been overshadowed for the moment by the reorganization of the ministry of public education and the statements made in congressional debate that more than half of Mexico school teachers either are Communists or belong to Communist-controlled labor unions. The President has ordered that the teachers' unions must unite into one organization and sever all connection with labor unions, including any affiliation with the General Federation of Labor.

It has been disclosed, and officially stated in Congress, that the Communists got control of Mexico's ministry of education by use of the old well-known Communist technique of overstaffing the personnel throughout the ministry. This permitted the invasion of the ministry by the three recognized classes of workers which the party uses for this kind of effort—"special agents," "militant members" of the party and "unconditional" members of the party. Several of the "special agents" became the heads of educational departments within the ministry or chiefs of administrative bureaus. The director of urban primary education, for example, and all his immediate assistants were active Communists. One Communist professor had eight salaried jobs, all under the ministry.

THE COMMUNIST LEADERS and their small army of "militant" and "unconditional" party members put into practice a well-known Communist weapon by launching a "bureaucratic terror" against the teachers and administrative employes who were not Communists. In this way they soon gained control of the ministry and, consequently, of the education of the children and youth of Mexico, which was their main objective. Editors have pointed out that the entire present generation of Mexican youth was being educated to Stalinist ideology and against democracy.

A senator who has had access to the results of the new minister's investigation reported in the Senate that 600 men and women who were on the ministry pay roll as teachers took orders direct from the Communist Party and spent all their time traveling about the country organizing Communist cells, terrifying teachers who would not join their ranks, and sowing confusion and unrest generally. All these agitators were supplied with permanent passes on the government-owned railroads. They were granted what amounted practically to permanent leaves of absence from their duties in the ministry by Communist department heads, without the knowledge of the minister. Many editors consider it significant that the President chose the country's attorney general as the new minister to clean up this state of affairs.

The investigation has also disclosed that the many bookstores in Mexico City and other localities which operate under the patronage of the ministry of education were under the management of recognized Communist agents, most of whom had salaried jobs in the ministry, and that all the books which have been stocked recently for sale to students were well-known works by recognized Communist writers or books favorable to Communism that had been written by Mexican authors.

There are 51,308 teachers in Mexico. The great majority of them belong to two teachers' trade unions, in addition to which there is a third union of some importance and five or six smaller autonomous and purely local organizations. The largest teachers' union is known as STERM, the name being formed of the initials of the union's official name—Syndicato de Trabajadores de la Ensananza de la Republica Mexicana. STERM has 35 local sections and it has been declared in the Senate that 24 of these sections are controlled by the Communists. It is affiliated with the very Leftist general labor federation known as the C. T. M., or Confederation de Trabajadores de Mexico. It is this affiliation that the President has ordered terminated.

STERM has on its rolls 40,000 members, or 70 per cent of the total union enrollment of teachers. The 24 allegedly Communist-controlled sections have a membership of 26,395, or slightly more than half of all the teachers in Mexico. STERM and the other teachers' unions collect more than 65,000 pesos a month in dues, with an annual take of 848,000 pesos, almost all of which is said to go to the upkeep of union leaders. STERM, alone, is reported to have collected more than three million pesos since its founding.

STERM and its Communist activities are blamed for the many schisms and the widespread hatred existing among professors and teachers throughout the country. The large Communist majority has taken the control of educhtion out of the hands of the ministry, and Communist principles are taught wherever there are Communist - sympathizing teachers. The teachers who are opposed to Communism refuse to teach Communist ideology to their classes. This has resulted in a wide divergence of opinion among teachers as to what should be taught.

The main purpose of the reorganization ordered by the President is to terminate this anarchy; require teachers to belong to one professional union, unassociated with labor federations or any foreign political dictation, and force teachers to drop all political and class activities and devote their time and thought to teaching.

At the extreme opposite of this situation lies the very Rightist and very active Sinarquista movement, which is looked upon by everyone except its own members as a Fascist spearhead against Mexican democracy that is being financed by some foreign power. The Chamber of Deputies this week unanimously adopted a resolution appointing a committee to call upon the President and request the dissolution of the party, as well as urge him to prevent the projected colonization of Lower California by hundreds of thousands of Sinarquistas.

THE SINARQUISTAS wear uniforms similar to the Fascist one, with an armband on the left sleeve; recognize a personal leader similar to the Duce and the Fuehrer; use a salute similar to that of the Nazis; are rabidly anti-Communist, and have openly attacked democracy as represented by the United States and Great Britain. Two months ago the President sent a circular letter to the Governors of all States and Territories forbidding the Sinarquistas to wear their uniforms or to meet in public. A few weeks later, however, he granted their request for permission to colonize Lower California with 100,000 Sinarquista families. Party leaders have since stated that 500,000 Sinarquista families will be transported to Lower California.

In the congressional debate which led up to the demand that the party be dissolved, it was argued that if the nature of the movement is so anti-Mexican and antidemocratic that the President has considered it advisable to prohibit it from meeting in public, it should not be permitted to exist. It was also stated in Congress that the proposed colonization of Lower California will constitute a grave threat against Mexico's safety and also against that of the United States. It was pointed out that the region to be colonized is so dry and barren that even goats cannot be raised there and that the rank and file of the Sinarquista movement is made up of poverty-stricken farmers who cannot possibly pay the expenses of such a move or support themselves after they get there. It was charged, therefore, that the whole movement is a scheme to establish a Fascist colony on the Pacific Coast in the interest of some one or all of the totalitarian countries which are interested in the eventual invasion of the American continent.

Another recent anti-Fascist movement in the Mexican Congress is the organization of an interparliamentary committee composed of senators and deputies which will maintain strict and constant vigilance against totalitarian propaganda and other activities directed against Mexico's democratic institutions. The committee also proposed to organize a series of mass meetings throughout the country to acquaint the people with the dangers of totalitarian ideology, the congressmen feeling that the public is not as alert to this danger as is the government. This committee also will expedite through the two houses of Congress the pending antispy bill and any other measures which the government may introduce to protect Mexico against any threat from totalitarian movements, either at home or abroad.

ALL this recent agitation against both Leftists and Rightists has brought into public prominence the famous Article 3 of the Mexican Constitution which prohibits the teaching of religion in the schools and makes obligatory the teaching of Socialism and the ideals of the Mexican Revolution. The main question being debated is whether the socialism of the revolution was Communism. The Leftists insist that it was, but the President just as strongly insists to the contrary. The new minister of education has announced in the President's name that Article 3 will not be withdrawn but that the so-called reglementary law for putting it into operation will be rewritten to make it clear that the only socialism that will be permitted in Mexico is a purely Mexican socialism, admittedly Leftist, but free from any contact with communism. The Sinarquista movement demands the abolishment of Article 3 and the reestablishment of the church and religious teaching. The Leftist General Labor Federation just as strongly demands the abolishment of the Sinarquista movement as a threat not only against the Mexican Revolution but against Mexico itself.

Chile Stills Nazi Voice

People Back U. S.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, OCT. 20.—Juan Pradenas, Chilean minister of labor, and chairman of the Chilean Democratic Party for 20 years, said today that Nazi activities in his country have been effectively throttled.

"As a member of the Chilean government," he said on his arrival in the Grace liner Santa Clara, "I can say that Chile defends democracy and there is no chance for any Nazi feelings to thrive. An enormous majority of the Chilean people applaud without reservation the democratic policies of the United States in this war."

Pradenas is the head of a delegation to the International Labor Office Conference to be held here next week.

The delegation was met by Rudolfo Michels, Chilean Ambassador to the United States; Anibal Jara, Chilean consul general in New York, and Col. A. Kenny Palmer, director of the Chile-American Association.

OTHER PASSENGERS on the Santa Clara included Ambrosio Concha, president of the Chilean senate's foreign relations committee; Douglas Jankins, retiring United States Minister to Bolivia, and Guy Henry Bullock, former British Minister to Ecuador, on his way to London to assume new duties.

Jenkins has represented the United States in Bolivia for two years and is retiring from the Diplomatic Corps after 30 years' service in various posts. He plans to live in Charleston, S. C. He was accompanied by Mrs. Jenkins.

"We feel quite happy about conditions in Bolivia," Jenkins said. "President Enrique Penerane, who was elected two years ago, is very friendly to the United States. And we now have an agreement under which the United States buys all of Bolivia's tungsten and one-half of her tin—which helps our defense program and aids Bolivia's economy. The people of the country are very sympathetic towards the democracies in the war."

BACK IN Washington from a Congressional investigation of general conditions in Central and South America, Representative Rabaut (Democrat), of Michigan, said today that in 17 countries visited "we encountered a sincere spirit of desire on the part of the government in power to cooperate with our Government" in working out common problems.

Rabaut headed a subcommittee of five members of the House Appropriations Committee which made the trip.

The committee members, he said, had "frank discussions of our mutual problems" with the presidents of the 17 countries and with foreign ministers, members of the American embassies and businessmen.

"There are many difficulties to be overcome," Rabaut said, "but the sentiment we have found everywhere convinces us that these difficulties are being and will continue to be surmounted."

The committee will make public in the near future a detailed report covering its activities.

Use Of The Term 'Labor Leader'

PEGLER

EVERY NOW and again I have occasion to admonish my revered bosses, the newspaper editors, who generally take this impudence very kindly and thus encourage me to further brattishness, of which the following display is typical, if not worse.

Today I should like to point out to them, and to a variety of other persons dealing in public expression, such as radio speakers, magazine editorialists and occupants of or candidates for public office, that the term "labor leader" is inaccurate and misleading when applied to most of the professional unioneers of both big camps and that the term "labor" is equally deceptive as applied to the unions. In both cases, the word "labor" confers on these power politicians an advantage which they do not deserve, because "labor" means to all of us the rank and file worker, with whom they have no relation other than that of boss and subject or victim. "Labor" also includes millions of American workers who are not members of any union and millions who are members of unions only because they were anschlussed into the two rival empires by threats and pressure. As to many of them, this pressure was exerted by the Roosevelt Administration through the Labor Relations Board, and countless others have been driven into the compounds in the last 18 months by Government agencies which gave them their choice of joining up and paying up or going without work on war projects.

WHEN YOU SPEAK or write of such a man as Wrong John Lewis, for example, as a "labor leader" you are suggesting that he is a popular leader of voluntary followers, which certainly is an incorrect picture of Wrong John and one that does injustice to the mine workers. Lewis is not their leader. He may have been a popular leader once, but he is now their boss, and a rough and ruthless boss at that, who doesn't consult their wishes but sends them orders. William Green is even remoter from the toilers, and is in no sense of the word a leader of "labor," but the executive head of a powerful band of professional union bosses. The ordinary carpenter or waitress, for example, has no more voice in the proceedings of the American Federation of Labor than the holder of a single share of stock has in the affairs of Republic Steel, and Tom Girdler is no more aloof to the single-share investor than Green to the individual worker. In fact, the single-share investor is better off, because he can sell his share and get out if he doesn't like the way things are running, whereas the union worker can't quit his union without losing his livelihood, and he may be tossed out anyway for lese majeste in appealing to the august president of the national body for redress of some wrong, however outrageous, without first exhausting all the appeals which are supposed to be provided but actually do not exist within his local union. The local union bosses may exhaust him with a chair leg before he gets a chance to exhaust his illusory remedies, but that is something that he is forbidden to mention to Mr. Green.

When Wrong John wants to dip into the treasury of the miners for any amount, and he has been known to take some tremendous dips out of the savings wrung from the toil of these men, he doesn't consult the miners at all. He just takes the dip, whether for a political candidate or for the promotion of unionism and boss-power in some other field of work, and tells them about it afterward. Now, of course, Wrong John will say that the miners, through him, are trying to raise the living standards of "labor" in the valleys of American society by electing a certain man to the Presidency of the Republic or that, through him, the miners desire to assist their unseen brethren in the automobile plants. But it is noticeable that he doesn't risk a negative answer by consulting them. And it must be kept in mind that a union boss who elects a President expects to become the President's boss in certain important matters, as Lewis plainly revealed when he yelled that President Roosevelt hadn't delivered to him that which he, Lewis, thought he had paid for by his campaign contribution from the miners' damper. And observe, too, that when such a man, by such use of the savings wrung from the workers of one union, succeeds in building up another union, the result is an increase in the power of the boss himself at the expense of the members.

ALTHOUGH the workers are "labor," the unioneers are not labor leaders. They do not speak for "labor," but for political organizations, and they are not leaders but bosses and, most of them, dictators. No honest man would say today, in view of all that we have learned about unions in the last few years, that an attack on a union was necessarily an attack on "labor," and by the same rule it should be recognized now and kept in mind that the union bosses may be, and, in the absence of knowledge to the contrary, should be presumed to be, a boss if not an oppressor and exploiter of "labor."

Willkie Predicts Nazi Clashes With U. S. Navy, Airforce Soon

New York, Oct. 20. (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie predicted today that naval and air engagements between the United States and Germany were not far in the future.

"The United States is already in the war and has been for some time," Willkie said in the current Look Magazine in answering a series of questions on current events.

"If, however, by 'war,' shooting is meant," he added, "I think there is a possibility that there will be some naval and perhaps aeronautical engagements between the United States and Germany before long."

In regard to difference of opinion in the Republican Party on foreign policy, Willkie said:

"Within four years those in the Republican Party who believe in the international viewpoint will completely dominate the party, and the isolationists will be merely a memory.

"If this is not true, the Republican Party as we know it today will die, and some new party will arise and take its place."

In answer to a question regarding his own personal position in the 1944 Presidential election, Willkie commented: "If I fit those times, I may be nominated for President despite all the connivance of political manipulators and hacks. And, if I don't fit those times, political strategy will not avail against the unerring instinct of the people."

Housewives Face Big Role In Defense

The housewives of the United States will be called on to join in a great cooperative effort in nutrition and food conservation, T. Semmes Walmsley, deputy director of the Office of Civilian Defense, told the Women's National Democratic Club at its luncheon yesterday.

"There has been undertaken a program to develop the conservation of foods so that, by economical family planning, certain essential foodstuffs can be released for export to England," he pointed out.

"Through the extension service of the Department of Agriculture, the volunteer participation group of the Office of Civilian Defense will call upon the housewives of this country in one of the greatest cooperative efforts undertaken. They will be asked to join as partners in the development of this program," he said.

Also, he pointed out, "the women of this nation will have an opportunity to develop nutrition programs to end the conditions of undernourishment among our youths, as revealed in the recent physical examination of selectees."

Mr. Walmsley said that in the civilian defense volunteer offices being set up by the main office, "hundreds of opportunities" in the various localities will appear for workers.

"Public forums may be organized, and also study groups on food buying problems, budgeting and intelligent famliy shopping," he said.

"There are many programs for women volunteers in the form of recreational or special services for men in uniform and defense industry," Mr. Walmsley added.

"There is fortunately no necessity for American women to be enrolled in the various branches of civilian protection at this time, except as individual women choose to become nurses' aides or to work in the emergency medical services," he said.

He spoke at the luncheon at the clubhouse, with Mrs. Curtis Shears, president of the club, presiding.

Mrs. Walter Maloney sang an original defense song, "Keep 'Em Flying." Mrs. Albert G. Black, chairman of the program committee, introduced the speaker. Guests at the speaker's table included Mrs. Walmsley, Mrs. Ellen Woodward, Miss Stella Frankfurter, Miss Bab Lincoln, Barry Bingham.

ORT Chapter Plans Tea October 29

Plans for a tea on October 29 and for the annual donor luncheon on November 17 were discussed yesterday at the meeting of the Washington Chapter, Women's ORT, at the Jewish Community Center.

Yesterday's meeting followed a conference which Mrs. Leon Harris, of New York, national chairman of the organization's executive board, held with the local board last week to discuss fall activities.

Mrs. Tnna Schneiderman, from national headquarters, will be guest of honor at the tea Wednesday, October 29 at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Morris Rodman. The luncheon in November will be at the Mayflower Hotel.

'Looking-Ahead Blues' Held Impeding Defense

By Lucia Giddens

"The 'looking-ahead blues' are impeding national defense," Miss Margaret Hickey, of St. Louis, first vice president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, told the local club at its dinner last night.

She urged that citizens concentrate on the present job to be done, rather than worrying fruitlessly over postwar problems.

Miss Hickey spoke on "But the Hands of the Clock Are Hurrying" the club's meeting at the Washington Club.

While pointing out the wisdom of making sound plans to meet the post war period, Miss Hickey decried the "malady of morale" from which "depression-wise people" are suffering.

Miss Hickey urged that women recognize the importance of "sharpening and strengthening their job and professional skills," for the present period, she pointed out, is a time of rapid technical and scientific strides.

"The woman who has more than one string to her vocational bow will be in a better position to make adjustments," she said.

"Women must become active in the job of lobbying for democracy," Miss Hickey declared. She said they must tear down the partitions which seem to have separated their private careers in home and business from their public careers as citizens.

She urged a better partnership of men and women in public affairs. If they work together thus, some of the misunderstanding and discrimination against women in American life would tend to be dispelled, she said.

Miss Hickey cautioned business women against "headline-making assignments" in the present situation. Quiet duties are just as important, on the less dramatic but vital supply line of American defense, she said.

"As individuals, our greatest contribution must be through our work, doing better the thing that we know and do best," Miss Hickey said.

The speaker, who is founder and principal of Miss Hickey's Training School for Secretaries in St. Louis, is on a tour making addresses to Business and Professional Women's Clubs in Pennsylvania, New Hampshire and Massachusetts. She is the guest of Dr. Florence Armstrong on her Washington visit.

Mrs. Brownie Kerr, vice president of the local club, presided at the dinner last night.

Mrs. Howard Addresses Entre Nous Club

Mrs. Ernest Howard, chairman of the division of laws before Congress in the District Federation of Women's Clubs, addressed the Entre Nous Club yesterday on the women's interest in legislation as it affects the welfare of the home.

Mrs. Howard is legislation chairman for this club also. She spoke at the meeting at 2600 Sixteenth Street Northwest. Three new members were welcomed into the club: Mrs. Mary Wright Johnson, Mrs. Belle Pickett and Mrs. Roy Dimmitt.

Mizrachi Unit Plans Banquet

The Washington Senior Chapter of the Mizrachi Women's Organization of America, the national religious women's Zionist movement, will stage its annual banquet Sunday evening at the New Colonial Hotel, with Mrs. Abraham Shapiro, of New York, the national president, attending as the guest of honor and principal speaker.

Mrs. I. Cymes, president of the chapter, announces that proceeds of the affair will be devoted to the organization's projects in Palestine, where the Mizrachi women maintain a network of social service activities for refugee and native girls.

The Mizrachi Women, an integral part of the world-wide religious Zionist movement which seeks to build the Jewish National Home in Palestine on the basis of traditional orthodox Judaism, maintain homes, schools, training centers and welfare projects in the Holy Land.

Beta Chapter To Give Teas

Fall teas of Beta Chapter of Phi Delta Gamma honoring women of the graduate school of George Washington University will be given Thursday and Friday from 4:30 to 7 p.m. in Columbian House.

Members of the social committee are in charge of arrangements. Those pouring will be Mrs. Cloyd Marvin, Mrs. Vinnie G. Barrows, Mrs. Joshua Evas, jr., Elizabeth Fielden, Sara Lerch, Elsie Green, Mildred Green, Virginia Kinnard, Dora Ihle and Dora Shepard.

Officers who will receive are Marian Scott, president; Clarita Claussen, vice president; Ferne Duval, recording secretary; Mildred Tabb, corresponding secretary; Lucille Harris, treasurer; Katharine Asbury, registrar; Helen Louise Trembly, editor; Rebecca Fowler, historian; and Florence Sifferd, program chairman.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley To Entertain Alliance

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the Housekeepers' Alliance, will entertain the members at her home, 2345 Ashmead place today at 2 p. m. when the first of a series of programs on "A Glimpse of the Americas" will be heard.

The speaker will be Paul Murphy of the Pan American Union, who will be followed at each monthly meeting of the Alliance by some speaker on the countries of Central and South America.

Hostesses for the meeting will be Mrs. L. F. Kebler, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Ellis Logan, Mrs. Frank S. Hassell, and Mrs. Wiley. Mrs. Louis F. Fortier will make an appeal for the Red Cross.

Club Leader Finds Unrest In Midwest

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, said yesterday that the America First group unintentionally has created disloyalty toward the Government and apathy toward the defense program.

In an Associated Press dispatch from a press conference on her return here from a seven-State club-speaking tour, Mrs. Whitehurst said she found that Senator Wheeler of Montana and Charles A. Lindbergh are "creating chaotic thinking by their speeches."

"I cannot think that they intended to divert our people from their allegiance to our form of government and our elected leaders, but they did," she said. Isolationists should be able to air their views without criticizing and belittling those in power and without stirring up racial hatreds."

As a result of her visits to Minnesota, Iowa, South Dakota, Utah, Colorado, Nebraska Wyoming, she ascribed isolationist strength to several reasons—a Midwestern feeling of safety, lack of knowledge of the defense program, partisanship and hatred of the New Deal, fear of British propaganda and influence of America First.

Club Federation Season to Start

The first monthly meeting this season of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in the federation's recently acquired headquarters, 2600 Sixteenth Street Northwest, at 10:30 a. m. Thursday.

The morning session will be devoted to business. The afternoon will be dedicated to the department chairmen, who will give a statement of plans for the ensuing year.

The Penny Art Fund award of last season, which goes to Takoma Park Club, will be presented at this meeting by Mrs. James H. Underwood, department chairman of fine arts. The prize, Edna Webb Mile's seascape, "Fishing Boat at Rockport, Mass.," will be accepted by the club's new president, Mrs. G. G. Sward, and by the immediate past president, Mrs. Paul W. Burk.

Mrs. Gladys B. Middlemiss, radio chairman, will explain in detail her plans for the federation program to be broadcast each Tuesday at 11:30 a. m. over WWDC.

On today's radio program at that time, Mrs. Sward, the federation's mothercraft chairman, will speak on the federation's classes in nutrition, home nursing and child care. Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the Housekeepers Alliance, also will speak.

State Officers' Club Of D.A.R. to Hold Banquet Saturday

The State Officers' Club of the District Daughters of the American Revolution will hold its annual meeting and banquet Saturday at the Mayflower Hotel, with Mrs. William H. Pouch, president general of the National Society, attending.

"A Pictorial History of the District of Columbia," an illustrated lecture written by Mrs. Walter G. Peter and executed by Mrs. William Frederick Pearson, has been obtained for the program by Mr. Catherine Birney Strong, president of the club.

The Army and Navy chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hold its annual benefit card party today at the Shoreham Hotel. Mrs. Malcolm W. Callahan is in charge of the sale of tickets and Mrs. Lybrand P. Smith will supervise the cake and candy table.

The regent, Mrs. Hubert E. Paddock and Mrs. Homer Case, chairman of entertainment, will receive the chapter members and their guests at 2 o'clock in the west ballroom.

Mrs. Morris E. Marlow, regent, will entertain the members of Independence Bell chapter, D. A. R., at her home at 226 Maryland Avenue Northeast tonight.

Mrs. Netta G. Miller, vice regent of the chapter, will give a talk on her recent visit to Mexico with the D. A. R. good will pilgrimage.

Adaptable 'Defense' Coiffure

Only the threat of war and a calendar jammed with defense and social activities induced the American woman to shed her long bob. But in accepting the short, short, hair-do, she has subtracted ten years from her age. Also, she saves time and money on the coiffure upkeep. For the short hair-do is adaptable and practical. Just how cleverly it flatters the face is seen in Margaret Haye's new three-inch coiffure illustrated below. The hair is combed forward from crown, in front and combed out to make a soft frame for her face

Arrange Flowers Artistically

GRACEFUL FLOWER arrangements that win gasping "oh's!" of approval from your friends—you could make them yourself! Know a little about the principles of arranging flowers artistically and you don't need expensive materials.

For instance, in winter when flowers are scarce you can make fascinating bouquets with foliage, twigs, berries or fruits—and a flower or two culled from your house plants, perhaps.

The composition we've shown in the booklet could hold its own at any flower show, yet it's easy to arrange. The use of weight to balance height is the thing. In other words, most of the larger, more substantial pieces, such as leaves, fruits and geranium blooms are placed low on one side to balance the height of the twigs. The railing fruits and cones at the base of the vase further carry out the plan.

The base itself is easy to make. Just cut out three blocks of wood the proper shape. Then wax, varnish or lacquer them to harmonize with the vase or its surroundings.

Following such simple tips you could make gorgeous arrangements for your home, church or club.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Flower Arrangement Made Easy," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Whining, Exacting Mother Forfeits Children's Love and Respect, in Addition to Blighting Her Own Capacity to Be Happy, Reader Says

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Although "Distraught Mother" has already received through your column much good advice on how to develop a more harmonious relationship with her teen-age son, who defies her authority and despises her devotion, I may still be able to proffer some helpful suggestions. Speaking directly to her, I would say: Don't indulge in self-pity. Don't ever whine. Forget his dead father's weaknesses. You chose him. Don't beg for the boy's love. You will never get it that way. And I am afraid your pressure on that subject is accompanied by tears and reproaches for some alleged dereliction.

Don't nag him about the money he has earned and saved through his own efforts. Let him formulate some plans of his own, as to what to do with it. Tell him you are proud of the responsible spirit he has shown. Advise him to go on with his education—but don't take a supplicating attitude. If he does quit school as soon as he is old enough "to do a man's work" (as he threatens to do), remind him that the time has come for him to contribute something to the family income, if only for the reason that it is the manly thing to do. But never suggest "payment of board"—which is tanamount to classifying him as an "outsider." Remember, in "gentling" a colt, you keep a sympathetic guiding hand on the reins. You don't constantly pull on the bit.

It will give your son a feeling of self-respect and even pleasure to provide certain "extras" for the home that were denied you before. And while taking for granted that he will furnish his personal belongings, you should set him an example of thoughtfulness by anticipating his needs, on occasion. In conclusion, let me remind you once again—don't complain. We women (especially we mothers), although required to be "careful and troubled about many things," will nevertheless be happier, and more loved and respected by our children, if we carry on with chin up until we drop, using smiles and kind words as our habitual expression. Sincerely,

M. B. H.

Passage From Bible Tells Peril of Worry

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: "Distraught Mother" says: "I do so want my son's love and confidence." Then asks: "Is it too late to remedy matters?" I do not think it is too late, if she sincerely wants to reform. However, the situation seems to call for a complete about-face in her attitude and procedure. She says she will be grateful for any suggestions. Mine are as follows:

Begin, at once, to (1) give thanks for her almost too-good-to-be-true son; (2) to enjoy the satisfying realization that she, a widowed mother, has succeeded in rearing a son so capable and self-reliant that, in his middle teens, he has cleared $75, over and above expenses, for one summer's work; (3) to rejoice in the knowledge that he is "a clean, intelligent, honest boy," with no bad habits, and popular with boys and girls his own age, as well as with young children; and (4) to be glad that he has a character-foundation of religious training acquired by lifelong regular attendance at Sunday School.

Begin, this very day, telling her son as often as opportunity affords, the specific reasons why she is proud, happy and grateful in her kinship to him. (Our 17-year-old son, and other teen-agers we know, are genuinely grateful for any sincere praise that comes their way). If parents would stop to reflect, they must concede that their children are trying as hard, in their own way, to "make something" of themselves, as the oldsters are trying to do the job for them.

If at all possible, "Distraught Mother" should place her son in a good boys prep school immediately. Association, during the next few years, with men whose lives are devoted to the instruction ang guidance of boys will mean more to his future than two years' college education later on,—if she must make a choice between the two. As a matter of fact, if she keeps him on the right track now, he probably will be able to finance his own college education later.

The mother stands to benefit equally with her son, by this plan. With her mind at ease about her son's welfare, she can start making a new person of herself. She must develop many interests that do not center around her son. She must free herself of fear and worry and change from a negative to a positive attitude toward herself, her son and life in general. This can be done by studying and practicing a psychological interpretation of Christ's life and teachings,—as set forth in "The Sermon on the Mount," by Emmet Fox.

I judge from her letter that her religious faith is of the fundamentalist type. And even by the most literal translation of the Bible, she should take warning from the text of Job, 3:26: "For the thing which I greatly feared is come upon me, and that which I was afraid of is come unto me." She writes: "My greatest worry concerning my son is that he may learn to drink, since that is a weakness in his father's family." If she stopped to realize that she might be bringing to pass the thing she dreads, by her morbid attitude, surely she would recognize the value of emphasizing, rather, the boy's possession of certain good qualities that his father had.

If she can be unselfish, unself righteous and unself pitying, in practicing these suggestions, her relations with her son can be immeasurably improved. And whether he goes away to school or remains at home, she should invariably show him the respect, love and consideration that she would give to a valued lifelong friend. When she is fully committed to this new way of living,—which should embrace new friends, wider interests, more activities—she will gain the detachment to laugh at many of the things which worried her in the past.

She will wonder how she could ever have been so childish as to complain, "My son refuses to let me keep his money, and will not even let me know what he intends to do with it!" She will see that she was making a mountain out of a molehill in asking, "Should I give him an allowance when he returns to school, if he does not resume his household tasks?" Why not head off trouble,—if any is anticipated—by telling him that since he worked so hard and did so well during the summer, she is going to give him the school year free from heavy chores, while continuing his allowance—in compensation for the fact that he had so little time for recreation during vacation? If she demands little, she may get a great deal; but she can obtain nothing of real value by being severely exacting. . . . Sincerely,

ANOTHER MOTHER.

Furniture Different In Norse Countries

Throughout most of history the Scandinavian countries were rather remote from the rest of Europe, and so they developed a vernacular or ornament that was decisively local in character. It was intricately patterned with birds and flowers and vines, suggesting the influence of Norse mythology.

The Romanesque and Gothic, the Rococo and the Baroque and the Empire fashions trinkled in gradually, first through the wealthy homes, later influencing local designs with a certain flavor. Modern Swedish furniture, regarded as a pioneer in this style, developed from Swedish translations and gradual evolution of the Empire fashions introduced a century ago.

Vitamins Found To Retard Hair's Graying

By Ida Jean Kain

AT LAST! The battle against gray hair can now be turned over to a new member of the Vitamin B complex. This anti-gray hair vitamin is known as para-aminobenzoic acid but for convenience this has been shortened to Paba.

The discoverer and scientist who identified the new filtrate factor as a chromotrichia vitamin is Dr. Stefan Ansbacher, director of the New York research laboratory of International Vitamin Corporation. Dr. Ansbacher is a man of few promises but he says that from the experiments it seems apparent that Paba will prove equally effective in restoring the natural color to the hair of older persons and to that of persons who are prematurely gray.

Whichever category you are in, you can base your hopes on tests conducted by Dr. B. F. Sieve, of Boston City Hospital, who chose 50 persons, both men and women, of various ages for the experiment. Paba was administered over a two months' period and in every case there was a considerable darkening of the hair.

This filtrate factor is present in yeast. It is not known as yet whether it is contained in the other Vitamin B-rich foods. It is available in pure synthetic form but only to physicians. If you are in too great a hurry to wait until it is placed on the market, you might ask your doctor to obtain a sample for you.

Other exciting results from vitamin-hair experiments have been obtained by Dr. D. W. Woolley, of the Rockefeller Institute. Dr. Woolley found that phytin, the salt of inositol, is concerned with the staying power of the hair. Mice fed on a synthetic diet lacking in inositol became bald and regrew their hair when it was added to their diet. Dr. Ansbacher and his co-workers tried to duplicate the experiment but because of a difference in laboratory conditions they got results that were curiously different. In this instance, the mice were given the same synthetic diet but did not lose their hair until Paba was added, and did not regain it until inositol was put on their menu. Baldness is still one of the unsolved mysteries.

Tuft Bedspreads

One of the most popular types of bedspreads made today is a descendant of a handcraft of Revolutionary housewives who used wagon wheels for their embroidery hoops. These are the needle-tuft spreads still made down in Georgia—the wagon wheel still serves as the best hoop—much of the work is still done by hand, though the punch-work needle is electric-driven.

How to Repair Damage to Hair

Hollywood, Calif.—Women who went hatless when the summer sun was high, are now paying the piper with dry, streaked and brittle hair just when they crave a devastating coiffure to top a formal autumn gown.

It's Perc Westmore's advice, therefore, to take drastic measures at once to insure a lovely, reconditioned coiffure as soon as possible. He suggests having the hair cut as short as is becoming to eradicate all the split ends, increasing scalp massages and hair-brushing sessions and preshampoo oil treatments.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

Spoon Bread in Modern Manner

SPOON BREAD, the pride of the South, is a versatile dish, for it can be fitted into almost any menu. And if you want a dish that will smack of colonial days, with a dash of the modern, try topping the crispy crust of the bread with fresh corn straight from the cob. This is a dish to be served piping hot from the casserole in which it is baked. Here is the recipe:

Spoon Bread

Pour 2 cups boiling water over ¾ cup sifted yellow cornmeal and cook in double boiler until thick, about 5 minutes. Add 2 tablespoons shortening and mix until smooth. Let cool. Beat 2 eggs, add 1 1-3 cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt, and stir into the cornmeal mixture. Beat well and add 1 teaspoon baking powder, beating again. Pour into well-greased baking dish, from which it is to be served. Bake 45 minutes in hot oven, 425 degrees, or until of firm consistency, but still moist. Just before serving, add 2 cups fresh-cooked corn to which 3 tablespoons butter have been added. Serves 6.

A New 'Diplomat' Runs Show at Thai Legation

Halifax and Procope Make Them Gasp; 'Washington Waltz,' an 'Inside' Story

By Hope Ridings Miller

Wanted: A name for the newest member of the diplomatic corps—the two-day-old daughter of the Minister of Thailand and Mme. Seni Pramoj. Their third child, but first girl, was born on Saturday at Columbia Hospital, and the business of selecting a suitable name has been the chief concern of the Thai Legation ever since.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

Back in Bangkok, where the two Pramoj boys were born, there was no such difficulty. The Minister's father was living then: and in keeping with the custom of the country he was the one who decided that the first son (now 9) should be called Seri, and the other (now 7) should be Usni. Astrological and mystical connections dictated the choice of each name; and, also in observance of custom, each child was ceremoniously presented to the grandparents, who in turn made known the name with appropriate fanfare. But now the grandparents are dead, and the task of consulting the stars and working out mystical implications has to be carried on by somebody else. The Minister has neatly washed his hands of the job. "I'll give the child to my wife to name," he said with a chuckle.

If the Pramojs were back in Bangkok, their young daughter probably would be having her hair shaved a couple of weeks from now. It's an ancient custom carried out with elaborate Buddhist ceremonies. Another quaint practice surrounding babies in Bangkok long ago had to do with the ritual of shaving the "top-notch" patch of hair, which the mother fondly wound with her fingers until it was long enough to be tied, held with a gold pin, and garlanded with flowers. But the top-notch ceremonial has died out almost entirely, says Oxford-educated Minister Pramoj, who seems to have on tap an inexhaustible supply of folklore on the country formerly known as Siam. . . .

Oddments of Interest—Here and There

Over Capital teacups they're saying: "There's something Groton in the State—Department!" . . . Guests at Mrs. McLean's dinner Sunday night gasped (to say the least) when Lord Halifax took his seat on one side of the hostess, and Finnish Minister Procope on the other . . . Helen Lombard's book, "Washington Waltz," advertised by the publisher as a "highly significant 'inside story' of the diplomatic corps" here, leaves out the Latin Americans entirely, but includes plenty of dope you'll delight in reading. Best chapter, however, is not on the French—as you might expect, since the author's husband is former French Military Attache—but on the Italian diplomats ("The Fifth Colonna"). Will tell you more about the tome Sunday on the Post book page. . . .

After all, there may be something to the rumor that Rahel Davies Walker, who got her divorce from Aldace Walker not many months ago, will middle-aisle it again soon. Her current heart-throb, so they say, is Col. Burdette Fitch, and the two accompanied her father, Joseph E. Davies, and her brother-in-law and sister, Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings, went to Hot Springs, Va., on Saturday . . . Speaking of Hot Springs reminds me that the Douglas Fairbankses, who recently returned to Boxwood Farm there, are planning to give a series of week-end parties if, and when, he can find time free from his official duties in Washington.

Capital Calendar Still Crowded

Thumbing through the Washington calendar for the next few days, I find that: Mme. Hassan, wife of the Egyptian Minister, will entertain at luncheon on Thursday . . . Mr. and Mrs. Nevil S. Godwin, of the British Embassy, will have a few friends in for cocktails this afternoon . . . The Minister of Finland and Mme. Procope have cards out for dinner on October 29 . . . Dr. and Mme. H. H. Boon, of the Netherlands Legation, have set Saturday afternoon as the day for the christening of their small daughter . . . Baron and Baroness Stackelberg will be dinner hosts on Saturday night and Lady Patricia Latham will be guest of honor at a cocktail party the Kenneth Watsons have planned for Friday.

Addenda: Back in town for a few days is Mrs. Harold Hinton, who still calls the Capital "home," though her address has been Pensacola, Fla., for more months than she'll care to admit. When Maj. Hinton took off on a ten-day inspection trip by air, she caught the train for Washington and is now the guest of Undersecretary of Commerce and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor.

Huddles Leave Today for New Post at Bern

Mr. and Mrs. J. Klahr Huddle have packed their trunks, closed up their apartment at the Wardman Park and expect to leave today for New York, from where they will go to Berne, Switzerland.

Mr. Huddle, who has been director of the Foreign Service School of the State Department the last four years, has been assigned the post of Counselof of the American Legation in Switzerland. Being stationed on the continent will be like returning home to the Huddles, for Mr. Huddle's career in foreign service has been exclusively in Europe—his last posts have been in Poland and France, and he recently made a two-year inspection tour of the continent.

Melvin C. Jepsens Move Into New Home in Reno

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin C. Jepsen, who were married October 6 in Reno, Nev., have moved into the home which they have bought near Reno.

Mrs. Jepsen is the former Mrs. Mary Louise Tyner Stork, daughter of Mrs. Elonzo Tyner of this city. She was graduated from Holton Arms and also attended school in Paris. Mr. Jepsen is a well-known lawyer and mining engineer.

Robertses to Fete Mrs. Dunaway

Mrs. Richardson Saunders has as her guest at the Claridge Hotel Mrs. Anne Carson Dunaway, of Miami, Fla., only woman member of the Florida State Defense Council.

Tomorrow, she will be feted at a luncheon at which Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., will be hostess at her home on Le Roy Place.

Summerscales Honor Three at An 'At Home'

With three "honor guests," the Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. J. P. Summerscale entertained at an "at home" last evening after 9 o'clock. Sharing honors at the party were George L. Brandt, who is leaving shortly to serve as United States Charge d'Affaires in Berlin; Donal F. McGonigal, who will be off soon to Glasgow to serve as American Consul, and lastly, Miss Natalie Aszkenazy, who will leave to serve her homeland, Poland, in Russia very soon.

Some 80 guests or so dropped in to wish the trio bon voyage. Guests included diplomats, State Department officials and a number of newspaper people. The Yugoslav Minister and Mme. Fotich were there, as were the Egyptian Minister and Mme. Hassen, the Minister of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close, the Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy and Lady Chalkley, the First Secretary of the Embassy and Mrs. W. G. Hayter, the Commercial Counselor of the Canadian Legation and Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, the Commercial Counselor of the Netherlands Legation and Mrs. Kleijn Molekamp, and the First Secretary of the Iranian Legation and Mrs. Hadjeb-Davallou.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Henderson were in the interesting group, as were Representative Joseph E. Casey, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Dean Acheson, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Feis, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Pasvolski, Mr. and Mrs. William Culbertson, Mr. and Mrs. John Sherrod, Mr. and Mrs. Al Warner, Mr. and Mrs. David Finletter, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mr. and Mrs. David Cushman Coyle, Mr. and Mrs. John Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Domeratski, and many others.

Diamantopouloses Arrive for Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Christo Diamantopoulos are in Washington for a stay of a few weeks, coming here from Denver, Colo., and during their visit they are at the Wardman Park Hotel. With them is the latter's sister, Miss Bernardine Kirchhof, of Denver, Colo.

Mr. Diamantopoulos is the former Greek Minister to Moscow.

Countess Of Limerick Feted Here

The Countess of Limerick, who recently came from London to this country, was guest of honor at a dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis last night. She will be their house guest during her short stay in Washington.

Tomorrow she will be feted at a luncheon party to be given by the Chairman of the Red Cross and Mrs. Norman Davis at their home in Alexandria. That evening she will be honor guest at a dinner party at which Miss Mabel Boardman will be hostess.

She will be accompanied by Mrs. Dwight Davis today when she goes to Charlottesville, Va., to make a speech for the Red Cross. After several days the Countess plans to visit Annapolis before returning to New York.

She is the wife of the Fifth Earl of Limerick, and is the former Angela Olivia Trotter, daughter of the late Col. Sir Henry Trotter. The Countess is president of the London County branch of the Red Cross and is also a member of the executive board of the British Red Cross.

Srta. Del Prado Returns After Receiving Degree

Senorita Marina Nunetz Del Prado, a well known Bolivian sculptress, has returned to Washington after going to Troy, N. Y., last week to receive an honorary degree of M. H. L. from Russell Sage College.

Senorita Del Prado has been in the Capital for about a year as the house guest of Mrs. Harry A. Spigel. Mrs. Spigel recently exhibited some of the Latin American sculptress' work at her home on Connecticut Avenue.

Mrs. Dorothy M. Gregg Wed To Maj. Davis in Georgetown

Wedding Surprises Friends Who Expected It to Be Held Later in the Week

Stealing a march on many of their friends, Mrs. Dorothy Mondell Gregg and Maj. Sherlock Davis were married yesterday morning. A wedding breakfast followed at the bride's home in Georgetown, and they left afterward for Anniston, Ala., where Maj. Davis is on duty at Fort McClellan. Although the wedding was anticipated, it was expected to take place later in the week.

Down from Buffalo, N. Y., came the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Syndey Wolcott, for the ceremony, to which only members of the family and intimate friends were invited.

The bride wore a black velvet suit with epaulettes of braid and a cluster of white orchids. Two clips, of scroll design in three shades of gold, completed the ensemble. These were gifts of the bridegroom. She was given in marriage by Arthur Krock and E. Courtlandt Parker served as best man. The Rev. James Shearer Montgomery officiated at the 11 o'clock ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of the late Representative and Mrs. Frank W. Mondell, of Wyoming. The former served in Congress for 26 years, and during part of that time was floor leader. Mrs. Davis' first marriage to Alexander Gregg, which took place in Wyoming in 1927, was dissolved by divorce.

Among those who attended the wedding breakfast were Mrs. Mondell Landa, sister of the bride; Mrs. Davis' house guest, Mrs. Henry Hoyt, of Huntington, Long Island; Mrs. Gore Auchincloss, Mrs. Arthur Krock and Mrs. Harold Hinton, of Pensacola, Fla. Also there were the bride's three brothers, Frank, George and William Mondell.

Maj. Davis, who was graduated from Harvard University, was formerly technical adviser to the Securities and Exchange Commission and entered the Army in October. He was at one time with the National Guard in New York, where he was aide to Gen. William Haskell. At present he is on the staff of the Fifty-second Field Artillery Brigade of the Twenty-seventh Division at Fort McClellan.

Australian Envoy Entertains for Sir Earle Page

The Australian Minister, Richard G. Casey, entertained at a stag dinner party last evening in honor of Sir Earle Page, special envoy in London from Australia. Ranking guests at the dinner party given at the Legation on Cathedral Avenue included the British Ambassador, Lord Halifax; the Secretary of Agriculture, Claude Wickard, and the Assistant Secretary of State, Dean Acheson.

Mrs. Casey, wife of the Australian Minister, will leave today for New York City with Miss Pat Jarrett. They will go by motor and will remain there until the weekend.

Hendersons, Back From Honeymoon, Live in Arlington

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Leslie Henderson returned yesterday from their wedding trip and are now making their home at 1614 South Nelson Street, Arlington, Va.

The bride is the former Miss Mabel Lancaster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Lancaster, of Arlington. The Rev. M. P. German officiated at the ceremony, which took place at Bethany Baptist Church on October 11.

Gowned in a frock of soldier blue crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of roses, the bride had as her only attendant her sister, Mrs. David Walker.

David Walker was best man.

Miss Marlowe, P. M. Hedge Are Married

Petal pink bridal satin gowned Miss Marguarette Marlowe, daughter of Mrs. Roxie Longacre Marlowe, of Washington and Oklahoma City, when she exchanged vows yesterday at Calvary Baptist Church, with Porter M. Hedge, of Milwaukee.

A bouffant skirt fell from the long basque waist of her gown, and a poke bonnet of matching satin completed her attire. Her bridal bouquet was lilies and wheat.

Mrs. Hazel C. Deutsch, as matron of honor, wore emerald green velvet made on princess lines with a small matching bonnet. She carried bronze chrysanthemums. The other bridal attendants wore rust velvet and carried yellow chrysanthemums tied in green. They were Miss Margaret Wagy and Miss Laura B. Hughes.

Best man was Guy L. Bush, of Denver, and ushers were Joyce O. Roberts, Carleton W. Collin and Robert L. Sammons, all of Washington.

For traveling, the bride chose a wine crepe dress, which she wore with a wool coat, dark green hat and wine accessories. Visitors from out-of-town are Mr. and Mrs. A. Glen Marlowe, of Shawnee, Okla.; Arden McKee, Creston, Ia.; Mrs. Lewis Craven, Haddon Heights, N. J.; Guy L. Bush, Denver, Colo., and Guy Smith, Russell, Ia.

Mrs. Hedge was graduated from the University of Missouri and also attended Oklahoma City University. She is a member of Theta Sigmi Phi, journalistic fraternity, and for the last several years has been with the information division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in Washington.

Mr. Hedge was graduated from Iowa State College at Ames, where he was a member of Sigma Delta Chi journalism fraternity. He is now on the field staff of the office of information of the Department of Agriculture.

Speaker Sam Rayburn Is Host At Party For Argentine Statesmen

Pan American Union Is Scene of Fete For Visiting Group

By Patricia Grady

It was a "backwards party" last night that Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn gave at the Pan American Union in honor of the delegation of statesmen from Argentina headed by Jose Luis Cantilo, president of the Chamber of Deputies of that republic. Refreshments were served from the two long tables at the ends of the corridor just off the downstairs patio before the long—all masculine—receiving line formed to formally meet the several hundred guests who hailed principally from the Diplomatic Corps and Capitol Hill. But there was a reason for the precedent-shattering procedure—the guests of honor were an hour and a half late.

Their boat, the S. S. Brazil, from south of the border pulled into New York four hours late, throwing their precise and close-cut schedule into confusion. Once at the Mayflower Hotel, chaos reigned. Trunks and more trunks piled up in the lobby as members of the delegation sought to identify their luggage in which their all-important dress clothes were packed. But when they finally arrived, looking serene and impeccably attired, they were met at the door by the gently smiling Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Director of the Pan American Union, who had painstakingly greeted every guest as they arrived.

Group Gathers In Private Office

While the white-tied and shimmering-gowned guests strolled through the fountain-centered patio, into the refreshment-dispensing hall and on into the downstairs reception room, another group of guests awaited the distinguished honorees in Dr. Rowe's private office upstairs. In the book-lined room, Speaker Rayburn pursued his role of host on a more limited scale than he was to pursue it later in the evening. He and Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson found matters of serious import to discuss while Mrs. Stimson and Senora de Espil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador, sympathized with the luggage plight of the Argentine mission. Ambassador Espil was making frantic telephone calls and minute by minute reports on the sartorial progress of his country's statesmen while the Chairman of Foreign Affairs Committee of the House, Sol Bloom, relaxed in a comfortable leather chair near the massive mahogany desk. As for the ladies, Mrs. Stimson set off her dark gown with a strand of pearls and Senora de Espil doffed her silver fox jacket to reveal a full-skirted frock of bright blue chiffon topped by a paillette-decorated bodice of the same material.

Meanwhile the guests were becoming aware that matters were not progressing quite as usual. Conversation changed to speculation and the versions of the reasons for the delay were as varied as there were guesses. As a matter of fact, the unusual turn of events added greatly to the color of the party. And as long as the sandwiches, cake and punch held out—not to mention the stronger beverages that could be found at the bar in the back reception room—no one seemed to mind waiting.

When the honorees did arrive, no time was lost in forming the reception line at the head of the stairway leading into the second-floor ballroom. Next to Speaker Rayburn stood Ambassador Espil, then Senor de Cantilo, then Representative Bloom and after him the other members of the mission. Making up the rest of the group were Don Americo Ghioldi, Paul Damonte Tabora, Armando G. Antille, Juan I. Cooke, Nicanor Costa Mendez, Alejandro Gancedo, Adolf Lanus, Fernando de Prat Gay, Juan Simon Padtros and Americo Pretti.

After meeting the men of the mission, the guests went on to meet their ladies who formed an informal line inside the ballroom, headed by Senora de Espil and Senora de Cantilo. Senora de Cantila, a petite woman, wore a cape embroidered in silver sequins over her black chiffon dress. Adolfo Scilingo, Second Secretary of the Argentine Embassy, and his pretty wife, saw that the wives of the visitors met the incoming guests. And the United States Marine Band played on.

House Turns Out In Full Force

The House of Representatives turned out in full force and the Senators were there almost to a man. Senator Guy Gillette chatted with several of his fellow members and Representative Hatton Sumner, of Texas, was seen in conversation with the Colombian Ambassador, Gabriel Turbay. Representative Orville Zimmerman, and Representative Laurence Arnold, whose blond wife wore stunning elbow-length green gloves with her dress, were among the Congressional contingent as were Californians, Representative and Mrs. Clarence Lea, Representative and Mrs. Harry Englebright, and Representative Jerry Voorhis.

Mrs. John J. Dempsey, wearing a chiffon frock of yellow and pale green, encrusted with sequins, strolled through the patio with Mrs. Ewing Thomason and Representative and Mrs. Otis Bland. Miss Alla Clary seemed to know everybody present. Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper moved from group to group, stopping here and there for lengthy chats. Long after Speaker Rayburn had slipped away from the crowd, called his car, and gone back to his apartment, the first floor reception room was a moving mass of Senators and Representatives—enough on hand to call a session of Congress, on a moment's notice.

Others seen here and there were the Minister of Honduras and Senora de Caceres—her black net frock was trimmed in iridescent sequins—Senator Dennis Chavez with his petite wife who wore a long metallic evening coat of white gold, the Minister of Nicaragua and Senora de DeBayle, Leon Henderson with his wife, the Brazilian Ambassador and his talented wife, Mme. Martins; Senator Arthur Capper, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, Joaquin Elizalde, resident commissioner of the Philippines, and many, many others.

Romney Back From New York

Kenneth Romney, Sergeant-at-Arms of the House, joined Mrs. Romney in their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel last evening after spending the weekend in New York.

Mr. Romney was among those who went to New York to greet Jose Luis Cantilo, president of the Chamber of Deputies of Argentina, and Senora de Cantilo, together with the entire delegation who arrived in New York yesterday for a three-week visit in this country. Mr. Romney was the official representative of the House greeting the party.

Distinguished Audience Sees Play at National

"Distinguished" was the word for the audience that turned out in droves last night for the Capital opening of the latest Kaufman-Ferber play, "The Land Is Bright." George S. Kaufman himself, slipping into a box after the curtain went up, and Edna Ferber, seated in a back row at the National Theater, had a glimpse of one of the most outstanding audiences assembled in Washington this season.

Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. William O. Douglas, Lowell Mellett, and Senator and Mrs. Robert Taft were among those slipping into seats shortly before the play began. Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathew Dick were there; also, Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, Miss Pauletta Guffey, George Abell with Miss Lee Carson, Mrs. Carl F. Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Krock, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, Gladstone Williams, former Gov. and Mrs. O. Max Gardner, Mrs. Ernest G. Walker and her son, Mannix Walker, and scores of others.

Catherine Ramby, G. W. Brown to Wed

Mrs. Elsie Pote Ramby announces the engagement of her daughter, Catherine Mildred Ramby, to George William Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Brown, formerly of Waynesboro, W. Va.

The bride-elect attended the Sankanean School for Gorls in Philadelphia. Mr. Brown is a graduate of Eastern High School here. The wedding will take place December 5.

Committee for French Relief Holds Tea at Davies' Home

Although Mrs. Joseph E. Davies was unable to be present, she lent her lovely home on Foxhall Road for a tea yesterday afternoon given by the United Committee for French Relief. Autumn flowers filled the rooms and centered the tea table in the dining room, where a group of ladies poured tea.

Between 4:30 and 7 o'clock guests streamed through the house and during the latter part of the afternoon Hans Habe, escaped prisoner and author of "A Thousand Shall Fall," held them spellbound with a plea for aid to the prisoners. Also speaking was Josiah Marvel, of the Friends Service Committee.

Receiving in the place of Mrs. Davies, who is in Wisconsin, where her daughter, Nedenia Hutton, is a freshman at the University of Wisconsin, was another daughter, Mrs. Close Rand, and Miss Alice Dodge. Mrs. Rand had chosen a purple-blue ensemble with a matching feather hat. Miss Dodge livened her black ensemble with a pink hat.

In the hall, which opens onto the terrace, were Countess de Limur and Mrs. George Gordon, seated at tables taking donations. At still another table in the dining room was Mrs. Burrell Hoffman.

Bright chrysanthemums centered the tea table and pouring during the afternoon were Mrs. Arthur Fowler, Miss Carolyn Nash, who topped off her black ensemble with a bouquet of roses, and Mrs. John J. Ide, in a gray frock.

Just to mention a few, attending the tea and lectures were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Belin, Countess de Gramont, Mme. Hurban, wife of the Minister of Czecho Slovakia; Mme. Fotitch, wife of the Minister of Yugoslavia; Mrs. French Myers, Mrs. Charles Dewey, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman and many more.

Josiah P. Marvel, who was introduced by Mrs. Robert H. Dunlap, spoke on conditions in the concentration and prison camps abroad, in which he has been working for some time. Mr. Habe told of his experiences in the French Army, of his capture by the Germans and of his subsequent escape and journey to this country.

Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss and Princess Boncompagni are honorary chairman and vice chairman; Mme. Thenault, wife of Maj. Georges Thenault, former French Military Attache, is secretary; Miss Carolyn Nash is treasurer, and members of the executive committee include Countess de Limur, Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. Dunlap and Mrs. Hoffmann.

Occupied Europe Fast Losing Food

Nazi Requisitions in Some Areas Reported Causing Acute Undernourishment

Growing seriousness of food shortage in portions of occupied Europe is being impressed upon official Washington by reports from observers just back from abroad and information gained from other sources.

While food supplies in some regions will be sufficient to prevent serious distress, in other areas Nazi requisitions and interference with movement of supplies is bringing acute undernourishment.

Government officials, studying data on the amounts and types of foods available this year in the various countries, find this general picture:

BELGIUM

Belgium needs food. Vitality of Belgian children low. Country cleaned out of nearly everything humanly consumable. First, invading German armies requisitioned food, then came the German soldiers, pockets full of credit marks of uncertain value, to strip the shelves of stores.

Next, the Germans applied the policy of diverting food stuffs to certain classes, especially armament workers making arms for German armies. Then German commissions "purchased" all available stocks such as meats and vegetables at prices local Belgians could not afford.

One example of what went on: During negotiations between Belgians and Italians for exchange of coal for rice, German occupying authorities requisitioned the rice just as negotiations seemed to take favorable turn.

Other instances: Belgium bought potatoes in Holland. When potatoes arrived at the border, they were seized by military. The same happened with cheese. Three thousand tons of condensed milk ordered from Netherlands. Shipment of 500 tons reached Belgian border. Two hundred fifty tons immediately seized and sent to canteens of factories making arms for Germany.

Summarizing, the German military headquarters in Belgium completely and consistently upset distribution plans organized by Belgium Department of Agriculture.

Belgium, desperately needing wheat, made arrangement with France. French agreed to send them wheat. Germans got wind of it, intervened, saying that any excess French grain must go to Germany.

Belgium consumes 300,000 tons of meat per year. Pork is virtually unobtainable because Germans slaughter and requisition porkers exclusively for German army. Germans buy up all fruits and vegetables.

In sum, Belgian food situation is probably the most critical on the continent since Belgium depends so greatly on imported foodstuffs and feeds, normally supplying only 50 per cent of its food.

FRANCE

Situation almost as serious as Belgium. Same requisition policy by the Germans as in Belgium. Food situation first got public attention in September, 1940, when Germany demanded 58 per cent of the horses, mules and cattle in unoccupied France be turned over to Germany at once. French resisted, but at least 350,000 head of cattle were taken, and most of milk supply was reserved by Germans to make butter to be sent to Germany.

Germans insisted that French should be rationed one-third of the rations for the German occupying armies.

Not to be outdone, the Italian commission requisitioned food around Marseilles and Nice. Heavy transfers of food from occupied France to Germany, and sizable transfers from unoccupied France, especially all reserves of butter fats, potatoes, and meats. Food "pumped" from the area around Lyon into occupied zone and from there to Germany.

Few people could afford meat. Potatoes not obtainable. No butter. Very little fish. Milk only for infants and aged. Oil, grease, and fats virtually unobtainable. Eggs were rare. Fresh vegetables virtually disappeared. Poultry sold for double and triple the prices of three months before. During these winter months Red Cross supplies of milk and medicines arrived from the United States and bolstered French morale, but food situation deteriorated.

France can normally be virtually self-sufficient in food, except for oil, seeds, and rice. Some relief is coming through moderate wheat, barley, and mutton imports from North Africa.

NORWAY

German occupying forces are requisitioning all classes of foodstuffs. There is good reason to doubt German's claim they are taking only "limited" percentage of Norwegian reserve food stores.

Supply of meat, eggs, flour rapidly decreasing; milk production down 23 per cent and butter 55 per cent. Bread situation is becoming worse.

Prospect is there will be serious deterioration of food situation in near future.

DENMARK

German occupation has cut off imports of food stuffs necessary to maintain structure of Danish agriculture. Danish government was forced to reduce number of livestock. It is no uncommon spectacle to see carloads of pigs, poultry and cows leaving Denmark for the Reich.

Under rationing system, reserve food stocks are nearing depletion. It is estimated that 92 per cent of excess foodstuffs are going to Germany, as compared to 28 per cent before the occupation.

The Reich has emptied the Danish larder until it is dangerously bare.

THE NETHERLANDS

The German occupation forces have requisitioned or "absorbed" essential food stocks to such an extent that bread, butter, sugar, fuel and many other necessities were already severely rationed. Reserve supplies of garden produce are built up by the Germans in Holland only to be moved into Germany.

Eggs are rationed at the rate of one egg per person per week.

A serious feed shortage is expected and grain feeding must be reduced to about one-third. The meat situation will be the most serious in the immediate future.

SUMMARY

In the areas occupied by the Germans, conditions fall into one of three categories:

1. Food supplies in some will be sufficient to prevent serious distress.
2. In some, there will be definite and increasing shortage of essential foods.
3. In some areas, undernourishment will be acute.

In all areas, however, food reserves have been heavily drawn upon, food producing capacity is increasingly strained and there is a great shortage of draft power, farm labor and fertilizers.

Production of livestock in 1941 in Europe will hit a new low. Grain production may be better than 1940, but the root crop, lower. Distribution and transportation difficulties will continue. Consumption nowhere will be better than in 1940, and in many areas, it will decline even further.

Jury May Get Confession Today

His shirt sleeves were still unbuttoned. His face was serious and he was perspiring freely. Earlier in the day, when on the witness stand, Catoe smiled broadly at times, and seemed at ease.

After defense and Government attorneys had completed their presentation of witnesses yesterday in connection with the admittance of the confession, Justic Morris informed the defense that "testimony is extremely in conflict, and as such, falls in the realm of the jury to consider.

"However, if you wish to give an argument on the matter, I shall be glad to listen before I decide," he told Catoe's attorneys. J. Robert Esher replied that he did wish to argue the issue, and the remainder of the day was given over to arguments. Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly spoke for the Government, and when the court adjourned at 5:30 p. m., Justice Morris announced that he would give his decision this morning as to the status of the confession.

The court was tense, when during his argument against admittance of the confession, Attorney Esher told the justice: "There is no doubt that there are some cases in the District which look black for Catoe, but police had him exhausted and forced the Abramowitz confession out of him."

"If that be true," replied the justice, "it is as reprehensive and heinous crime as could be committed."

The eleven-man one-woman jury and a thirteenth alternate juror have been absent from the courtroom since last Friday when admittance of the confession as evidence was first fought by the defense. Catoe's attorneys sought to show that he had confessed under duress and threats, and after having been deprived of food and rest for 24 hours.

However, Maj. Edward J. Kelly and members of the police department denied these charges. In face of the conflicting testimony, Justice Morris probably will permit the jury to return to the court today, and all the testimony given since last Friday will be repeated.

In yesterday's session, Catoe took the witness stand again, and he considerably modified the previous account he had given of police beatings.

Patriotic American Order Opens 3-Day Convention Here

A reception and dance at the Hotel Willard last night opened the three-day convention here of the Order of Patriotic Americans, national women's fraternal society.

Earlier in the day, in preconvention ceremonies, wreathes were placed on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier by Mrs. Mary Riener, national president, and on the tomb of Washington at Mount Vernon by Mrs. Ethel Murray, national vice president.

About 400 delegates from all over the country, dressed in white, attended last night's affair, which was presided over by Mrs. Emma Buell, of Washington, convention committee chairman.

U. S. Sailor Lost On 'Swim' Here

Harbor police last night recovered from the Anacostia River the body of D. J. Hoar, United States Navy seaman who disappeared over the side of the tug U. S. S. Choptank early yesterday. The tug was moored at the Navy Yard.

According to Seaman R. J. Jordan, on watch, Hoar came on deck saying he was "going for a swim." Jordan persuaded Hoar to go below and led the way thinking Hoar was following. Running back to deck he heard a splash. Life rings were tossed over and a search for more than an hour was futile.

Kisses From Mother

Jefferson Barracks, Mo.—Private Clarence Bauer expected some sympathy when he went home with the story of a reprimand he had received from Acting First Sergt. Leo Versahge. Instead his mother gave him a box of candy to present to the sergeant. "I've been trying to make you mind for 18 years and I know what a job it is," she said.

Member of the Blue Army?

Asheboro, N. C., Oct. 20 (AP).—Jack Johnson is a patriotic citizen and believes in air maneuvers, but even his love for country can be shaken. Johnson had just had his car washed and waxed. As he drove down a highway, a bomber dove, released a "bomb" and scored a direct hit—on Johnson's car. The irate motorist jumped out of his flour-covered car, shaking his fist.

Zone Chiefs Hint Parking Ban Approval

Off-Street Facilities Also Supported In Discussion By Commission

The Zoning Commission yesterday took steps toward the attainment of a complete downtown parking ban and off-street parking facilities in new apartment houses.

Meeting in executive session, the Zoning Commission made no final decisions on the two problems, but in a discussion of the two proposals generally approved the ideas.

It was pointed out that while a downtown parking ban was desirable, it could not be attained until proper off-street parking facilities had been provided. It was decided to inquire into the possibility of inviting capital to build garages and parking spaces through the fixing of a parking ban as of some future date, such as 12 months ahead. Thus assured that the ban would be established, private capital would have a basis for building parking facilities.

A petition for erection of a $700,000 apartment house at Sixteenth and Shepherd Streets Northwest was deferred until the full membership of the five-man commission could meet. Commissioner John Russell Young was absent through illness yesterday.

Off-Street Parking Hearing Is Speeded

Public hearings on the off-street parking bill probably will be held next week by a Senate District subcommittee, Senator Harold H. Burton (Republican), of Ohio, said yesterday.

Senator Burton, chairman of the traffic subcommittee, said that he planned to confer tomorrow with R. F. Camalier, Senate District Committee municipal adviser, Director of Highways H. C. Whitehurst and Corporation Counsel B. Keech, regarding the matter.

Meanwhile, legislative action on the District's traffic troubles continued on the House side of Capitol Hill where Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, told the House District Committee that he is opposed to the employment of parking meters anywhere in the District.

He said that a full report on the hearings of his subcommittee on the fringe parking bill probably will be ready within a week.

"We found traffic conditions here chaotic," Representative Schultze reported. He repeated his statements of last week in which he urged the coordination of railway, subway, street car and bus transportation as the only means of solving the difficulties.

"No community in the country could handle this problem without Federal aid," he asserted.

He emphasized that the Commissioners should seek the cooperation of railway company officials immediately in setting up commutation means to nearby communities in Maryland and Virginia.

Nude Man Shot in Bank; Slashed Self

Crowd Terrorized With 8-Inch Dagger Before He Is Felled By Bullet and Seized

Nude and brandishing an 8-inch dagger which he had used to emasculate himself, a 25-year-old parollee from St. Elizabeths Hospital threw midday crowds into a panic at the Southwest branch of the American Security & Trust Co. yesterday before being subdued by a policeman's bullet.

Last night the man, Ralph Charles Cherrico, of 418 Tenth Street Southwest, still was alive at Casualty Hospital despite the bullet wound in his back and the self-inflicted injury.

Climaxing a series of eccentric actions on his part since 1929, the bleeding Cherrico dashed into the bank at Seventh and E Streets Southwest at 1:15 p. m., lunged with the knife at Assistant Cashier William B. Davis and scooped up handfuls of money from the till after Davis evaded him by leaping over a railing.

Mother Prostrated

Last August his older brother, Angela, a baker, had Ralph admitted to Gallinger Hospital on recommendation of a physician and two weeks later the youth was transferred to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for observation.

On September 17, the commission on mental health discharged him into the custody of his brother.

The youth's mother, Mrs. Angeline Cherrico, was prostrated with grief on learning of her son's action. His father, John Cherrico, a huckster who came to this country 50 years ago from Italy, sat on a bench in the little garden behind their home and wrung his hands.

Even after he was struck by a bullet from Policeman Otto Fuss' gun, Cherrico continued to struggle with several of the score of police who answered the burglar alarm and telephone calls.

Clothes Found in Alley

Finally subdued, he was taken to the hospital in critical condition.

His clothing, consisting of trousers, a lumberjacket, shirt and shoes, were found in an alley at the rear of the bank.

Friends said Cherrico had acted peculiarly since 1929, when he became totally deaf after a swim in the Potomac. Ink from a sewerage outlet of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing had gotten into his ears, they said.

Forced by deafness to leave St. Dominic's School, he enrolled in Gallaudet College and learned to do upholstering. Later he worked in the Goodwill Industries as an unholsterer.

Detective Seizes Suspect Fleeing Slaying Scene

Alertness of Detective Sergt. E. E. Scott of the Homicide Squad yesterday led to the arrest within a few minutes of a man wanted in the fatal shooting of a 21-year-old Negro youth.

Called to the scene of a shooting in the rear of 211 F Street Northwest, Detective Scott set out from police headquarters in a squad car and when at Second and E Streets Northwest, a block away, observed a man enter a cab. Suspicious, he pulled in front of the cab and commanded the driver to halt. Then he entered the vehicle.

"I didn't know the man, but I asked him his name and address and then fired a question at him, 'What happened up there?'" Scott said later.

"He started the argument . . ." the man began and halted, reaching for his pocket. Scott grabbed his hand and the man then said, "Well, get the gun yourself," according to Scott.

Scott took from the passenger a 32-caliber revolver. In the man's pocket were three cartridges. Scott, placed him under arrest but no charge had been placed against him at an early hour last night.

Police listed the dead man as Roosevelt James, of 625 Fourth Street Northwest. He was taken to Casualty Hospital and admitted for a gunshot wound in the left abdomen at about 1:30, dying two hours later. He had been discovered in an unconscious condition in the rear seat of his automobile in the rear of 211 F Street Northwest by Clifford Williams, 76 of 216 G Street Northwest.

Action of Scott was commended by Captain Robert J. Barrett, assistant chief of detectives and Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty, head of the homicide squad.

Lady Limerick Arrives

Messenger, 19, Fatally Injured When Motorbike Hits Standing Bus

Traffic deaths this year 74
Fatalities October 21, 1940 85
Total traffic deaths last year 79

A Western Union messenger was injured fatally yesterday when his motorbike crashed against a parked bus. His death was the seventy-fourth traffic fatality here for 1941. Earlier in the day a District visitor succumbed in Emergency Hospital to injuries suffered in an ccident on Mount Vernon Boulevard.

Edgar W. Preston, 19, of 612 G Street Southwest, died in Casualty Hospital two hours after his motorbike struck a standing bus on Michigan Avenue Northeast at Fourth Street.

Witnesses told police that the youth was ending over his moving bike, apparently in an attempt to make an adjustment, when it hit the rear of a Capital Transit bus. Police said the bus had been out on a trial run, and had been parked at the corner for some time before the crash.

Young Preston, who had attended Jefferson High School, had been working for Western Union two years and had reported to work at 7 a. m. yesterday, 2½ hours before the fatal accident. He leaves his parents, William Preston, a roofer, and Mrs. Edna Preston; three sisters, Juanita, Evelyn and Martha.

Mrs. Mary Kirst, 48, of Little Rock, Ark., died at 3 a. m. in Emergency Hospital from injuries suffered in a collision on Mount Vernon Boulevard 12 days ago, one day after her arrival here for a visit with her mother, Mrs. Mabel Chase, of 191 Seventeenth Street Northwest.

According to police, the collision occurred as the auto in which Mrs. Kirst was riding made a turn into the parking space at the bird sanctuary. Driver of the second vehicle, a taxicab, was listed as Cecil Sandall, of 12 Third Street Southeast.

Four-year-old Preston F. Bryant, of 816 L Street Northeast, was seriously hurt when struck by an auto in front of his home. The vehicle, according to police, was driven by Raleigh G. Green, of 419 Eleventh Street Northeast. The child was taken to Casualty Hospital with head injuries.

Three persons were hurt in a two-car crash at Dahlia and Ninth Streets Northwest. Taken to Walter Reed Hospital were Dorothy A. Helmick, 20; her sister, Mary, 18, and Nellie Meader, 47, all of 7131 Ninth Street Northwest. They were in an auto operated by Dorothy Helmick, police said. Driver of the other auto, Albert A. Reaghard, 22, of Walter Reed Hospital, was charged with colliding.

Fire Safety Rules Revised For Schools

A new, stringent policy of public school fire and safety inspections was announced yesterday by the Commissioners.

The tightened regulations, calling for annual inspections at the beginning of each fall school term, were drafted after a recent report by the fire marshal showed that only 30 of the city's 180 schools were safe from fire dangers.

Prepared under the direction of Engineer Commissioner Charles W. Kutz and his assistant, Lieut. Col. Beverly C. Snow, the new inspection rules provide:

That the director of construction and chief engineer of the fire department are to appoint representatives to make the annual inspections and that their examinations are to include fire protection devices and equipment in every public school.

Require Actual Tests

That the inspections be thorough in character and include actual tests of fire hoses and extinguishers.

That reports on results of the inspections are to state whether or not there is cause for alarm and, if there is, recommendations for repairs are to be submitted immediately to the D. C. Repair Shop.

That the director of construction is directed to report to the Fire Marshal within 30 days after the beginning of each fiscal year whatever action was taken during the preceding fiscal year to correct fire protection defects.

Funds to Be Asked

Correction at the "earliest possible date" of unsafe conditions at the Calvin Coolidge High School caused by a blocked tunnel egress also was ordered.

The Board of Education was requested to make the custodian of each school responsible for the care and operation of exit doors and to make daily reports to the principals.

An item of $20,000 will be included in the 1943 budget estimates to carry on the fire safety work.

Lots of Beauties

3000 Crowd Food Show For Opening

Amid a fanfare of music, prizes, samples and displays the Second Annual Food Show of Independent Distributors of the District got under way last night in Riverside Stadium with more than 3000 persons taking part in the carnival-like atmosphere.

Pretty girls were in great abundance. Five beauties have been selected to reign as queens over the show this week, one for each night, with the "queen of queens" being selected Saturday, closing night of the show.

The broad sweep of the Riverside Stadium floor has been transformed into a gay midway filled with decked stands displaying all sorts of food and drink. On a stage in the center Al Stern presides as master of ceremonies.

Last night Miss Capital did the honors as queen. She is Miss Marilyn Makin. Each of the girls represent one of the participating food distributors. Other queens are: Miss Helen Pender, Nation-wide; Miss Anna Staats, Goodwill; Miss Marguerite Knupp, District Grocery Stores, and Miss Barbara Henderson, United.

Other queens present were: Mrs. Ruth Licklider, 19, who won the title of "Mrs. America of 1941" in a beauty contest for married women last month at Palisades, N. J.; Miss Jean Cavanaugh, who represented Washington in the Atlantic City beauty contest and finished third, and Miss Jacquelyn McWin, who was queen of the turkey festival of Rockingham County, Va.

The food show was opened last night by District Commissioner C. W. Kutz, who gave a speech of welcome. Other talks were made by General Chairman Robert N. Hardy and Isaac Jacobson, president of the food show committee.

It was a merry crowd that wandered about the stadium, visiting the 75 booths. A turkey was won by Mrs. R. A. Mitchell, of 1025 Tenth Street Northeast. It was presented by the Turkey Queen, who will perform this duty every night of the show. Saturday night, when the show ends, a new automobile will be given away.

The show will be open today and through Saturday, daily at 2 p. m. till 5 p. m., and from 7:30 p. m. untill 11 p. m.

Lincoln Park Backs Roberts For PUC Post

William A. Roberts, former people's counsel, last night was indorsed to fill the vacant post on the Public Utilities Commission by the Lincoln Park Citizens Association.

The association strenuously protested the construction of Brentwood Bridge over the railroad tracks between New York avenue and the Patterson tract, and denounced the action as harmful to national defense.

Indorsement of the work of Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald was made following a resolution opposing proposed abolition of the coroner's office. William A. Van Duzer, traffic department director, was also given a vote of approval and disfavor of the move to bring in outside experts to solve the District traffic problems was expressed.

The organization also voted to join all local defense efforts and urged a stipulation in proposed court legislation that future District judges be required to have five years law practice here as well as five years residence.

Raymond Poore, secretary, was named chairman of a special membership committee which will conduct a 60-day drive.

Nonpartisan County Governments Sought

A move toward the establishment of nonpartisan county governments in the metropolitan area to free Federal employes from restrictions of the Hatch Act was made last night at the first fall session of the Interfederation Conference which held a dinner meeting in the Y. M. C. A., Seventeenth and K Streets Northwest.

The conference, which is composed of representatives of citizens federations in the District and surrounding counties, approved a resolution proposed by Albert A. Carretta, of the Arlington County Civic Federation, indorsing and approving in principle a resolution recommending this action be reported by the delegates to their constituent bodies.

Jesse Suter, of the Federation of Citizens Associations, proposed a resolution that the number of members be cut to the president of each group and only two other members. A committee was appointed to study the provision.

A proposal to refer to their several bodies the use of existing railroad facilities in the District and outlying communities for mass transportation to relieve the traffic problems here was adopted. Dr. Waldo Schmidt, curator of the National Museum who has advocated the plan for many years, explained it to the delegates.

Committee reports were heard from Harry N. Stull, president of the District Federation of Citizens, Stephen James, of the Montgomery County group, Dr. Meyers, of Arlington, and William G. Copley of Prince Georges County.

Sixteenth Street Heights

Daniel C. Roper, former Secretary of Commerce, 1933 to 1938, and minister to Canada during 1939, was given a reception last night at the silver anniversary meeting of the Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association in the Alexander R. Shepherd School, Fourteenth and Kalmia Road Northwest.

Roper, who was a charter member and the first president of the association in 1916, was also here to congratulate the incoming president, Harry C. Hemsley, who took over the chair from Retiring President Michael Cairns.

President Hemsley organized the business framework for the forthcoming year by appointing the following ten chairmen of committees, Earl W. Sapp, entertainment; Maj. Frank A. Frosp, education and community activity; J. Preston Swecker, nutrition, health and sanitation; Oliver E. Sweet, legislation and taxation; Perry Cleveland, streets and sidewalks; Charles J. Rush, membership; Myron Witters, programs and publicity; William H. Ramsey, licenses and zoning; Michael J. Cairs, public utilities, and Earl W. Sapp, fire, police and traffic.

Lincoln Civic

The Lincoln Civic Association last night announced a civilian defense mass meeting to take place Saturday night in Francis Junior High School. Edward F. Harris, president, appointed Mrs. M. H. Plummer, Mrs. M. E. Ellis and Walter H. Brooks, 3d, to a committee on arrangements.

At the meeting in Francis Junior High, Harris also appointed five alternates to the Federation of Citizens Associations. They are Dr. Henry Heath, Mrs. Plummer, Mrs. Ellis, Benjamin H. Miller and Eugene Terry.

The association will ask the Board of Education to reopen preschool class in Stevens School, and to inaugurate a similar class in Briggs Montgomery School.

'Y' Drive Enrolls 488 Members

A total of 182 members enrolled since last Thursday brought the grand total enrolled in the current membership campaign of the Central Young Men's Christian Association to 488, it was announced last night at a meeting of campaign workers in the association's building in 1736 G Street Northwest.

Prior to Thursday night, 306 had been signed up, it was revealed in a recount after an earlier count had shown 296 until then. The campaign will be a week old today and is to run to November 4, with 1350 new members as its goal.

Scottish Rite Masons Visit Mount Vernon

Following their traditional pilgrimage to Mount Vernon and a reception last night in the Scottish Rite Temple on Sixteenth Street, members of the Supreme Council, Southern Jurisdiction of Scottish Rite Masons, will turn this morning to the first business of their biennial session. This will be the election of Thirty-third Degree Masons and Knights Commander of the Court of Honor.

One hundred members and honorary members of the council motored to the home of George Washington yesterday afternoon to place wreaths on the tomb of the First President, who was a Mason.

Col. John H. Cowles, grand commander of the Southern Supreme Council, led the pilgrimage. With him went Dr. Melvin Johnson, of Boston, grand commander of the Northern Supreme Council. Harry G. Pollard, most eminent grand master of Knights Templar, and Thomas C. Law, imperial potentate of the Shriners of North America, also participated in the wreath-placing ceremony.

Returning to Washington, the entourage stopped at the home of Robert Mert S. Barrett, thirty-third degree Mason, in Alexandria, for tea.

The reception in the House of the Temple last night was preceded by a musical program. Edward C. O'Dell, of Baltimore, gave an organ recital. The Chevy Chase Chanters gave a group of selections. The Government film, "Know Your Money," was shown.

Tonight the visiting members of the order will witness a degree conferring ceremony presented by local Scottish Rite bodies. Out-of-town thirty-third degree Masons and those elected to receive that degree will be guests at a dinner in the temple Friday night.

The Southern Supreme Council was formed in Charleston, S. C., in 1801, and is the Mother Council diction includes all the States south of the Ohio River and west of the Mississippi, 33 in all.

District Labor Rally Urges Unstinted Aid

A labor rally for defense, sponsored by the District C. I. O. last night, called for unstinted aid for the foes of the Axis, including arming of merchant vessels, repeal of the Neutrality Act and using the Navy to guarantee delivery of war goods.

More than 300 unionists, including most of the local C. I. O. leaders, packed the Industrial Union Headquarters, 1407 L Street Northwest, to participate in the Labor Supports National Defense meeting.

The statement of policy adopted by the meeting also called for strong measures by America to immobilize Japan in the Pacific so that Great Britain and the Soviet Union may carry on the war more effectively in the West.

"America First" Assailed

The resolution charged that "in opposing America's defense program, it is apparent the America First Committee, Charles A. Lindbergh and others, are giving aid and comfort to Hitler."

In cases of priorities unemployment, the resolution urged WPA work relief at prevailing wages.

"Labor must make its efforts count in the building of morale and the civilian defense of our Capital City," the statement of policy continued. "We shall continue our work to make the city a better place to live in and a better place to defend."

Urged to Help OCD

C. I. O. members in the city were requested to join all civilian defense efforts here, and unions were asked to promote the sale of defense bonds and stamps.

Before acting on the resolution, the rally heard phases of the defense program discussed by Chief of Police Edward J. Kelly; Harry Stull, president, Federation of Citizens Associations; Dr. Robert R. R. Brooks, of OPM; Mrs. M. O. Lorenz, of the District Defense Council's consumer interest committee, and G. James Fleming, of the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practices.

Women's Bar to Meet

The Women's Bar Association will open its fall activities at 8 p.m. today in the Mayflower Hotel. Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox, president, will have charge of the meeting.

Brotherhood Club Dinner Tonight

More than 100 men are expected to attend the annual "kick-off" dinner of the Brotherhood Club of the Takoma Park (Md.) Presbyterian Church, tonight at 6:30 o'clock in the church hall, Maple and Tulip Avenues.

Dr. Seth R. Brooks, pastor of the National Memorial Universalist Church, will be the principal speaker. Guest soloist will be Edward M. Singer, tenor. President J. L. Lohoefer will be toastmaster. Roy C. Harbin is chairman of the dinner committee.

2 Boys Snatch Purse Of Police Matron

Two young white boys, who outran her in a two-block chase, last night snatched the purse of Virginia Stevens, of 205 Varnum Street Northwest, a matron at the Women's Bureau, while she was walking at Second and Upshur Streets Northwest.

She told police the purse contained $10 in cash and an heirloom ring.

Fifth Liberty Ship Set for Launching

The Liberty ship Charles Carroll, fifth of the projected fleet of 312 emergency cargo vessels, will be launched on Saturday at noon at the Bethlehem-Fairfield shipyard, Baltimore.

Her Heart Belongs to Daddy

All's well that ends well so we found Shirley Ann Barnes, 4, safe at home once again playing with little sister, Mary Jane. Shirley wandered away from her home, 1512 F Street northwest, yesterday. Martha Ann Griffith, 12, of 1327 Maryland Avenue Northeast, found Shirley, took her to Number Nine Precinct. Shirley entertained police by singing "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" until Daddy appeared to take her home

Laurel Visitor Finds Flagging Train Is Costly

Baltimore, Oct. 20 (AP).—When John Steadman, a laborer, found himself out of funds after visiting friends at Laurel, Md., he started to walk the 20 miles home to Baltimore along the Baltimore & Ohio railroad tracks.

A passenger train came along, Steadman picked up a red lantern near the tracks and flagged the train to a stop, climbed aboard and rode into Baltimore where an unofficial reception—a railroad detective—awaited him.

In police court today, Staedman was fined $15 and $1.45 costs on a charge of "unauthorized use of a B. & O. coach." The fare from Laurel to Baltimore is 40 cents.

C. L. U. Protests Police 'Harassing' Of Truck Drivers

The Central Labor Union, council of A. F. L. unions here, last night instructed its officers to confer with police officials with a view toward halting alleged harassment of truck drivers who legally double-park while loading and unloading.

A social security committee was organized, with Willy Arnheim as chairman, to inform A. F. L. members here of their rights and privileges under the Federal security legislation.

Robber 'Only Joking' But Laugh's on Him

A left hook to the jaw last night abruptly ended the career of a robber who was "only joking."

Anyhow, the joke proved to be on the thug, who strode into the grocery at 1469 P Street Northwest, face masked and hand menacingly in his pocket.

He walked directly to the back of the store where the proprietor, Harry Clayman, 49, of 1623 Varnum Street Northwest, was counting $170 receipts. He demanded the money.

Clayman's response was a blow to the jaw. When police arrived they found the grocer sitting on the thug. The robber had no gun and told dubious police he was "only joking."

16 Women Seized in Police Roundup Are Released

Sixteen women charged with vagrancy after their arrest early Sunday morning in a police roundup were released yesterday by Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court. Charges against the women, some of whom had put up $200 bond each for their release, were dropped.

Included in the roundup were 27 men, most of whom were released yesterday by police. About a dozen of the men are still being questioned in recent robberies and attacks on visiting soldiers.

Brief Biographies Of Court Nominees

Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat yesterday announced reappointment of three members of the District Court's committee on admissions and grievances. The committee has charge of the examinations for admission to the bar.

Those named were Walter C. Clephane, John E. Laskey and Joseph A. Burkart. They will serve until October 15, 1944.

Mr. Willkie Has a Word About That Trial by Fury

Feels Film Industry Increased Its Stature; Touring Plays Reap Rich Fall Harvest; Bits of News and Gossip of the Theater

AT THE MOMENT, nobody knows—probably including the committee membership—what is to come out of that abortive "investigation" of the motion picture industry's alleged determination to incite this country to war; whether the Senate subcommittee of the Committee on Interstate Commerce is going to drop its hot potato, pass it along to the full committee, let it freeze in a refrigerated pigeon hole, or what.

BETTY GRABLE

The only tangible reaction to the parasitic proceedings has come from Wendell L. Willkie, attorney in fact for the producers, in an interview with the veteran Terry Ramsaye, editor of Martin Quigley's Motion Picture Herald, foremost of the industry's trade journals. Mr. Willkie had this, in part, to say, as reported in the M. P. H., of October 18:

"Sitting on the witness stand in a Washington investigation is a special experience. The witness is subject to every pressure that can be put on a witness in a courtroom, and many more. He has no protection of rules of evidence, no protection of counsel, in such cases as this. He can be questioned in any manner at all about anything at all, whether relevant or not. He is at every disadvantage.

"In the face of that, I am proud of the showing that our four principal witnesses have made in Washington for themselves and for their industry. They have proved it is an industry. They have proved how well founded and how well built an industry it is. They have demonstrated their own long considered and constructive approach to the work of their industry and its problems as an industry and an art.

"Those four men (Nicholas M. Schenck, Harry M. Warner, Barney Balaban and Darryl Zanuck) could not have made the remarkable showing that they did, and could not have come through that hearing with all its examination, except as the representatives and participants in a sound industry with a sound story to tell. The important, honest facts were right there—and of such a substantial nature as to put the motion picture in a new light.

"There is no possibility of the kind of one-man control that some seem to assume. It is not the way of the arts and of expression. Nobody," insisted Mr. Willkie, "can do anything about that."

Perhaps, by this time, the isolationist-packed subcommittee has found that out. And perhaps not. Anyhow, there it is.

As time goes on—it has been two days now as this is hunt-and-pecked out—we become more and more convinced that "Quiet Wedding," currently being accorded its American premiere at the Pix Theater, is one of the most delightful comedies of the year. Everyone who has seen it seems to agree. It was remarked in the review that the names of those in the cast didn't mean too much to American audiences, barring Margaret Lockwood, of course. Derek Farr, her leading man, it turns out, is making his film debut in this picture, having been newly proselyted from the British stage. Marjorie Fielding and A. E. Matthews, as the bride's parents, you will recognize; Frank Cellier probably will be remembered from "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" and Athlene Seyler and Peggy Ashcroft will not be total strangers, either. They are all to be congratulated, along with the Pix and its audiences. Why "Quiet Wedding" wasn't snapped up for the big time is one of the cinema's major mysteries.

Another Prandial Preview

"A Yank in the R. A. F.," premiered at the Roxy Theater, in New York, at a $10 top, is being screened today for the goofs and gals of the drama desks. Since the Twentieth Century-Fox number costars Tyrone Power and Betty Grable and its unspooling is to be followed by luncheon at the Variety Club, the emaciated minions of the press probably will be present in full force . . . As we were saying yesterday, Lester Cowan, chief instigator and coproducer of the film version of "Ladies in Retirement," will be present at tomorrow's screening to dull the critical appetite for smart-cracking.

The bigger and better of the touring road attractions are rapidly reaching the point where they will pitch their snoots disdainfully toward the midday sun at anything less than $25,000 for the week. Katharine Cornell has grossed $104,117.50 on the first four weeks of her tour in Shaw's "The Doctor's Dilemma;" Helen Hayes, in Maxwell Anderson's "Candle in the Wind," has wicketed better than $125,000 in five weeks and the 21 backers of "Arsenic and Old Lace," who put up the original folding money to get the piece on, whacked up $40,000 in profits for the month of September. If the "road" is dead, "we'd admire to dig into the burying ground!"

That Theater Guild-American Theater Society subscription list at the National has jumped to the unprecedented figure of almost 6800 paid-up subscribers. The next subscription play will be the Guild's production of "Papa Is All," the new comedy of the Pennsylvania Dutch, due on E Street the week of November 10. Subscribers will receive their tickets about the first of the month. There still will be some left for the general public!

Cary Grant Gets Fan Mail Boom

To Cary Grant at RKO Radio have come an amazing series of letters. The writers range from president of a New York bank to a boy in college. Between those extremes were writers, other actors, businessmen, men planning a honeymoon, truck drivers and chemists.

All wanted to ask the costar of "Suspicion" the same question: "If you have time, will you tell me what tailor made for you the sport jacket, light tan without lapels, which you wore in a recent picture?"

Grant is answering all the letters personally, because he feels no man should be frustrated in his search for something he wants, but he wonders why all these men haven't seen such coats for themselves. The coat was not tailored for him. It was bought ready-to-wear in a shop on Hollywood Boulevard.

In fashioning "The Land Is Bright," George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber have contrived a play that expresses itself in terms of effective "theater" from first curtain to last.

Painting its picture of three generations of American wealth with a broad brush and in vivid colors, the new contribution to the theater's library of Americana, which was given its first performance in the National last night, sounds a stern warning in conveying its staunch faith in American character and courage. It dooms to death the "rugged individualism" that amassed private empires from a young America for the sheer pride of personal possession and halls as near the day when service to country will supplant servitude to covetousness. It accomplishes this dual purpose through three acts of turbulence in the palatial town house of the Kincaid family on Fifth Avenue, in New York, over a period of almost half a century.

The first act is pitched back in the rococco era of the late 90s when the Kincaid mansion represented a section hand's dream of opulence. Old Lacey Kincaid had been a section hand until he conceived the idea of running a pickax into a fortune of 200 million dollars after peeking enviously through the window of James J. Hill's private car. The second act and second generation are housed within the same walls, done in the speakeasy period of the early 20s. The final chapter, with the grandchidlren taking over, is today.

Violence Punctuates Action

The authors have punctuated each division of their comprehensive panorama with sharp bolts of melodrama. There is a visible killing in the first, when one of Kincaid's victims from the West metes out justice from the business end of a six-gun and removes the first of the family tycoons from further participation in the building of his house; an unseen killing in the gangster manner, in the second, when a harmless college lad is mowed down by the hoodlum who had put his sister on the spot, and an echo of Europe's horror in the last, when another grandchild comes to America from Italy a maimed and broken man at 43.

At the end of the second act it still is a bit difficult to foresee how the drama is to be rescued from the tawdriness of the events which it has unfolded to that point. The third act dissipates that doubt by establishing itself as the best and most forceful of the three. It develops in the third generation those qualities of straight thinking and strength that made the first the power that it was. But it directs them to service rather than to economic pillage and social outlawry.

In the main, the characterization is such as to trace the finest of the family traits through a succession of violent family dislocations to their ultimate survival. With so many figures involved and so fruitful a branching of the family tree, this is a matter that might easily have been far more sketchy than it is. The daughter who married a dilapidated title, the son who married a fancy lady of doubtful origin and the grandchildren who revealed a corresponding catholicity of taste, give the play a wide human range that permits of none of the niceties of minute character analysis. But "The Land Is Bright," comes close enough for all purposes of bold and humorous entertainment.

A Large and Lusty Cast

Although never delicate, this new examination of pioneer American stock pursues a course of gradually mounting refinement, which is well expressed by an able cast of extraordinary numerical strength.

Ralph Theadore and Phyllis Povah, as the Montanans suddenly sprung to vast riches, are a hardy pair, whose manners match the garish splendor of their gaudy palace. Their children, as impersonated by Martha Sleeper and Leon Ames—last seen locally in "The Cream in the Well" and "The Male Animal," respectively—add a little more polish than discretion to the family history, and Hugh Marlowe—"Flight to the West"—and K. T. Stevens and Diana Barrymore add the modern touch, accentuated by the equally effective miming of William Roerick, Dickie Van Patten, Constance Brigham and John Draper.

Jo Mielziner's elaborate settings supply appropriate backgrounds for the development of a drama that embodies most of the vigorous elements essential to wide popular approval and a continuance of last evening's nine curtain calls.

K. T. STEVENS,

one of the gifted young actresses in "The Land Is Bright," the new Max Gordon production which last night opened a week's engagement in the National Theater. Miss Stevens comes by her theatrical heritage honestly, being the daughter of Sam Wood, one of the most distinguished of Hollywood's motion picture directors. Hugh Marlowe has the male lead in the play

LEONARD LYONS

New York, Oct. 20.

When President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill met last summer at their rendezvous in the Atlantic, they began discussing the campaign being waged by the Russian army . . . "Tell me, Winston," asked the President, "how long did your generals tell you the Russian army would last?" . . . "Three weeks," answered the Prime Minister. "And what did your generals tell you?" . . . "They said two weeks," replied the President, "but please don't mention it to them. They're very sensitive about it."

GRACE MOORE

At the National Youth Day rally at the Commodore last week, Ethel Barrymore Colt was somewhat nervous before she went onstage. "I've been so busy arranging the entertainment program for tonight," she confessed, "that I forgot to make plans about my own bit" . . . "Why don't you do an imitation of your mother?" some one suggested . . . "I'll do more than that," Miss Colt agreed. "I'll do imitations of all the Barrymores—except Uncle John" . . . "But why omit John?" Ethel was asked . . . "Well," she explained, "do you think he's a good example for a youth-rally?"

Dorothy Kirsten, the lyric soprano, who has been sponsored and trained by Grace Moore, was signed for a series of radio broadcasts. Her first broadcast will be with John Charles Thomas . . . Toscanini heard Miss Kirsten sing. And mindful of that other Kirsten—Flagstad—the maestro said: "I hope you have the same good fortune as that other Kirsten, half of whose name you bear. Twice as much luck—for you, too, can sing, and you are an American."

When James C. Petrillo, head of the American Federation of Musicians, ordered all orchestras to forego their sustaining broadcasts, the officials of C. B. S. immediately engaged the Juanita Hall Choir to substitute for one of the programs . . . Petrillo's action resulted from a union dispute with a Pittsburgh radio station . . . The choir quickly began to rehearse special arrangements of a tune which they hoped would find favor among the listening audience, in this, their moment of opportunity . . . But C. B. S. cancelled that song. It was called "Join Dat Union Now."

Justice Ferdinand Pecora sat with a group of politicians who were reminiscing about the Republican Convention at Philadelphia last year . . . "Tom Dewey and Senator Taft had enough votes to stop Willkie," one of them stated. "If Dewey and Taft had come to an agreement after the early balloting, you know who'd be President today?" . . . "Yes, I know," said Pecora. "Franklin D. Roosevelt."

After the success of Michael Arlen's book, "The Green Hat," he came to New York, where he was feted by the socialites. George Jessel finally lured him away and took him to a smoke-filled speakeasy. There they saw a red-head, and Arlen expressed a desire to meet her. Jessel recognized her—a veteran showgirl—and introduced her to Arlen . . . who immediately began: "You remind me so much of a fair lady I knew in the yesteryear. Your eyes have that limpid quality seen only at Lake Lagoda, in early June. Your hair—a crimson glow comparable only to Vesuvius, when it smoulders before eruption. Your lips——" . . . The young lady interrupted to state, with great assurance: "You're full o' bull" . . . Arlen turned to Jessel and shrugged: "This is absurd."

Harry Flannery, the C. B. S. correspondent in Berlin, returned to America last week. When he went to the Foreign Office to get his exit visa, Dr. Schirmer was reluctant to grant it. "You broadcasters who come and go—that's no good," he said disapprovingly. "There's William Shirer, for instance." Flannery replied: "I want to get home to my wife and child—not to write a book." He obtained his visa, managed to take his notes with him—and will write a book . . . Flannery saw Max Schmeling, who was hospitalized after the Battle of Crete. Despite the heroic reports of Schmeling's being captured, then escaping and being wounded, Max revealed that he needed hospitalization only because he had come upon an abandoned canteen, drank some milk which had soured, and as a result he became afflicted with dysentery.

HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Oct. 20.

Studio that buys "Prayer for a Tomorrow," by Anne Parrish, and casts Dean Jagger in the star part will have a picture that will not only clean up at the box office, in my estimation, but be a credit to our industry.

MARLENE DIETRICH

A letter from Bob again!

Porterfield, head of the Barter Theater in Abingdon, Va., writes that one of the nicest things that happened this summer was Conrad Nagel's taking four weeks out to rehearse and play with his daughter there in "Petrified Forest." All he got was a ham, but it was great training for Ruth. Opening night she exited by the proscenium arch instead of the door. She won't make that mistake again!

Now that both Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Coogan admit that they're expecting a blessed event, I suppose I'll have to boast like all the other columnists and say, "I told you about that first in my column ten days ago—and before that on the air."

Marlene Detrich and Jean Gabin, at the opening of "Sundown," certainly didn't look as though there was any lessening in affection. Marlene's ermine stole and black hat with snood of ermine tails, designed by David Kidd, was sensational.

Jill Esmond, former wife of Laurence Olivier, is in town playing bits on the radio . . . Would you believe that Jack Oakie could become a silver-tongued orator? Well, he did, before a bunch of Denver businessmen, and doubled them up with his inside stories of Hollywood.

You've never heard such oh's and ah's as her girl friends are spilling over the six and nine thousand dollar little jeweled trinkets that Mary Livingstone brought back as souvenirs from New York. That girl sure has the Midas touch.

That nice John Howard plays a reformed criminal in his next. What bright producer will wake up to the fact that he's a leading man, not a heavy?

The boys in Iceland are not allowed radios and have no movie theaters, so Roger Pryor sent them 500 popular records, and recordings of the last three Screen Guild shows to keep them entertained. So if the stars will have recordings made of their shows, I'll see that the boys up there get 'em.

Laird Cregar has been so astoundingly successful in "The Man Who Came to Dinner" that he's been requested to take it stouring. But picture work won't let him. Yet two years ago, Laird couldn't even buy a dinner, much less play with one.

Nunnally Johnson's writing additional love scenes for Ginger Rogers and George Montgomery in "Roxie Hart"—the lucky people . . . Tom Keene has signed another two years deal with Monogram.

Record U. S. Food Output Is Predicted

By the Associated Press

Houston, Tex., Oct. 20.—Food production in the United States next year will be the largest in history as the Nation seeks to safeguard "against any contingency, at home and abroad," Roy F. Hendrickson, surplus marketing administrator, said today.

For the first time, he told the National Conference of Catholic Charities, "the full productive force of our farms is to be used to raise the foods we need."

Food is democracy's "powerful weapon," he asserted, and "on our ability to furnish essential foods to countries fighting against Hitler domination rests the fate and future of our freedom."

There are "many reasons" for the expansion, Hendrickson said: an increase in consumer buying power because of defense and other employment; the United States' pledge to meet a quarter of the British need for animal protein foods, and this country's preparations to create reserves to meet "a whole series of possibilities."

"We may have to supply the friends of democracy under provisions," of the lend-lease program more food than now appears to be required," he said.

The program for increased production, Hendrickson said, takes into consideration the factor of proper nutrition for all the people.

Hendrickson said specifically "the goals call for an increase of 10.5 per cent in the production of meat, including pork, poultry and other types. . . . Egg production is to go 10 per cent over this year's high figure.

"Milk production is to be increased by 7 per cent over the record supply of this year."

He also said the production of vegetables and of those crops from which vegetable oils are manufactured "must be expanded."

The administrator said the Nation had been "shocked by the fact that nearly half of the two million young men summoned for military service were found to be unfit for duty."

Many of these men's deficiencies, he charged, "could have been prevented with the right kinds of food. For this national weakness in our health defenses we stand indicted."

Hendrickson said: "Already, in occupied nations, hungry people are rising up against their oppressors. To the victors and vanquished alike an abundance of food, wholesome American food, ready for delivery from our stockpiles, will have a convincing appeal around the peace conference table."

Bishop Tucker To Be Given Church Honor

Bishops and other dignitaries from many parts of America tomorrow will participate in services installing the Right Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, D. D., in his presiding bishop's seat at the Washington Cathedral.

Marking the first time that a presiding bishop's seat has been designated in an Episcopal cathedral, the event is the culmination of long study by the Episcopal General Convention, which last October adopted a resolution favoring establishment of the seat.

Conference Opens Today

The installation will take place during the conference of the Synod of the Third Province of the Episcopal Church, opening today, and which will draw delegates from Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

Invited to attend the installation have been President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Vice President and Mrs. Henry J. Wallace, the British Ambassador and Lady Halifax and representatives of the Greek and Russian Orthodox Churches.

The synodical parley will begin today at 3 p. m. with a devotional service in St. Alban's Church on the cathedral grounds. Dinner will be served the deputies at 6 p. m. in Satterlee Hall.

West Virginia Bishop to Speak

The Right Rev. Robert E. L. Strider, Bishop of West Virginia, will address the synodical worship service today at 7:45 p. m. in the cathedral. Combined choirs of Washington Cathedral, the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, Holy Comforter Chapel and St. John's Church, Georgetown, will sing under the direction of Paul Callaway, cathedral organist-choirmaster.

Bishop Wyatt-Brown, of Harrisburg, Pa., president of the Third Province, will preside at the conference. The Women's Auxiliary of the Third Province will hold sessions during the parley.

Two Marines Hurt As Plane Falls Afire at Quantico

A Marine Corps plane crashed in ames on the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad at Quantico, Va., last night, injuring its two occupants.

The Navy Department reported the accident occurred soon after the takeoff from Brown's Field, at the Marine Base.

The pilot, Second Lieut. William W. Dean, Marine Corps Reserves, from Hopkins, Minn., suffered burns and lacerations. Private Joseph L. Brandon, of Jonesville, N. C., was slightly burned and suffered shock. Both were treated at the Marine base hospital.

Telegraph wires were knocked down in the crash, disrupting telegraphic communications for half an hour. A northbound R. F. & P. passenger train was delayed an hour while the wreckage was cleared.

Boy, 4, Shoots Himself With Dad's Pistol

WALTER JAMES ANDERSON

Walter James Anderson, 4, shot himself yesterday with his father's .38 caliber revolver while playing before his home at 3401 Thirty-fourth Street, Mount Ranier, Md., then crawled into the house and up a flight of stairs before collapsing from loss of blood.

Officials of Sibley Hospital said last night the boy would recover. He was shot in the right leg near the hip.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott Anderson, the boy's parents, said he must have obtained the gun from a cupboard on the second floor of the home. The father, a night watchman at the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission in Hyattsville, said he placed the gun in the cupboard before going to sleep.

The child was found at the top of the stairs by his aunt, Mrs. Norma Anderson. The Bladensburg Rescue Squad took him to the hospital.

Episcopalians Told to 'Know' Community

Dr. Almon R. Pepper, head of the Episcopal Church's social work department, yesterday presented suggestions for a social program for the Christian Church in an address here.

REV. PEPPER

He spoke at a conference of the Washington Diocese's department of Christian Social Relations at the College of Preachers, the Washington Cathedral.

Declaring that "every parish should and can know the facts about its community," Dr. Pepper said that could be accomplished by gathering factual material about the religious, social, educational and physical welfare of the people.

He advised visiting public and private social and welfare agencies to get acquainted with their programs, and suggested an evaluation of the community picture in the light of Christian love and justice.

"Each church," he said, "should work with the community by giving moral and financial support to accredited local agencies, such as the Community Chest, by supplementing their activities through regular volunteer service and by cooperating in organized needed community services and improving existing ones."

The Right Rev. John Ward, Bishop of Erie, is presiding over the conference, which continues through today.

Mrs. Fauset Named Civil Defense Aide

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant director in charge of volunteer participation, Office of Civilian Defense, announced yesterday the appointment of Mrs. Crystal Bird Fauset as special assistant to Mrs. Eloise Davison, assistant director in charge of women's activities.

Mrs. Fauset was born in Princess Anne, Md., and reared in Boston. She is a graduate of Teachers College, Columbia University, and a member of the board of trustees of the Cheyney State Teachers College, Cheyney, Pa.

A former member of the field staff of the national board of the Young Women's Christian Association, Mrs. Fauset was the first Negro woman to serve in a State Legislature. She was elected a member of the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania in 1938.

D. C. Member Elected Girl Scout Officer

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 20 (AP).—The election of Miss Bernice Hess, Girl Scout director at Milwaukee, to the presidency of the National Association of Girl Scout Executives, was announced at a conference of the association today.

Other officers elected were Miss Eleanor Durrett, Girl Scout director at Washington, D. C., vice president; Miss Teresa Carter, Girl Scout national headquarters in New York, secretary, and Miss Elizabeth Bealer, also of the national headquarters, treasurer.

Mrs. Roosevelt Left Nazi Girls Out of Speech

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 20.—Because her prepared script was too long, the National Broadcasting Co. said today, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt omitted from her radio talk last night a reference to a news report that German girls had been told it was their duty to have children by German soldiers regardless of whether they were married.

"It (the speech) was cut for timing, and she cut it herself," an N. B. C. spokesman said. "It was two minutes too long."

The President's wife spoke from Boston (WBZ) on her weekly sponsored broadcast over an N. B. C. network.

In her prepared script, Mrs. Roosevelt quoted from an article she said she saw in the New York Times which stated:

"A girl evading her duty is a traitor just like a soldier deserting his flag . . . for pure-blooded German girls there exists a war duty outside marriage and which has nothing to do with marriage."

She said the article "took my breath away."

Mrs. Roosevelt also omitted from her talk a reference to a Quaker friend who she said in her script had just returned from Europe and told her that he was troubled by cruelty shown by German girls brought to France to work.

The additional material eliminated from her talk read:

"And when I read articles such as the one quoted above, I can well understand that when duty to your country does violence to your natural inclination and your moral standards, it becomes fanaticism and leaves no room for gentleness and pity in the hearts of German women."

$200,000 Yule Bonus

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 20 (AP).—Santa Claus made his first 1941 appearance today. J. M. Joyce, president of a carbonated beverage company, announced plans for distribution at Christmas of $200,000 in additional compensation to the firm's 500 employes.

Goal in Sight, Roll Call Drive Is Extended

The District Red Cross Roll Call, scheduled to end last night, has been extended through Monday. The decision to prolong the drive in hope of securing the needed 200,000 members was made at a meeting of roll call chairmen early last night in the headquarters, 2020 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

The largest number of members ever secured in one day, almost 30,000, was reported last night by the volunteer canvassers after what was expected to be an intensive last day's drive. With the drive prolonged, the chairmen were confident the goal of 200,000 would be reached by next week.

As of last night, the campaigners were 50,000 members short of the goal.

The extension was made at the request of the government unit, which was sure that a few more days would bring it thousands of enrollments to meet the quota.

Over the top with their quotas last night were the booths unit, the Takoma Park, D. C., unit, and the utilities, residential, and financial units. Edgar Morris, general chairman of the drive, presided over the meeting at the headquarters last night.

Second Admits Guilt In Nazi Spy Ring

New York, Oct. 20 (INS).—A possible 20-year prison sentence tonight hung over Carl Herman Schroetter, 48-year-old operator of sightseeing boats in Miami, Fla., who pleaded guilty today to being a Germany spy.

A native of Switzerland but claiming to be a United States citizen since 1930, Schroetter is the second member of the seven-member spy ring allegedly led by Kurt F. Ludwig, reputed Nazi intelligence agent, to admit his guilt. Lucy Boehmler, 18, pleaded guilty shortly after her arrest and since has been understood to be "informing."

'Devil's Tail' in Many, Says Gipsy Smith

The octogenarian evangelist, Gipsy Smith, in top form for the first weekday meeting of his current city-wide revival, last night warned that too many so-called Christians are partly saved or not saved at all.

"Too many of you still have a bit of the devil's tail in you," he cried from rostrum of First Congregational Church, condemning bad temper as one of the greatest sins.

"Jesus saved me from a bad temper," he said, and admonished the congregation that if they wanted to be really "second-born" that all vileness, sin and selfishness had to leave their hearts and minds.

Ignorant of Grace

"Tens of thousands of us have the 'saving grace of a hottentot,' and are as ignorant about what saving grace means as a baby," he declared, as his right fist hammered down on the pulpit.

"Too many of us are saved from here up," he said, fingering his forehead, "but we don't have it down here," and placed his hand on his heart. From the congregation came a chorus of "Amens."

"It's not your notions but 'Jesus in you' that make new creatures," he went on to say, referring—as he did several times during his message—to one of his most popular revival hymns—"Let the beauty of Jesus be seen in you."

Mrs. Gipsy Smith, the evangelist's youthful auburn-haired wife, whom he married in 1938, occupied a place with the volunteer choir from several churches and sang a hymn solo, "It Is Jesus." William E. Braithwaite, choir leader of National City Christian Church, conducted the group singing. Dr. Howard Stone Anderson, host church pastor, was on the platform.

Gipsy Smith is speaking daily at 7:30 p. m. and Sundays at 4 and 7:30 p. m., Saturdays excepted, through November 2. Friday will be "Young People's Night."

Mrs. Isabelle Bier Rites Tomorrow

Mrs. Isabelle Bier, 72, of 649 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, died early yesterday at Sibley Hospital after a brief illness. Funeral services are to be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Epworth Methodist Church, and burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

A native of Baltimore, Mrs. Bier came to Washington in 1917. She was the widow of Robert L. Bier, Folger Library and Library of Congress official, and was active in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and Epworth Church affairs.

She leave three daughters, Miss Elmira Bier, of Washington, Mrs. P. S. Watts, Severn, Md. and Mrs. A. M. Pennington, of McLean, Va., and one son, Dr. Robert A. Bier, of Washington.

with the things you've always liked— and 15 new ones too!
● The famous Pontiac Triple-Cushioned Ride—even further improved—is still yours in 1942.
● Pontiac's new Unisteel Bodies by Fisher give you the strength and quality for which they have long been famous.
● Vital engine parts—pistons, bearings, connecting rods and crankshafts—are unchanged in the 1942 Pontiacs. The only major change is in Pontiac's exclusive lifetime oil cleaner—and that's improved.
● For even easier handling, travel of the gearshift lever has been reduced 30 per cent. Pontiac's exclusive Tru-Arc Steering is also retained.
● Riding comfort has been improved, and so has roadability. Pontiac's famous gas and oil economy remains at the same high peak.
● For 1942 Pontiac front wheel brakes have been increased in size and all four brakes are now triple-sealed against dust, dirt and water.

Rapid-Fire Production of Rapid-Fire Guns!
Charged with building a new type of rapid-fire cannon for the United States Navy, Pontiac is now turning out these complicated weapons with ever-increasing speed and efficiency. A new plant is being rushed to completion to increase floor space correspondingly. Our most skilled workmen, our top-ranking production experts and the organizations of 223 sub-contractors and suppliers are working night and day, six days a week, to fill this Navy contract—and fill it right. We're in rapid-fire production of the Navy's rapid-fire guns!
Pontiac's 1941 models were by far the most popular Pontiacs ever produced. Now, however, they are superseded by the new Pontiacs for 1942—better, in 15 different ways, than the cars they replace.
Improvements in the new Pontiacs are largely improvements in engineering design—changes which it was possible to make without interfering with the needs of defense. But the things that have built Pontiac's traditionally high quality over the years—such as electroplated pistons, Tru-Arc Steering and metered flow lubrication—have been retained without change.
Come to see the new Pontiacs soon. We are sure you will agree that Pontiac deserves, more than ever, to be called the Fine Car with the Low Price—the car you can drive for many years to come, if need be!

Abe Simon Battered, Bout Stopped in Fifth

Franklin Scores Over Louis' Victim

Negro Heavyweight Knocks Simon Down In 1st Round; End Quick in 5th Round

By the United Press

Cleveland, Oct. 20.—Lammin' Lem Franklin, Cleveland Negro heavyweight, tonight smashed and battered Abe Simon into a helpless hulk in less than half the time it took Joe Louis to score a technical knockout over the gigantic New Yorker in the fifth round of their ten-round fight at the Cleveland Arena.

Simon, rated the No. 2 heavyweight contender for Louis' heavyweight crown, was lolling helplessly against the ropes from a bruising avalanche of rights to the head when Referee Joe Sedley called a halt at 1 minute and 33 seconds of the fifth round.

Simon Helpless

Simon as he was led helpless from the ring, turned to his seconds and mumbled that "they never should have stopped the fight." He was bleeding from two cuts over his right eye.

Franklin, giving away 54 pounds to Simon who came in at 235 pounds, shot a straight right to Simon's head midway in the first round and knocked the massive heavyweight to the canvas for a nine count.

Again in the second the explosive right of Franklin found its mark and almost knocked Simon through the ropes. He fell inward onto the canvas, however and took a nine count.

Big Abe Rallies

Simon recovered slightly in the third and managed to score with several lefts to the midsection while Franklin regained his strength from his hitting spree.

Franklin set Simon up for the kill by battering him from rope to rope in the fourth. Simon went down from a straight right just before the bell as the capacity crowd roared. The count reached nine before the bell rang.

The end came quickly in the fifth as Franklin smashed in right after right to Simon's head and sent him reeling into the ropes. Simon lay over the ropes with Franklin hitting him at will when the referee stopped it.

Pearce Cites Two School Football Needs

The lack of a hospitalization fund and a place to play night football are the main failings of the local high school grid setup in the opinion of Hardy Pearce, temporary head of the public school department of health and physical education.

Speaking at the weekly Football Writers Association luncheon at the Stables yesterday, Pearce accented the above in a talk scheduled to outline "What Is Wrong With High School Football Here." Otherwise, he said, local high schools are holding their own in a grid way, even showing some improvement.

Pearce lauded the 19-year age limit imposed on public school athletes three years ago, giving that as the reason for the present even status of all teams. He also said Washington schoolboys appeared able to play on even terms with out-of-town elevens.

85,793 to Watch Wolverines and Gophers Battle

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 20 (AP).—A harrassed University of Michigan ticket manager wiped a perspiring brow today amid the greatest demand for tickets he has ever seen in 22 years on the job.

It's all because of the Michigan-Minnesota game here Saturday for which pasteboards are no longer available.

As a battery of telephones tinkled constantly, Harry Tillotson's reply was the same, "I'm sorry, we're all sold out."

That means that 85,793 rabid gridiron followers, expecting a battle royal in the Nation's No. 1 game, will jam the huge stadium to capacity to see the collision of the two football behemoths.

"I never thought I had so many friends," said Tillotson. "We could sell 25,000 more tickets."

Scalpers are expected to do a booming business on the day of the game.

Meanwhile, extra details of police had to be called out today as hundreds of undergraduates jammed the athletic office for the distribution of student tickets. One girl fainted in the crush. Usually, students do not exchange coupons for tickets until a day or so before a game.

Parker May Play Against Giants

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Clarence (Ace) Parker, star of the Brooklyn football Dodgers backfield, who was injured in yesterday's game with the Chicago Cardinals, probably will be able to play against the New York Giants Sunday, according to the club physician, Dr. W. M. Genthner.

"Ace suffered a slight concussion but is getting along very good," said Dr. Genthner today. "He'll probably be able to leave the hospital tomorrow."

Poll Gives 1169 Points To Gophers

Longhorns Second With 1095 Points; Wolverines Third Ahead of Duke

By Bill Boni

Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Oct. 20—It was Minnesota and Texas still running one-two today as 127 of the Nation's football experts scanned performances of the top college teams throughout the country and, in the second of the weekly Associated Press ranking polls, kept these two teams at the head of the parade.

At the same time they established Saturday's clash at Ann Arbor between Michigan and Minnesota as very much the week's outstanding battle, and perhaps one of the most vital of the season. For Michigan, on the strength of its 14-7 conquest of Northwestern, was boosted from sixth place a week ago into third, only 263 points back of Minnesota.

The Golden Gophers, No. 1 team in the land a year ago, polled 69 first-place votes, worth 10 points each; 33 for second place, and only 1 vote for lower than fifth position. This gave them a total of 1169 points, to 1095 for the Texas Longhorns, impressive winners over four rivals from as many conferences, and 906 for Michigan. Texas was ranked at the top on 33 ballots and Michigan on seven.

Duke, dropped down a notch by the Wolverines' climb, also was first choice of seven voters and polled 758 points. Thus the first four teams dominated the poll to such an extent that they drew far more than half of the total number of points awarded.

Back of the Blue Devils came Navy, the East's ranking representative, which climbed from seventh to fifth; Fordham, dropped from fourth in spite of a good-looking win over West Virginia; Notre Dame, which moved from eighth to seventh though it was none too impressive against Carnegie Tech; Santa Clara, up a notch from ninth and only all-winning major team left on the Pacific Coast; Texas A. and M., Texas' strongest rival in the Southwest and that sector's best eleven in 1940, and Tulane, only beaten team to crash the first ten and doing so because of its thundering defeat of North Carolina.

Texas A. and M. and the Green Wave made the biggest advances, the Aggies coming up from fourteenth place and Tulane from seventeenth. They shoved Ohio State, still undefeated but only after a close call with Purdue, down to No. 11.

Besides the Michigan-Minnesota battle, already guaranteed a sell-out of better than 85,000, the first tenners are paired as follows this Saturday:

Texas with Rice, already beaten and with Bob Brumley, its ace back, injured; Duke with Pitt, seemingly in for its third straight trouncing; Navy with Harvard, whose upset of Dartmouth promises a real test for the sailors; Fordham with Texas Christian; badly hurt by the loss of Triple-threat Kyle Gillespie; Notre Dame with Illinois, Santa Clara with Oklahoma, Texas A. and M. with Baylor, which lost its best back, Jack Wilson, last week, and Tulane with Mississippi, loser to Georgetown earlier.

The stand of the teams (first-place votes in parentheses, points figured on 10-9-8-7-6, etc., basis):

FIRST TEN

1—Minnesota (69)	1169
2—Texas (33)	1095
3—Michigan (7)	906
4—Duke (7)	758
5—Navy (3)	614
6—Fordham (3)	500
7—Notre Dame	354
8—Santa Clara	253
9—Texas A. and M.	243
10—Tulane (1)	220

Second ten—11—Ohio State (1), 206; 12—Penn, 139; 13—Northwestern, 96; 14—Clemson (3), 70; 15—Vanderbilt, 62; 16—Oregon, 53; 17—Temple, 51; 18—Oregon State, 48; tied for 19—Villanova and Stanford, 24 each.

Also-ran—Washington, 18; Mississippi State, 13; Georgia, 11; Southern Methodist, 10; Missouri, 9; Alabama, 8; Nebraska, 5; Texas Tech, 4; Rice, 2; Mississippi and Army, 1 each.

Michigan Fully Aware of Task In Gopher Tilt

By the Associated Press

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 20.—Michigan still exulted today in its sensational victory over Northwestern but saved room among all the cheers for grim thoughts of an approaching battle—the struggle next Saturday with power-laden Minnesota.

The Wolverines, now positively a serious challenger for the big Ten football championship and high national ranking after having started the season as a question mark, began reloading for the Gophers in an effort to duplicate their mighty performance against the Wildcats.

Each unbeaten and untied, the Little Brown Jug rivals will clash in the No. 1 game of the day before a full house of more than 85,000 fans. The huge Michigan stadium has been sold out for days for the first capacity crowd here since 1929.

All the rave notices greeting the Wolvernies for their achievement last Saturday were balanced by acknowledgments of Gopher strength, and Coach Fritz Crisler himself was being careful to tone down the cheering section for the sake of keeping the fighting morale high.

That was a principal job for Fritz, a past master at bringing out 100 per cent effort. Observers, however, agreed that Crisler—with all respect to his eloquence—will have done something remarkable if Michigan reaches the peak it did against Northwestern.

Michigan came out of the Northwestern fracas without serious damage, but may have to call on 60-minute men again next Saturday if the Gophers are to be held off. Minnesota is plentifully stocked with reserves.

Crisler's deepest frown appeared when he talked about Minnesota.

"They're big and tough," he said laconically, and let it go at that.

Above all other factors, the Northwestern game proved that Michigan could get along even without Tom Harmon. That has been the biggest worry of the Wolverine followers, whose prayers seem answered by the rugged Tom Kuzma.

The sophomore pitched both touchdown passes against the Wildcats, did some next-to-miraculous punting and smashed the line almost as ably as Fullback Bob Westfall, who operates like an Army tank.

Although the victory over Northwestern represented an all-out effort, the Wolverines probably will have something new for the Gophers as well as a defense aimed at stopping the fleet Minnesota backs, among them the same Bruce Smith whose 80-yard run beat Michigan last year.

Boston Bruins Plunge Into Ice Hockey Action

By the Associated Press

Hershey, Pa., Oct. 20.—Boston's champion Bruins, their preseason drills only a day old, advanced to the scrimmage stage today as they rushed preparations for their first practice game Wednesday night with the Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League.

In addition to his squad from last year, Manager Art Ross is looking over a dozen recruits to see if any can fit into the picture this season when the Bruins launch their defense of the Stanley Cup.

After Wednesday night's tilt, the two teams will meet again on Saturday night with a third and final game scheduled for a week from Wednesday.

The entire squad reported in good shape and most of the players got in two long workouts Saturday although the official drills did not get under way until yesterday.

G. W. Scrimmages For Indian Battle

'Our Morale Is Still High,' Says Coach As He Drills Colonials for Norfolk Game

"Our morale is still high," commented Coach Bill Reinhart yesterday as he sent his George Washington football team through its first scrimmage in preparation for a battle with William and Mary at Norfolk on Friday night.

Reinhart referred to the 25-0 trampling administered the Colonials by Georgetown last week.

"I know we looked bad," he admitted, "but the boys aren't taking it too hard. We should show improvement against W. and M., we even hope to win this second Southern Conference outing of ours."

Chief reason for Coach Bill's optimism is the return—in fairly good health—to the squad of Scott Gudmundson and Paul Nugent, seasoned backs. Their return, and that of Wingman Johnny Picco, who could work only part of the Hoya debacle, brings George Washington to almost peak strength.

In W. and M., the Colonials will be meeting another top-heavy favorite whose latest exploit was a 16-7 routing of V. P. I. last week.

Scrimmages stressing offense will be staged through tomorrow, after which action will lessen a bit. Reinhart is almost satisfied with his defense, giving particular credit to Johnny Konizewski and Henry Augusiewicz, tackles, but he feels that G. W.'s offense is something less than terrific. Nugent and Gudmundson, he hopes, will remedy that.

Kalorama Kids Bow

The Cleveland Clippers romped over the Kalorama Kids, 20-0, yesterday at Phoebe Hurst School. Starring for the victors were Bunky Copperthite, Bill Conant and Houston Jones.

Baltimore Quota Of Middie-Irish Tickets Bought Up

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Oct. 20.—Naval Academy athletic officers hung the "sold out" sign up at noon today in the downtown ticket office for the Navy-Notre Dame football game at Baltimore Stadium November 8 and said a capacity crowd of 63,000 was assured for the annual grid classic.

When the final allotment of tickets was put on sale this morning, a line of purchasers extended two blocks, and several hundred were turned away when the supply ran out.

Dr. Cousins Scores Ace at Burning Tree

Dr. Sydney Cousins made one of the few holes-in-one of the season at the Burning Tree Club yesterday when his three-iron shot on the fourteenth hole trickled into the cup for his first ace.

James M. Shea, Dr. Paul Putzki and Baird were members of the foursome.

District Ring Body Suspends Bob Hayden

The District Boxing Commission yesterday suspended Bob Hayden, local second, for 90 days on the most important of several counts of rules violations reported by Willie Blake, chief inspector.

Hayden was accused of signing contracts as a manager and collecting fees although holding only a second's license. He was requested to appear at the regular weekly meeting yesterday but was not on hand.

Hayden had made an agreement with Taylor Miller to meet Lou Bass on last week's all-star card at Uline's but when Miller appeared at the weighing-in at noon he was pretty well battered from a bout in Baltimore the previous night, which is contrary to the local rules.

Marty Gallagher was made an official commission referee, following his temporary appointment two weeks ago.

Promoters Joe Turner and Johnny Attell appeared and received permission to stage shows on any agreeable dates, rather than be held down by any specific dates.

Nothing further was announced in regard to the proposed Harry Bobo-Lee Savold fight. If the match is definitely made the commission will demand the appearance of Bobo and Savold four days in advance of the bout.

Cleveland Trainer Undergoes Operation

Cleveland, Oct. 20 (AP).—Max (Lefty) Weisman, veteran trainer for the Cleveland Indians, underwent a gall bladder operation today. The office of Dr. E. R. Castle said Weisman's condition was satisfactory.

Old Zeke Bonura Gets the Ax Again— Army Gives Him Unconditional Release

By the Associated Press

Camp Shelby, Miss., Oct. 20.—Grinning Zeke Bonura, who spent seven years being shunted from one major league baseball club to another was released again today—from Uncle Sam's Army.

Discharged because the draft age has been lowered to 28 since his induction May 19, the 33-year-old first baseman said he expected to be back in baseball next spring. But as usual his affairs are muddled and he'll have to ask Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis what club owns him.

Bonura claimed today the Chicago Cubs sold him to Minneapolis early last season "when they discovered I was going to be draft bait." He was leading the American Association in hitting and apparently headed back to the majors when the Army called.

"I don't know what club I belong to now," he said. "Things are so mixed up. I'll have to see Judge Landis to find out where I stand.

"But I'm sure I'll be back in baseball next spring. I lost only half a season and I'm in good physical shape—just like I had been at a baseball camp. You've really got to hand it to the Army. It keeps a man in good shape.

As assistant to the athletic officer of the reception center here, Zeke had spent much time coaching baseball and softball.

"I like the Army all right," he declared, "and I wouldn't mind coming back if I'm needed and can do any good."

Special Dispatch to The Post

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 20.—The North Carolina University football team took a terrific 52-to-6 beating at the hands of Tulane Saturday, but the squad received a conqueror's welcome when it returned home shortly after midnight today.

More than 1500 students and others were on hand.

A motorcade met the Tarheel bus at the town limits and President Frank Graham himself was among the throng that made the welkin ring. Coach Ray Wolf and Capts. Dunkle and Suntheimer were carried off the bus on the shoulders of yelling students.

Wolf, visibly touched, said it was "the finest demonstration of loyalty I have ever seen."

"We have no alibis," he told the crowd. "Tulane has a great club and we took a licking. But you can count on us to be ready Saturday." The team plays Wake Forest then.

Cincinnati Fines Heavyweight Boxer

Cincinnati, Oct. 20 (AP).—Pat Manginia, Philadelphia light - heavy weight knocked out in the first round by Ezzard Charles Monday, was fined $50 today by the Cincinnati Boxing Commission.

Dewy Fragetti, a New York booking agent, was suspended from further operations here for six months. The board ruled that Fragetti misrepresented Mangini's condition.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

It's no less than a reign of terror in the National Football League. The Chicago Bears are not only beating the luckless clubs on their schedule, they're humiliating 'em. When the Bears fail to score fewer than 44 points in a game this season, they're in a slump. That figure has been their average in the four games thus far, and when last seen in 1940, you remember, the Bears were stampeding the Redskins, 73-0.

POVICH

No National League team has even completed the season unbeaten since the division playoffs were instituted in 1933, but that's another record the Bears will probably wipe off the books. The adventuresome, if not foolhardy, soul who might want to wager that the Bears will lose a game before the season ends, would be lugged off to the psychopathic ward if he made the bet in public.

There's nothing in the league apparently capable of stopping the Bears and their T-formation. George Halas' gang has already demonstrated its superiority over the Western teams, having, averaged those 44 points against the Packers, Lions, Rams, and Cardinals. The only Eastern teams they'll meet before the playoff are the Eagles, Steelers and Redskins. The Eastern club with as much as a ghost of a chance to beat the Bears, the Giants, aren't on Halas' schedule. They may, of course, meet in the play-off, if the Giants win in the East.

It was a Giant team, incidentally, that did beat the Bears the last time Halas' club had a chance to finish the schedule unbeaten. In 1934, the Bears swept through 13 games without a defeat and encountered the Giants in the play-off, only to lose to a New York club that had been beaten five times during the season. But that defeat requires explanation. It was played on an icy gridiron at the Polo Grounds where Coach Steve Owen, of the Giants, outsmarted the Bears by shodding Ken Strong and his other backs in rubber basketball shoes.

Bear's Foes Scorn Defensive Game

To footballmen, it's still incredible that any club can bang through the opposition for as many touchdowns as the Bears have been scoring. With due allowance for the efficiency of the T-formation, the six touchdowns the Bears have been averaging per game are still amazing. Football's defense was supposed to have reached as high a peak of efficiency as the offense. At least care was taken in the rules committees to strive toward something of a balance. But with the Bears, theories of defense haven't been working.

One football coach in the pro league attempted to explain the phenomenal scoring of the Bears, recently, and made it sound logical enough. "The Bears could be held to lower scores," he said, "if that was the idea of the men who coach the other clubs in the league. But the only way to beat the Bears is to outscore them. You can't beat 'em by playing a defensive game, because they'll lick you with one or two touchdowns. When the Bears are licked, they'll be licked by a score of 28-21, or something like that. The team that plays a defensive game might hold the Bears' score down, but it won't beat 'em."

The only pro team which has attempted to emulate the Bears' T-attack, the Philadelphia Eagles, has won only one game in five, but Coach Greasy Neale is still a firm believer in the formation. Against the Redskins, the Eagles' T-formation almost pulled out a victory, and there were times when the Redskins were as bewildered as on that day last December when the Bears were hoodwinking them with the T. At Philadelphia, Neale has installed the T in a young team, and its intricacies have not been fully captured. The Eagles, in another year, may be a club to be reckoned with in the league. Certainly Neale is emphatic when he says he is not going to junk the T-formation.

Redskins' Improvement Detected

The Redskins should not have been too surprised at the passes completed by Tommy Thompson of the Eagles the other day. He has been in the league for three years now and when he was in college he impressed this department as the finest collegiate passer these eyes ever beheld. We saw him playing with Tulsa against George Washington in 1938, when they called him Tossin' Tommy, and no man ever looked like more of a replica of Sammy Baugh.

Coach Ray Flaherty has said that his is the sort of a Redskin team that will improve as the season progresses and that may be true. His two lines are beginning to compare favorably with any line the Redskins ever had, and Andy Farkas is beginning to carry the ball again with the abandon that always was one of the prime assets of this hard-hitting back. Those folks who detected Sammy Bauch in a passing slump early in the season were jolted out of their ideas by Baugh's performance against the Eagles.

It is almost possible, though, to sum up, even at this point, the number of games the Redskins will lose this season. A team that was able to beat the Dodgers and Steelers by only three and four-point margins, scarcely figures to beat the Giants, the Packers or the Bears, and they may get licked by the Rams and Cardinals. From here, it looks like six victories and five defeats for the Redskins, which is not a pretty picture.

Solem's Reversed Center May Be a 5th Backfield Man

Coach Building Plays for Turn-round Snapper Back; Will Pass, Kick and Run

By the United Press

New York, Oct. 20.—Ossie Solem, the old Syracuse Orange, tossed off another football brainstorm for the boys today by disclosing that his new reversible center may shortly blossom out as a genuine, money-back sextuple threat man whose major duties will be performed in the backfield instead of along the line.

The Orange coach, who two weeks ago rocked the experts to their very insteps by introducing a center who faced his own backfield instead of the defensive team, said that if plays go on as scheduled this jack-of-all-actions will (a) snap the ball, (b) run the ball, (c) kick the ball, (d) pass the ball, (e) block, and (f) lead the interference.

He won't do all these things at the same time, to be sure, but Solem explains that he will take his place as a full-fledged fifth member of the backfield. The deception he will thereby add to the offense may make the "T" formation look like something a few small boys improvised on a Sunday afternoon. That is, if the officials rule him legal.

Officials Rule

To date, the men with the silly striped shirts have held that before the center can indulge in extra-curricular activity he must wheel around like a homing pigeon. Such a maneuver obviously would tip off any trick plays, but Solem thinks that he is perfectly within the rules and will ask for an official interpretation.

The scheme is a bit complicated, so let's give Solem the stand:

"A few people still are puzzled about my reversible center," he explains. "Well, I've always thought it perfectly stupid to stand a center on his head when he is snapping back the ball. First, it leaves him easy prey for opposing linemen and, second, it practically eliminates him from action as a blocker. He is in no position to attack.

"When I first considered turning

Bump Hadley Gets Release From A's; Rookie Catcher Out

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Oct. 20. — Irving Pump Hadley, veteran righthanded pitcher, and Rookie Catcher Johnny Leovich, former Oregon State College athlete, were released outright by the Athletics today.

Manager Connie Mack said he wanted to give both ample opportunity to make other connections.

Leovich was signed this spring while the A's were training in California. He was optioned to Toronto later. Hadley was purchased from the New York Yankees, in midseason.

Harvard's Hopes of Upsetting Navy Dealt Severe Blow

MacKinney, Star Punter And End, Out

Leg Injury Will Keep Him Out for Week; Other Ailing Boys Rejoin Squad

By the Associated Press

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 20.—Harvard hopes of coping with mighty Navy were given a severe setback today when Dr. Augustus Thorndike, team physician, ruled that Loren Mackinney, the Crimson's outstanding end and punter, would be unable to play.

Mackinney, whose tremendous boots kept Dartmouth in trouble as Harvard won, 7-0, suffered a leg injury late in the game which proved so serious that Dr. Thorndike said it would be impossible for him to play at all against Navy Saturday.

Other injury victims, Dick Pfister, the regular right guard, and Wayne Johnson, sub fullback, have recovered and will be able to see service.

Coach Dick Harlow gave his regulars a holiday as a reward for their Dartmouth victory but he put on a scrimmage between his B and C units. He plans long but not too rugged drills for the rest of the week.

Show Horses Die In $100,000 Fire

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 20 (AP).—Twenty-four horses—including some of the top show animals of the country—were believed destroyed tonight in a spectacular $100,000 blaze which swept through the Beasley stables.

Workmen and the owner, A. J. B. (Doc) Beasley led nine animals to safety. The fire originated in a loft loaded with 2500 bales of hay.

Included among the victims were Miss Dorothy Lee's Bronze Flash and Lotta Silver; J. M. North jr.'s Marguerite Livingston and Royal Fascination; and Argentina, Hazalene Dare and Orey Success, owned by Mrs. Harold C. Morton, of Los Angeles. Argentina formerly belonged to Mrs. Frances Dodge's stables.

Jim Hatcher Wins Baltimore Bout

Baltimore, Oct. 20 (AP).—In a rough, brawling battle, Jimmy Hatcher, South Carolina featherweight, took a 10-round decision tonight from Billy Speary, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Both weighed 128¼.

Hatcher lost the seventh round for roughness, when he wrestled Speary to the floor. In other rounds he outpunched the Wilkes-Barre fighter.

In the 10-round cofeature, Pete Hernandez, New York, won a split decision from Sol Bartola, Boston. Hernandez weighed 122 to 126 for Bartola. Bartola score da knockdown in the first round.

Fall Table Tennis Tournament Is Set

The fall tournament of the D. C. Table Tennis Association will be held Saturday at the Columbia T. T. Center, it was announced last night. Early round matches will be staged at 3 p. m. and semifinals and finals at 8 p. m.

Both singles and doubles are on the schedule, with the results to be used in Washington ratings and the selection of a team to play intercity matches. Entry blanks, which may be obtained at Columbia, must be at 3330 Fourteenth Street by Friday noon.

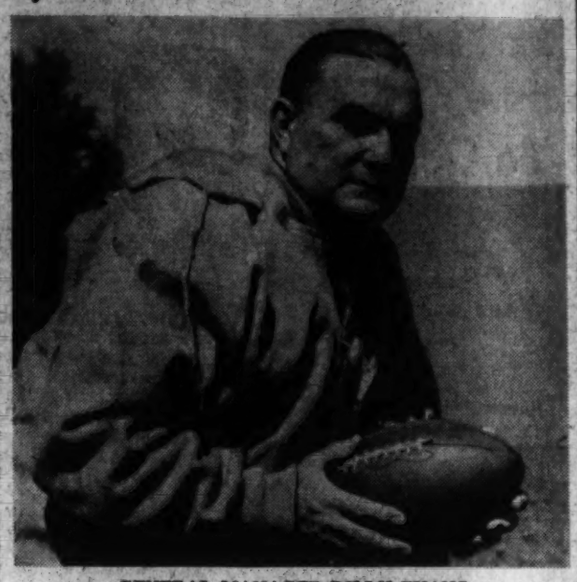
Culpeper Eleven Has an Open Date

Special Dispatch to The Post

Culpeper, Va., Oct. 20.—Culpeper High's football team has an open date for Friday, October 31, and is seeking an opponent, the game to be played preferably at Culpeper.

Any accredited high or prep school in Virginia, Maryland or the District of Columbia without a game for that date is invited to communicate at once with Coach Ed Null, Culpeper High School.

Redskins Promised Trouble By Rams' Drake and Hall



GENERAL MANAGER BILLY EVANS

Cleveland's Poor Record No Indication Of Its Strength; Local Pros Rest

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The Cleveland Rams, starring the coaches' favorite ball carrier, Johnny Drake, and a slightly crippled pass sensation, Parker Hall, will be here Sunday and the rumor is that the Redskins are in for plenty of trouble.

The Rams are currently holding down third place in the western division with two victories and four defeats but they are not that bad. Two of their defeats were at the hands of the Green Bay Packers, one Sunday in the last minute of play, and another by the Chicago Bears.

The Rams scored 21 points against the Bears in defeat, however, while the Cardinals, Green Bay and Brooklyn together only totaled 25 against the George Helas point machine, and the other defeat was at the hands of the Detroit Lions a week ago Sunday, when the Rams were a crippled aggregation.

Made All-League

Drake is probably the most powerful running fullback in the game today. He was all-league last year, while Hall was the most valuable player the preceding year. They paced the Rams in victories over the Cardinals and Steelers in the first two games of the season.

Hall played against the Packers Sunday, but his passing was limited to short heaves. He may be ready for the Redskins this week. The Rams will arrive Saturday morning and will follow the Redskins into Griffith Stadium for a workout.

The Rams, who have made fewer visits here than any team since the Redskins have called Washington home, are the stepchild of the Western division. They play the Packers and Bears each twice in the toughest possible schedule arrangement, plus the Redskins and Giants once each.

Coach Pleased

Coach Ray Flaherty, who was well pleased with the Philadelphia performance following his criticism of the preceding Sunday's letdown against the Steelers, is going to stick to another week of hard practice. At least one scrimmage is listed, probably today, following the usual Monday off-day.

Sammy Baugh will be missing from today's practice as he left Sunday night by plane for a visit with his wife and week-old son in Sweetwater, Tex. Sammy was the second papa of the week as Jim Stuart's wife presented him with a girl Friday night at their home in Oregon. Stuart does not expect to see his family until after the season.

The two mystery men of the Redskins, Ken Dow and Al Kreuger, are still just that although Dow came within a play of seeing action against the Eagles. Flaherty was all set to use him on a Redskin advance but as Dow was getting last-minute instructions the Eagles took the ball on a pass interception and Ken sat down to stay.

Kreuger is still going through the process of being shifted from end to tailback and, although it may sound like an over-night move, it takes lots of time and he may not see action to any extent for several games.

The colleges have obligingly given the whole show this coming weekend to the pros and with the 'Skins should draw a capacity crowd.

Undefeated Texas Aggies Surprise All

By the Associated Press

College Station, Tex., Oct. 20.—The Texas Aggies, who learned their football from the bench, are rolling along with the Nation's undefeated, untied teams.

A month ago the experts couldn't make up their minds whether to rank the cadets fifth or sixth in the Southwest Conference race. If Arkansas hadn't shown up with such slender prospects the Aggies probably would have been dropped even another notch.

"They lack experience," said the wise boys, pointing to the absence of such greats as John Kimbrough and Jim Thomason and the bulk of one of the stoutest lines in conference history.

Today the Aggies are sitting alongside the mighty longhorns of Texas at the top of the ladder with the free prediction that when these two squads meet on Thanksgiving Day the title will hang in the balance.

Where did A. and M. get a team able to run up 158 points on four opponents, meanwhile allowing only seven to be scored against it?

Man, A. and M. had it all the time. It was just sitting on the bench waiting for departure of the team that ranked No. 1 in the Nation in 1939 and lost but one game in 1940.

But the boys didn't lack experience. They collected splinters on Saturday but three times during the week they played against the best team in the country. They learned more football that way than if they had worked a few quarters against regular opponents on the schedule.

They were good, but were just not needed by Coach Homer Norton. Quite a few were thus saved a year or two of eligibility.

Then, too, there were several serving out ineligibility stretches.

The Aggies caused mild interest when they swept over Sam Houston State. The fans perked up when they crushed A. and I. and New York University. They got really excited last week when the Aggies beat a Fine Texas Christion University team in convincing fashion, showing speed, aggressiveness and versatility much like the elevns of 1939 and 1940.

And that, folks, is the story of the team that learned all about football from the bench.

Alibis and Hopes From Nation's Gridiron Camps

Eastern Football Briefs:

Dartmouth Veteran Is Almost Ready for Clash With Yale

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 20 (AP).—Dale Batholomew, veteran Dartmouth back, worked out with the third stringers today and all but earned himself a starting berth in the coming football clash with Yale.

Army Must 'Forget'

West Point, N. Y.—Coach Earl Blaik told his Army squad to forget about Columbia's defeat by Georgia last Saturday "because the Lions still are one of the best teams in the East."

Rams' Santilli Works

Big Loss for Penn

Philadelphia—Don Bitler, versity center, will be lost to the unbeaten Pennsylvania eleven for the Maryland game Saturday because of an ankle injury.

Checkup at Colgate

Hamilton, N. Y.—Coach Andy Kerr sent his Colgate Red Raiders through a light signal drill, checking assignments for Saturday's clash with Cornell.

Manhattan Revises

Owls Polish Defense

Lion's Nose Broken

New York.—Stewart McIlvennan, Columbia's lightweight fullback, suffered a broken nose in the Georgia encounter but will compete against Army wearing a special mask.

B. C. Shifts Guard

Newton, Mass.—Joe Repko, veteran Boston College guard, was shifted to tackle where Steve Levanitis played until sent to the bench for at least two weeks by a leg injury.

Shakeup at Yale

New Haven, Conn.—With one regular and three second stringers on the casualty list as a result of the Army game, Coach Spike Nelson tried revamping his Yale lineup in quest of a harder hitting defensive combination for the Dartmouth contest Saturday.

Crusaders Eye N. Y. U.

Worcester, Mass.—Four changes were made in the Holy Cross lineup as the Crusaders began preparing for New York University's visit. Sophomore Walter Hoar was promoted to first team right guard while the other changes were necessitated by injuries to regulars.

Movies Help Tigers

Princeton, N. J.—Princeton regulars watched movies of Vanderbilt football plays and then went through a brief signal drill against Commodore formations.

Third Skating Club Set for Season Here

The third official ice skating club has put in an appearance here, it was announced yesterday by the Ice Palace, and it will be called the Winterclub of Washington. Already more than 200 skating enthusiasts have signed up in the organization, whose president is George D. Snell, former National A. A. U. champion.

Tech Juniors Blank Young Raiders, 6-0

The junior varsity grid team of Tech High tripped Western Juniors, 6-0, yesterday at the winner's field. Jim Brookbank's 25-yard dash set up the only score in the third period and Jack Gilmore carried the ball over from the 2-yard line.

Two Illinois Backs Return, Bolster Squad

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 20.—Quarterback Lavere Astroth and Fullback Myron Pfeifer, who missed the Illinois rout of Drake Saturday because of injuries, rejoined the squad today as preparations began for the Notre Dame engagement.

The players got off light with a two-hour signal drill after reviewing their play against Drake.

Badgers Drill Briefly

Madison, Wis., Oct. 20.—Wisconsin went through a curtailed drill today but the Badgers, pepped up by their 23-to-0 victory over Iowa, are in for heavy sessions the rest of the week for the home-coming game against Indiana Saturday.

Coach Harry Stuhldreher said he felt that the squad had gained some much needed confidence by spilling the Hawkeyes and will be a much tougher club from now on. He named Quarterback Tom Farris game captain.

Two Nebraskans Out

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 20.—Nebraska football fans moaned anew today when Maj. Lawrence M. Jones announced starting guard Herb von Goetz and tackle Clarence Herndon will not be able to play against Missouri Saturday in the game which may mean keeping or losing the Cornhuskers' Big Six title. The squad viewed movies of Saturday's 21-13 defeat by Indiana which showed the Hoosiers' reverse plays worked more because of weakness by the Nebraska line backers than by the line itself. Then they heard a scout opine "Missouri could beat Indiana."

Team Wrestling Again Featured At Local Arena

Two-man team competition will be resumed at Turner's Arena Thursday night on the wrestling show featuring Nanjo Singh, the "cobra clutch" king, and Ernie Dusek, the Nebraska Wildcat.

Maurice LaChappelle, the Frenchman, and Ace Freeman, of Wisconsin, who have hung up an enviable local record in tandem battles, will be pitted against Eddie Newman and Fred (Legs) Grobmier in a special bout.

Also arranged yesterday was a semiwindup between Pat Fraley, the Pacific Coast champion, and Frank Judson, erstwhile Harvard wrestling coach. They will meet in another of the elimination tournament matches.

A special added attraction will find Elvira Snodgrass, the scufflin' gal hillbilly from Smokie Mountain, Tenn., meeting Carole Starr, of St. Louis.

Ohio State Maps Battle For Wildcats

By the Associated Press

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 20.—Ohio State played Northwestern on a luncheon table top today, with napkins and the tablecloth serving as a gridiron—as Coach Paul E. Brown of the Bucks mapped strategy with his two top scouts, Fritz Mackey and Paul Bixler.

Afterward Brown declared:

"Well, it's easy to see that Northwestern is faster than we are. With several of our boys on the hospital list, it looks like we are in for our toughest ball game Saturday—maybe too tough."

End Charley Anderson, Fullbacks Jack Graf and Dick Burgett, Halfback Dick Fisher and Quarterback Johnny Hallabrin came out of the 16-14 win over Purdue with injured legs, and Brown wasn't certain that all of them would be ready for Saturday's clash with the 'Cats.

The Bucks polished up their offense in today's practice session, but planned to work on defense the remainder of the week.

Irish Scrimmage

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 20.—Football Coach Frank Leahy of Notre Dame, disappointed with the line play in the 16-to-0 victory over Carnegie Tech last Saturday, put his squad today through its first Monday scrimmage of the season to polish up a running attack for next Saturday's game with Illinois.

"We made 251 yards from rushing against Carnegie, but we had no goal-line punch," he said. "We got two touchdowns, but we were thrown back three different times inside the Tech 5-yard line."

Purdue Praised

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 20.—Purdue University's football players were lauded by Coach Albert H. (Mal) Elward today for their showing last Saturday at Ohio State, which beat them, 16 to 14, but warned against Iowa, which they will meet in a homecoming game next weekend. "Iowa is bound to be on the rebound after that Wisconsin setback," said he, referring to a 23 to 0 licking the Hawkeyes took Saturday.

Indiana Back Hurt

Wildcats Drill

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 20.—The Northwestern Wildcats returned to the drill field today for a lesson in pass defense and ball handling, weaknesses which cost the team a decision against Michigan last Saturday.

Head Coach Lynn Waldorf, however, did not censure his boys too severely as they prepared for the Ohio State test.

"We played much better against Michigan than we had the previous two Saturdays, he said, "but our mistakes cost us the game. We really beat ourselves."

Southern Football Briefs:

Battling Sophomores Shine In Southeastern Conference

By the Associated Press

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 20.—Credit the sophomores with a big part of the Southeastern Conference's Resurgence in football prestige last weekend.

While several big 12 representatives were handing shellackings to intersectional foes, the first year chaps were in the thick of things, enough of them to make two whole teams.

Standout performer, perhaps, was Clyde Ehrhart, Georgia's 200-pound center. Pronounced by one expert "the outstanding lineman of the field" as the Bulldogs drubbed Columbia, the Murfreesboro, Tenn., product played a bang-up defensive game, breaking the Lions' hearts with pass interceptions and slapping down other aerials. He ran 41 yards after his second interception.

At the same position, Lawrence Rice, of Tulane, starting in place of Capt. Mandich, proved a bear as the Green Wave swamped North Carolina. He repeatedly ruined Carolina passes and tackled savagely. On the attack he helped to open gaping holes for the Big Green's backs.

Upperclassmen, generally, took the play at the tackles, but Sophomores Mitchell Olenski, of Alabama, and Fred Hall, of Louisiana State, were not to be crowded out. Olenski's 220 pounds weighed a lot in the pushing around which 'Bama gave Tennessee. Hall shone on the defensive as the Tigers upset Rice.

Indian Coach Displeased

Coach Carl Voyles said he was not pleased with the Indians' performance against Hampden-Sydney (William and Mary won 28 to 0) and that he plans thorough drills up to Friday.

Gamecocks Hard Hit

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 20 (AP).—The University of South Carolina Gamecocks suffered a blow today to their hope of a victory over Clemson College in the State Fair football game Thursday.

Gus Hempley, Gamecock ace passsnagger, reported to the Fort Jackson induction station this morning and there appeared to be small likelihood that he would be deferred until after the game.

Al Grygo, All-State halfback, injured his knee in the Wake Forest game, and Steve Nowak, end, was hurt in the Georgia game, and both are doubtful starters.

Jack Wright Is Honored For Work in Terp Victory

Maryland's Fullback Played Major Part Team's Triumph; Asip Faces Army Call

Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore, Oct. 20.—The "Sophomore-of-the-week" Award, with no cash, cup or blue ribbon, only the honor, went today to Fullback Jack Wright of Maryland for his sterling performance in helping lead the Terps to their dramatic 13-12 victory over Florida's Galloping Gators.

The big red head's fumble gave Florida the ball in the third period on the Maryland 40 to set the stage for the Gators' first touchdown, but you can overlook that bobble after a brief glance at Wright's other activities of the afternoon.

On Maryland's first touchdown, Wright snared a 30-yard aerial from Mearle Duvall to put the Terps deep in Florida territory, he plunged twice for 9 yards, grabbed another 9-yard toss from John Cordyack, and then heaved a 6-yarder over the goal to Cordyack.

After Florida went ahead, 12-7, in the final quarter, the Wright-Duvall aerial circus switched around, and it was the fullback's sharp liner, 25 yards to Duvall, and the latter's 33-yard gallop that won the battle.

Mention also must be made of Navy's sophomore center, Richard Fedon, from Admiral Farragut Academy, Pen Argyle, Pa. Fedon played a bang-up game as reserve pivot against Cornell. After coming out once because of a slight injury, Fedon rested a few minutes, then went back into the fray to keep Swede Larson's two-unit system intact in its 14-0 win over Cornell.

Joe Asip, All-Maryland senior quarterback in 1940, might be called for duty with the Army Air Corps any day, but meantime he's a handy guy to have around at Mount St. Mary's College. After the Mounts scored their only touchdown Sunday at Philadelphia against La Salle, Asip stepped in and blace-kicked the all-important point for the 7-6 victory.

Just to show how close you can come to being a 'goat' or a hero in football:

Sophomore Bob Woods, of Navy, fumbled in the second period when Cornell was giving the Middies all they could handle, and Joe Martin, of Cornell, emerged from the pile-up with the ball on Navys 45. Three plays later, after his miscue had put the Tars in a hole, Woods dashed in to intercept Lou Bufalino's pass, ran back to the Middies' 45, and put the fleet back on an even keel once more.

Western Maryland, victim of an unhappy 19-0 trimming at Gettysburg's hands last Saturday, and Boston University provide the biggest attraction this week, when they clash Friday night in Baltimore Stadium.

WHAT INTERESTS YOU, PAL?

FOOTBALL?—The age-old difficulty of living up to one's press clippings was amply exhibited Sunday at the Yankee Stadium when a crowd that had come out to cheer Tommy Harmon and John Kimbrough, in their pro football debuts, remained to boo them for springing so few of the miracles which it apparently assumed they could turn on like a spigot.

CONSIDINE

Harmon scored a touchdown, and Kimbrough set it up for him. But that wasn't enough to please the mob. When the Americans' team persisted in progressing up and down the field, without Tommy and Jarrin' Jawn, and stopped dead when Coach Jack McBride would send his two stars in there to climax those drives, the mob gave the boys the first boo ever to assail their ears. No doubt the razz hurt both of them more than the money they were making out of the game healed them.

It seems to us they played as well as could be expected for two players who had had little opportunity to work out with their team, and had seen little activity for nearly a year. Both have been working in Hollywood, where, contrary to reports, people actually work. Harmon told us before the game that he had worked out a little with Michigan this fall, but participated in no scrimmages.

Their performances reminded one press box graybeard of Red Grange's New York debut, wherein Red drew more than 60,000 persons to the Polo Grounds and then played second or third fiddle to unknowns.

At least they tried. It turned out that they were outshown by Bill Hutchinson and Charlie Armstrong, on their own team, and outplayed by Bob Davis and Nelson Peterson, of Columbus. None of those four boys ever made the all-America, while Tommy and John made it twice. But it seems to us that that doesn't necessarily mean much. Kimbrough will be better next Sunday, for his legs will be in better shape. They were plenty sore Sunday. Harmon may or may not play. If he does, he should do better, too. For after all, football is a team game. The Americans tried to graft two extraneous stars onto a modest, but well-knit, outfit. The appendages didn't work. But they will in time. Each is a fine natural football player, and each looked less than supernatural because too much was expected of them and too little time was spent in fitting them into the jigsaw puzzle that is a football team.

RACING?—If anyone had said, after Whirlaway won the triple crown, that Warren Wright's Calumet Comet would be eclipsed before the end of the year I would have answered something vitriolic, like "Yeah?" But today or tomorrow the 2-year-old Alsab will make country-wide news if its trainer decides to accept Al Vanderbilt's invitation to put the wonder colt in the Pimlico Special. Alsab won his seventh straight and shot his winnings to $102,880 on Saturday. Judging from the way the 2-year-old has been worked to date, the Sabath's probably will put him in the special, where he'll have to pack only 97 pounds, as against much heavier imposts for Market Wise, Fenelon, Big Pebble, etc.

BOXING?—With a so-called white hope tournament being held in Detroit, and much talk of a possible paleface successor to Joe Louis, it might be interesting to you to learn the origin of the term white hope. Walter Trumbull, the veteran sports writer, who is now associated with Will Hays, told us about it the other day. Seems that Jim Corbett was appearing in a Broadway show, about 1912, and the people were staying away in droves. Jim called Walter and asked him to dream up some kind of story that would let the public in on the fact that the former champion was appearing in the play.

Trumbull went backstage one night and he and Gentleman Jim plotted out their plan. Trumbull suggested that Corbett select some white fighter and announce that he would train him to beat Jack Johnson, then champion. Corbett went over the list and said, "There isn't a man here who could beat one side of Johnson." So Trumbull said, "Well, let's make it mysterious. We'll say you've picked a fellow but that you don't want to mention his name until you've had a chance to coach him for a year or two."

"But what'll we call the fellow?" the realistic Corbet asked.

"We'll just call him a . . . well, a hopeful. A white hopeful. No, better make that white hope. Sounds better."

Corbett released the story the next day, and from all over the country came reports that a host of local prides were individually the real white hope which Corbett had in mind.

The name lingers to this day, though outmoded and made senseless by the most gentlemanly fighter the heavyweight division ever knew—Joe Louis.

Coercion Leads All the Way in Bennings Purse at Laurel

Stern Filly 2½ Lengths Out Front

Favorites Suffer Bad Day as 7000 See Card; Redthorn Wins in a Breeze

By Clocker Mike

Laurel, Md., Oct. 20.—Gray skies, a fast track and some 7,000 fans turned out to witness the washday card at this turf point and they were well supplied with excitement. The outstanding race on the card was the 6-furlong Bennings Purse, programmed as the sixth event, won by C. Stern's Coercion, a 3-year-old daughter of Cohort. She made every post a winning one in scoring by two and one-half lengths over the Wheatley Stable's Dark Imp. Circle M. Ranch's Blue Twink, the favorite, was a neck behind the place horse.

Apprentice Johnnie Breen lost little time in getting his mount on the head end. The pair had shown on top before the field had traveled an eighth of a mile. First it was Blue Twink to challenge and then Dark Imp but the game filly was not to be outgamed today. Breen kept to his task and through the final eighth of a mile the pair was drawing clear and hung up the time of 1:11 4-5 for the 6 furlongs, the fastest of the meeting.

The race, which marked the downfall of the sixth straight public choice, was the first start for the daughter of Cohort since being claimed by her present owner in New York for $3500. She had trained well since reaching here and this accounted for the lukewarm price of $10.70.

Two-year-old maidens held the spotlight in the opening event and it proved little more than a breeze for Walter M. Jefford's Redthorn, a son of Firethorn and Fleur. Under the confident handling of the veteran George Woolf, the juvenile took command at once and at the eighth pole he held a five-length margin. From there to the wire he was just breezing and held a two-length margin over Squadron as they passed the judges. By Conscript, bet down to odds-on favoritism, could do no better than the third slot. The winner showed a good race last out and paid only $6.80 while covering the six panels in 1:13 1-5.

W. J. Susini's Becomly, a 3-year-old daughter of the speedy Swashbuckler, made it two in a row when she came from behind to whip her seven opponents in the 6-furlong third event. She was up in the final stride to report on the front end by a head over the longshot, Sun Triad. Fogoso was third in the field.

With Jockey Eddie DeCamillis doing a faultless job of handling the miss, the combination picked up their opposition in the stretch run to hang up a $16.70 mutuel while touring the distance in 1:13 3-5.

The combination of 7 and 2, Redthorn in the first and Becomly in the third, paid off $70.40 in the daily double pool.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—REDTHORN, $6.80, $4.00, $2.80; SQUADRON, $8.40, $3.20; BY CONSCRIPT, $2.20.

REDTHORN was sent to front at once under mild urging, opened long lead without being extended and was going in easy fashion at end. SQUADRON was in close quarters early, fought way between horses on turn, was going good at the end, but was no match for the winner. BY CONSCRIPT moved nearest leader after a quarter and faltered thereafter. CAPTAIN MAT ran well when straightened out in stretch.

SECOND RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $1000; claiming; steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place same. Went to post at 2:02. Off at 2:03½. Winner, J. K. C. Forbes' b. g. (5), by Bucks Hussar—Another Duchess. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 4:01⅘ (13 jumps).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BAFFLER, $7.90, $4.20, $2.40; FLEMAR, $13.20, $3.60; COXSWAIN, $2.40.

BAFFLER, fencing well from the start, moved to fore after the first mile, drew out gradually and was in hand the last quarter-mile. FLEMAR, under a good grip for the first mile, moved up gradually thereafter, caught the tiring COXSWAIN through the stretch, but was no match for winner. COXSWAIN lacked speed for a mile, moved into contention after twelfth fence and then faltered. He pulled up sore. STEPPING IN was never a factor and trailed from the start.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs (chute). Purse, $1200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:34. Off at 2:36. Winner, W. J. Susini's b. f. (3), by Swashbuckler—Becuma. Trained by S. Cooper. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:13⅘.

PORT WALES	(Coule)	110	3	3	6³	7²	7²	6¹½	7	1.60

Two-dollar mutels paid—BECOMLY, $16.70, $7.30, $4.80; SUN TRIAD, $11.80, $6.50; FOGOSO, $3.90.

BECOMLY was brought along slowly when unable to race with early leaders, came between horses in stretch run and was just up under strong punishment. SUN TRIAD disposed of YOURASCALYOU soon after entering stretch and just failed to last. FOGOSO made a bold move in last quarter and might have been best considering the ground he lost. BUCKLE UP was shuffled back early and then came with a rush while racing on outside in stretch.

Daily Double, REDTHORN and BECOMLY, Paid $70.40.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs (chute). Purse, $1200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 3:04. Off at 3:06½. Winner, H. G. Bedwell's b. g. (7), by Pharamond II—Bossie. Trained by L. G. Bedwell. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:12⅘.

OKLAHOMA	(Craig)	109½	6	9	8½	8²	9	9	9	75.80

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLINGENDAAL, $6.60, $4.30, $3.30; IRISH MOON, $8.90, $6.00; DOUBLE B., $3.00.

CLINGENDAAL was sent through on rail in run to half-mile pole, held slight advantage until entering stretch, where he disposed of WEATHERITE to draw out to a good lead and win easily. IRISH MOON was sluggish in first half, came between horses in stretch and was easily second best. DOUBLE B. was unable to get to front early and was not punished when beaten. DON ORLAN showed an improved effort to run an even race.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1200; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:34. Off at 3:35. Winner, King Ranch's ch. c. (2), by Gallant Fox—Morning. Trained by W. J. Hirsch. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:45⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RISE ABOVE IT, $11.80, $6.60, $4.60; BARUNA, $6.00, $3.70; HAPPY NOTE, $4.70.

RISE ABOVE IT was steadied along while saving ground, went to outside when challenging, reached leader at sixteenth pole and was going away under pressure. BARUNA was outrun for a quarter, moved to lead while racing on outside, held on willingly, but was unable to resist winner. HAPPY NOTE took command approaching first turn, was well rated while settling pace, held on well until inside eighth pole and then faltered. INDIAN SUN was within striking distance in opening half, but failed to gain when pulled to punishment.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs (chute). Purse, $1500; allowances. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:04½. Off at 4:05. Winner, C. Stern's b. f. (3), by Cohort—Mad Hattie. Trained by L. Meripol. Value to winner, $1000; second, $300; third, $150; second, $50. Time, 1:11⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COERCION, $10.70, $5.90, $4.00; DARK IMP, $5.60, $4.20; BLUE TWINK, $4.50.

COERCION took lead at once, opened good gap leaving half-mile pole, was well rated while racing in front and won in easy fashion. DARK IMP showed good speed from start, shifted out slightly in stretch run and was going well at the end. BLUE TWINK was off rather sluggishly, slipped through on rail to reach leader, saved ground throughout, but was not good enough. TRANSFIGURE closed with good courage after lacking speed for a half.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 4:33. Off at 4:33½. Winner, C. R. Hughes' ch. g. (3), by Coronach—Current. Trained by F. Holman. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:54⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLOOD II, $7.20, $4.30, $3.90; PEED PATCH, $3.60, $3.10; SIR BROADSIDE (entry), $9.60.

FLOOD II disposed of EASTER RABBIT to take command at first turn, drew out to good lead without being punished, was well rated and was an easy winner. PEED PATCH, always within striking distance, made bids on stretch turn, but could not threaten winner. SIR BROADSIDE trailed field for a half, came with a rush and was going best of all at the end. PURPORT moved with a rush while saving ground, held on willingly, but was not good enough.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:01. Off at 5:01½. Winner, C. M. Feltner's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DULIE, $4.20, $2.90, $2.50; HAZEL W., $2.90, $2.70; PALKIN, $5.80.

DULIE was steadied along while following pace, took command when asked and drew clear to win in easy fashion. HAZEL W. was unable to outrun ODENATHUS in first three-quarters, disposed of latter to take command, but had nothing left when challenged by winner. PALKIN was well up from start and held on willingly. PEPPERY did very little running until entering stretch and then came with a rush on the extreme outside.

Llanero Bows In Empire Exodus Purse

By the Associated Press

Empire City Racetrack, N. Y., Oct. 20.—In a fighting finish that saw four of the five starters bunched on the wire, Mrs. A. Crouch's Homeward Bound, ever partial to the Hilltop track, emerged the winner of the featured Exodus Purse here this bright afternoon. Well handled by Apprentice Willie Strickler, the Happy Argo gelding stuck his nose in front of the Railroad Stable's Cheesestraw just as they reached the finish line.

J. W. Dial's Llanero, favorite in the small but well-matched field of 3-year-olds, lost second money by a head while beating Mrs. Alice F. Sherman's Sun Eager by a like margin for the show. Belle Poise trailed the quartet by three lengths. Homeward Bound, a $7.30 for $2 choice, completed the mile and a sixteenth journey in 1:45 4-5.

Llanero was the first favorite in five races to finish as good as third. It was Don Meade's misfortune to be astride three of these beaten choices and the Nation's leading jockey came in for some lusty booing from certain disgruntled players. This despite the fact that Don Meade rode his hardest on the heavily weighted Llanero, which missed only in the photo windup. Earlier, Meade had won astride Door Mark in the third event.

Llanero and Cheesestraw waged an exciting duel for the lead, while Sun Eager and Homeward Bound followed them under light restraint, several lengths away. Strickler called on the ultimate winner as they turned for home and the gelding gained slowly but surely on the outside, his move coming just in time.

Chris Pavich, Star Georgetown End, Tops District Scorers

Breaks Three-Way Tie for Lead in District; Doolan Enters Point Race

Speedy, glue-fingered Chris Pavich, of Georgetown, took over the individual District college scoring lead last week by catching in the George Washington game his third touchdown pass of the season.

The blond, junior end ran his total to 18 points and broke a three-way tie for the lead as Jack Wright, of Maryland, and Walter Fedora, of George Washington, erstwhile co-sharers of first place, went scoreless.

As Pavich continued to lead the way to unprecedented high scoring for District ends as a group, last year's scoring champion, Jack Doolan, broke into the statistics for the first time. Bottled up and held pointless in three games, the fleet Georgetown halfback broke loose against George Washington on a 53-yard return of an intercepted pass. Now running in form, Doolan still may be the man to beat in this year's race, though at the present he is tied for fourth. Last season he tallied 36 points in nine games.

Dark Horse in Race

A "dark horse" contender in the race popped up in the person of Paul Wiedler, an American University end, who snared a pair of payoff passes against Johns Hopkins. Weidler thus entered into a three-way deadlock for second place with Messrs. Wright and Fedora.

With Pavich scoring once and Weidler twice, the ends about held their own with the backs in last week's scoring, while three other linemen broke into the picture with minor contributions. One of these was also an end, lanky "Duke" Alexander, of Maryland, whose point after touchdown represented the Terps' winning margin over Florida. The other two linemen to score were Shepherd and Hoover, American University guard and tackle, respectively. Hoover kicked two extra points and Shepherd one.

Consequently, we find that to date ends have contributed 39 of the total of 131 points credited to the four local college elevens. This is more than made by playeros of any other one position, with fullbacks next with 30 points, and halfbacks third with 27.

The Team Race

Last week saw a commendable rise in team scoring, with Georgetown contributing 25 points, to take the lead with 48, American University 21 and Maryland 13. Another feature was that for the first time in four years Maryland was at the top of the team championship race, statistically speaking, and George Washington dropped to fourth and last. According to the figures, however, Georgetown is the best offensive and defensive club. In four games the Hoyas have surrendered only 26 points, an average of little more than four per game. American University has the same defensive record, but for three games.

Until baseball time, he will assist his father in the family's fruit and produce business in New Orleans.

Millers Claim Zeke

Minneapolis, Oct. 20 (AP).—If Zeke Bonura, now discharged from the Army and preparing to reenter organized baseball, wants to know where he belongs all he has to do is ask Mike Kelley, owner of the Minneapolis Millers—not Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Bonura, commenting after his discharge from the Army because the draft age has been lowered to 28 and he is now 32, said he didn't know "what club I belong to now." But Kelley said tonight he knows where Bonura belongs.

"He belongs to me," said the Millers' owner. "I bought him from the Chicago Cubs last winter; I had until June 15 to keep or reject him. I decided to keep him, of course, and paid for him in full after he was inducted into the service.

"Bonura belongs to the Minneapolis baseball club, a statement he can have verified by contacting Commissioner Landis if he thinks that procedure necessary."

Records Fall Before Church Loop Pinmen

Records fell fast and furious in the Friendship Church League last night at the Ice Palace when the Eldbrooke boys dominated the play for individual and team highs. Aubrey Bogley started it with his 171 single, and Bill Dietrich added to it with his 401 set, both totals high for the season. The inspired Eldbrooke team chalked up an all-time team record of 890 and continued to score 1825 for a season high set and take all three games from Bethesda Methodist as well.

SILVER SPRING

The Georgia Avenue League at Silver Spring was led by young Al Clasel, Arbaugh's Restaurant, with his fine 165 game and 401 set, the totals aiding his team to highs after scores of 617 and 1755. Arbaughs, Sherer's Men's Shop and Coffman Realty won sweeps over Corr's Sport Shop, Carter-Lenhardt and Takoma Engineering, respectively.

ARCADIA

The Navy Department League at Arcadia found Gregg, Yards & Docks, had high single of 143 that paced his quintet to high team game with a 604 count. Andy Anderson's season record 393 set for Model Basin led a two-game win over Yards and Docks and took high team set with a 1726 total.

BROOKLAND

Marc Fonoroff's 148 was top single in the Odd Fellows League at Brookland and the main reason why his Covenant boys won all three from Columbia No. 2 and went on to roll a record high team game of 617. Earle Steele, Mount Pleasant, totaled 394 for a season high set. Golden Rule, with Harold Hodges' dominating, recorded a sweep over Loyalty, despite the splendid 144 single of Bob Phillips which featured a triple-header strike. Amity No. 1 scored a three-game win over Amity No. 2.

Scalzo-Lemos Bout Is Moved Into November

Pete Scalzo, former National Boxing Association claimant to the world's featherweight championship, yesterday had accepted terms to meet Richie Lemos, reigning N. B. A. monarch, in a ten-round nontitle bout at Uline's Arena on either November 10 or 12.

Matchmaker Johnny Attell reported here from New York yesterday to announce that a postponement from the originally scheduled October 28 date had been arranged due to the fact that both Lemos and Scalzo will box prior to them.

Lemos had been offered 25 per cent of the gross receipts, but had asked a $2500 guarantee. Attell feels that a satisfactory agreement will be reached.

Member of Camp's '89 All-America Dies in New York

By the Associated Press

Stamford, N. Y., Oct. 20.—The Rev. Hector William Cowan, a member of Walter Camp's All-American football team of 1889, died yesterday at the age of 78.

He played tackle at Princeton and upon graduation from the theological seminary held pastorates in St. Joseph, Mo., Gardner, Kans., and Buffalo, N. Y. For a time he was physical culture and chapel director at the University of Kansas, coaching football, basketball and baseball along with directing religious discussions.

In 1904 the Rev. Mr. Cowan became director of physical culture at State Normal School in Patsdam, N. Y. Two years later he retired to a farm, where he spent most of the intervening years.

Assistant Golf Pros Go After Wilson Plaque In Annual 36-Hole Tournament Today

Indian Spring Site Of Competition For Worsham's Title

The assistant golf professionals who take a back seat all season will take the play away from their pro bosses today in the annual Assistant Pro Championship at Indian Spring over the 36-hole route.

The Wilson plaque, which goes to the winner in addition to a cash prize, will change hands as Buck Worsham, the defending champion, is in the Navy.

Joe Curtin, assistant to Mel Shorey at the host club, is handling the tournament and will accept entries on the first tee. The entry fee is $5 a player.

Raymond Willett, of Woodmont; Max Elbin, the Burning Tree assistant who just missed the money in the Bedford Open; Warner Gray, Congressional; Brick Wood, Washington, and Stanley Collinge, Columbia, are among the favored players.

ARGYLE

The annual business meeting and election of members to the board of governors will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock at Argyle Country Club.

Entertainment will follow the meeting, including movies of club members taken by Willie Fox and prize presentations for the year, with the club championship trophy to Ray Amsden.

MANOR

Manor Club President W. W. Jones and Harry Pitt, golf committee chairman, have completed plans for Saturday's big Stag Day affair which is one of the season's intraclub highlights.

An exhibition match in the afternoon will be sandwiched between various other competitive events while a dinner and entertainment will follow in the evening.

CONGRESSIONAL

The bonus tournament for budget book holders of the District Women's Golf Association will be held Monday, November 3, at Congressional, Mrs. W. L. Weible, president, announced yesterday.

The 162 book holders only will be eligible and play will be over the 18-hole route, with A and B classes combined.

Entries close October 31 at 1 p. m., with no entry fee.

Ossie Solem's Turn-Center May Pass, Run

him around I was afraid my assistants and my boys would think I was crazy. But we've used this method on the line against Cornell and N. Y. U., and now we're all sold on it. For one thing, the center can flip the ball more accurately if he is facing his receivers. For another, he can swing out quickly to lead interference. And for a third, he can flip to flankers instead of merely straight back."

The value of this last point is important because it stops the defense from shifting to an unbalanced formation to meet the spearhead of the attack. If the defense shifts, the center can snap the ball to a halfback playing back of an end and said halfback can shoot around said end before said end knows just what is afoot. That is important.

The use of the center as an offensive man in ball-handling sprouts from the idea of the reverse position. Once the ball is snapped the center continues right into the backfield where he can be handed the ball. After receiving it, he can pass, run, kick or hand it away again on reverses, spinners and all the normal plays. Or, also important, he can quick kick.

"I think that once this rule of passing the ball forward is clarified—at present it does not state that the backward moving man must wheel—we will get quicker action and more deception than the T. The big weakness of the T is that it cannot be used for a quick kick. So far as I know, this system hinging on the center has no weakness—except with the officials."

D. C. Waltonian, Now in RAF, Back For Short Visit

"I don't have much time to do any fishing in England," Sergt. J. T. McIntyre, of the R. A. F., said at the weekly luncheon of the local chapter of the Izaak Walton League yesterday.

McIntyre, a Washingotn man until he enlisted last January, was home on a few days' leave and attended the meeting of his old group at the Neptune Room. A student flyer when he left Washington, he now has his wings and is returning to England for active service.

"Another thing," he said, "I haven't seen nearly the destruction in Britain that the American papers would lead you to believe was there."

Walter Evans, another local Waltonian, is now in training for the Royal Air Force somewhere in Canada.

FHLB Aide Will Address D. C. League

William F. Penniman, deputy governor of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, will be the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League on October 28. Prior to the dinner a business session will take place at which new officers and directors will be elected.

Wilfred H. Blanz of the American Building Association is slated to become the new president of the building and loan men. Blanz has served as vice president of the league for the past two years and is expected to be named without opposition.

The Raleigh Hotel will be the scene of the session with a number of Treasury, Federal Home Loan and other Government leaders as invited guests.

The regular semimonthly meeting of the executive council of the league will be held today at the Raleigh Hotel, 12:30 p. m.

Advertising Gains 3.4%

Newspaper display advertising placed by retailers in 84 cities during the week ended October 11 totaled 23,006,699 lines, an increase of 745,484 lines or 3.4 per cent compared with the corresponding week of a year ago, according to Advertising Age.

The cumulative retail linage since the first of the year amounts to 830,616,179 lines, an increase of 4.1 per cent from last year's total of 797,993,639 lines for the same 41-week period.

Hayward W. Strecker, veteran securities broker, has been named assistant to Commander Gerald Eubank who is in charge of the Navy's defense savings bond campaign. Lieut. Strecker came to Washington seven years ago from New York City and has been associated since with the local branch of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane or its predecessor firms. He has been granted a leave of absence from his duties as assistant manager of the Merrill Lynch firm.

Defense Bond Questionnaire

Q. Why will there be no temporary, intensive campaign for the sale of defense savings bonds and stamps?

A. Because defense savings bonds and stamps are presented as a means to enable every citizen to carry out a consistent and continuous savings program, to be followed week by week and month by month, helping national defense and providing the saver with money for use in the future. The program is meant to be an extended savings effort—not a short-time money raising campaign.

Q. My husband buys a small defense savings bond every pay day. Should I also invest in defense savings bonds and stamps?

A. When you do your daily shopping you can buy a few defense savings stamps with your change, and eventually have enough to turn in for a defense savings bond.

Note—To buy defense bonds and stamps, go to the nearest postoffice, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also, stamps are now on sale at retail stores.

Army Forgets Prices to Spread Orders

New steps to aid small business by spreading defense orders as widely as possible were announced yesterday by the Army Quartermaster Corps.

To carry out the program, the War Department said, prices will no longer be the dominating factor in making awards.

Awards to a single bidder will be limited. Awards will be made to as many regions, and to as many suppliers in each region, as is possible.

"In the matter of prices," the department said, "the quartermaster general recognizes that a wide distribution of defense orders will entail increased costs, since small plants may be unfamiliar with and inadequately equipped to produce quartermaster items.

"Within reasonable limits, depending on circumstances surrounding individual procurement orders, bid prices will not always govern the award of contracts. Direct negotiations will be made with bidders in a particular region where it is desired to make awards, when the bid prices are considered too high. Every reasonable effort will be made to induce such bidders to accept a stated quantity at what is considered a fair price to them."

Quartermaster procurement district headquarters to be used as the basis for regional distribution of awards are located in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Jeffersonville, Ind., Chicago, St. Louis, San Antonio and San Francisco.

Whenever possible, contracts will be let f. o. b. point of origin with final inspection at that place to facilitate payment for the order, particularly to small contractors who may have difficulty in obtaining adequate financial backing.

City Buys $12,500,000 in U. S. Bonds

New York City Comptroller Joseph D. McGoldrick picked up a satchel early yesterday, summoned a detective, and boarded a plane for Washington to bring back $12,500,000 in U. S. Government negotiable bonds.

Purchased for the city sinking fund, it was the largest investment this country's largest city ever had made in Government securities. In the last war the city bought $600,000 worth of liberty bonds.

McGoldrick said that the city wanted to purchase 100 million dollars of bonds this time, but the Treasury Department would sell only $12,500,000.

He said he thought he would have a police escort when he returned.

"I-Quit-You're-Fired" Case Before SEC

Polk-Peterson Corp., Des Moines securities dealers, asked permission of the Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday to withdraw its dealers registration, which the SEC has sought to revoke.

Attorney Joseph F. Rosenfield, representing Harry Polk and George Peterson, told a SEC hearing that most of the facts on which the SEC charges were based "are indisputable." He asked withdrawal of registration.

The commission has charged that an examination of Polk-Peterson books on August 12, 1941, had indicated the company was insolvent, and had been so for five or six years; that the corporation had no net capital, had hypothecated the securities carried for the accounts of customers, and had therefore committed a fraud under the 1933 securities act.

Examiner Henry Fitts of the SEC, who conducted the one day hearing in Chicago, took under advisement the company's request, and said he would report his recommendations to the commission in Washington.

Attorney Abe L. Hoffman, representing the SEC, said the company could end the case speedily by admitting all charges and consenting to revocation of both its registration and membership in the National Securities Dealers Association.

Rosenfield replied that the company had already asked SEC permission to withdraw from membership in the dealers association and was going out of business, but could not admit the truth of all facts stated.

Cotter Succeeds Jones as HOLC Head

The resignation of Charles A. Jones as general manager of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation and appointment of Charles F. Cotter, deputy general manager in charge of loan service, as his successor, was announced yesterday by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Jones' resignation, effective November 30, was attributed to his inability to transfer his residence to New York City, the new headquarters of the HOLC.

Cotter, born in Massachusetts, was first Massachusetts State manager and then regional manager of the corporation in New England until his transfer to Washington in 1935 as deputy general manager.

Ford Loses Supreme Court Appeal

The Supreme Court refused yesterday to review a decision upholding a Federal Trade Commission order directing the Ford Motor Co. to stop alleged "misleading" advertising concerning a "6 per cent plan" for financing the purchase of automobiles.

Challenging the 1936 order, the company contended the financing plan was "identical in principle" with the system employed by the Federal Housing Administration and the Electric Home and Farm Authority.

Ford sought a Supreme Court review of a decision by the Sixth Federal Circuit Court upholding the FTC order. The commission opposed a review on the ground that the circuit court ruling was "clearly correct."

The commission said that under the Ford plan "the financing charge actually paid by the purchaser amounts to interest at about 11½ per cent per annum upon the declining balance of his indebtedness."

"The purchaser," the commission added, "pays 6 per cent 9 per cent, or 12 per cent (depending upon the number of his monthly payments) upon the amount of his original obligation, although such obligation does not remain outstanding during the period of the contract but is reduced by each monthly payment."

Advertising the system as a 6 per cent plan, the commission said, misled "a substantial part of the purchasing public" and constituted unfair competition.

Ford replied that practically all the advertisements either contained "an adequate explanation" of the plan or "definite advice to the purchaser to consult a Ford dealer."

The company also challenged jurisdiction of the commission on the ground that the finance plan related only to retail purchases from dealers and that this did not involve interstate commerce.

The commission said the "6 per cent plan" was first announced by General Motors in 1935 and was adopted in principle by the other leading companies. The Supreme Court refused last January 20 to review a decision upholding a commission order against General Motors.

General Motors Acts for Rehearing

The Supreme Court granted yesterday a request by General Motors Corporation and three wholly-owned subsidiaries for the tribunal to withhold temporarily an order issued last Monday refusing to review a decision holding the concerns guilty of violating the Sherman Anti-Trust Law in connection with automobile financing.

The delay in notifying a lower court of the Supreme Court's action was sought until a petition for rehearing could be filed. The companies automatically have 25 days from last Monday to seek reconsideration.

A jury in the Federal District Court at South Bend, Ind., held the concerns guilty of violating the anti-monopoly legislation by seeking to induce retail dealers to use General Motors Acceptance Corporation financing.

After issuing an order, the Supreme Court notifies the tribunal from which the case had been appealed so that the lower court may take whatever action is required.

U. S. Buys $30,000,000 in Soviet Gold

Secretary Morgenthau announced yesterday that the Treasury has bought 30 million dollars more of Russian gold to provide the Soviets with cash to buy war materials in this country.

He disclosed the purchase at a press conference at which he revealed that the Russians had completed delivery of ten million dollars of gold bought about two months ago in a similar transaction.

In both cases, the Treasury paid cash immediately and the Russians promised to deliver the gold within a certain time. Morgenthau said the first ten million dollars of gold was promised in 90 days and the shipment arriving in San Francisco this weekend completed the delivery in about 65 days.

The Russians promised to deliver the 30 million dollars of additional gold within 180 days.

Morgenthau said no interest will be charged the Russians because the Treasury regards the transaction as a purchase rather than a loan, even though the Russians get the money before the delivery of the gold.

The weekend shipment, the Secretary added, was "a little more than five million dollars," and was more than enough to pay the unpaid balance on the first ten million dollars cash advance.

Maryland Tobacco

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 20.—Leaf tobacco receipts for the past week declined to 114 hogsheads and sales to 83 hogsheads. Bank Loans Up 67 Million During Week

By the Associated Press

Business loans of banks gained for the twenty-fifth consecutive week in the period ended October 15.

The Federal Reserve Board said that in 101 leading cities, commercial, industrial and agricultural loans of banks increased 67 million dollars to a total of $6,568,000,000 in the week ended October 15. With occasional interruptions, the trend of these loans has been upward ever since the beginning of the defense program and in the 101 cities, the total of such loans was $1,846,000 larger than a year ago.

The board's 101-city member bank condition statement today gave the following summary of assets and liabilities on October 15, together with the increase or decrease since the previous week and the corresponding week last year (in millions of dollars):

$5,164,000 Worth Of A. T. & T. Bonds Sold on Exchange

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—In an unprecedented securities merchandising operation, members of the New York Stock Exchange in trading today sold $5,164,000 of new 3 per cent convertible debentures for American Telephone & Telegraph Co. to bidders across the exchange floor.

The 3s brought prices of 111¼ to 111½.

The securities were part of $10,839,700 of debenture 3s to which stockholders did not subscribe in $235,584,000 of new bond offerings by the corporation to raise funds for plant expansion.

The 3s generally went in substantial blocks of 25, 50 and 100 bonds each. One huge block, however, was for $1,766,000, face value, another for $900,000 and a third for $500,000.

It was understood in finance circles that the new A. T. & T. securities were sold via the exchange floor at the suggestion of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Steel Scrap Shortage Cuts Plant's Output

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP).—Production at Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Lackawanna plant dropped to 83½ per cent capacity today as the result of a steel scrap shortage.

Company officials reported five open-hearth furnaces have been withdrawn in the past three days, and that the plant, busy on defense orders, now is operating only 23 of its 30 furnaces. The current production rate represents a drop of nine and one-half points.

Week's Steel Output Expected to Dip

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Steel operations this week will average 97.8 per cent of capacity, a drop of .6 of a point from the previous week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

The rate a month ago was 96.8 per cent and a year ago 94.9 per cent.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, Oct. 20 (AP).—With receipts slightly larger than expected, hog prices drifted 10 cents lower today in fairly active trading. Dressed pork quotations remained unchanged.

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—A lack of buying interest in the face of numerous selling orders dropped cotton futures quotations 31 to 40 points today.

Commission house and speculative selling dominated the session. Some observers believed trade interests stocked up on last Thursday's break in prices and stayed on the sidelines today. Another factor drawing interest away from the market was the new schedule of cloth prices.

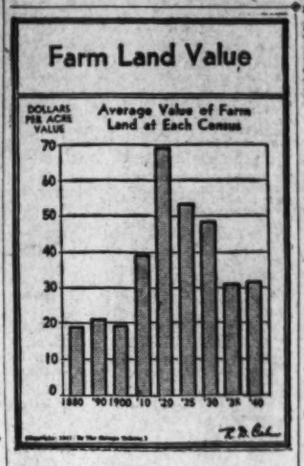
Stock Trend Turns Irregular at Close
New Labor Rifts Chill Bullish Sentiment

New York, Oct. 20.—Stocks tried to continue the recovery push in today's market but ran into enough late selling interference to produce a mixed close.

There were a few weak and strong spots when the final gong sounded, although price variations generally were in negligible fractions. Dealings were sluggish during the greater part of the proceedings, but several big blocks of low-priced utilities helped lift the volume.



While the inflation prop remained as a bullish influence, brokers said, many potential purchasers adjourned to neutral territory pending more light on the international scene, particularly in Russia and the Far East. Commodities again turned downward and tended to chill the speculative urge for securities. Numerous labor rifts were viewed as a bit bearish and, aside from the big armament spending outlook, little stimulation was derived from business happenings.

Atlantic Gulf & West Indies common and preferred were up 2½ and 1 point, respectively, at new 1941 highs, as reports of possibly boosted dividends were heard. The better position of the petroleum industry gave Standard Oil (N. J.) a gain of a point. Du Pont was up 1¾.

Ahead modest amounts were Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Atlantic Coast Line and Chesapeake & Ohio. Mounting traffic and revenues brought support for this group.

United Corp. came out in one block of 143,000 shares, off 1-8 at 1-4, a new year's bottom. Commonwealth & Southern also was lively at a minor decline. Westinghouse and U. S. Gypsum went into new low ground for the year.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem were down slightly as this week's mill operations were estimated off .6 of a point at 97.8 per cent of capacity.

General Motors was up 1-8 and Chrysler off as much. A shade higher were American Smelting, Consolidated Aircraft (ex-dividend on the share-for-share split-up), Texas Corp., Montgomery Ward and U. S. Rubber.

A moderate amount of underlying strength was shown by most divisions of the bond market today but gains were small and there were numerous issues unchanged or a shade lower at the close.

An outstanding feature of trading was the huge turnover in American Telephone debenture 3s, which accounted for $4,363,000 of the total turnover of $10,569,900, par value. This aggregate compared with $6,559,000 last Friday.

Tape watchers rubbed their eyes in astonishment when a single block of $1,766,000, par value, telephone 3s appeared at 111 1-2 shortly after noon. Other sizable blocks were frequent throughout the afternoon climaxed by one of $900,000 just before the close at 111 1-4. At this price the issue was up ⅛ of a point net. The large volume represented sales from the unsubscribed portion of the $233,584,000 of debentures sold recently, 95.3 per cent of which was subscribed by stockholders.

Earnings Reports

Hercules Powder Co. reported for the nine months ended September 30, net earnings of $4,356,632 after estimated Federal taxes of $9,112,441. After provision for such taxes, net earnings were equal, after payment of preferred dividends, to $3.01 a share on 1,316,710 shares of common stock outstanding during the period.

This compares with net earnings for the nine months ended September 30, 1940, of $3,744,236, after Federal taxes of $2,901,498, equal, after payment of preferred dividends, to $2.54 a share on $1,316,710 shares of common stock then outstanding.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. issued a preliminary report showing earnings for the nine months ended September 30 equaled $5.84 a share, compared with $5.80 a share in the corresponding 1940 period. The company said provision for Federal income taxes in the 1941 three-quarters was $74,420,000 in addition to a special contingency provision of $1,600,000. In the 1940 period $30,400,000 was set aside for Federal income taxes.

Dresser Manufacturing Co. and subsidiaries, makers of pipe accessories, reported net profit for the nine months ended Sept. 30 of $814,370, equal to $2.43 a share, compared with $844,497, or $2.81 a share, in the comparable 1940 period.

Distillers Corp-Seagrams, Ltd., reported yesterday for the fiscal year ended July 31 net profit of $8,110,512 (U. S. dollars) after income and excess profits taxes and $1,000,000 for contingencies, equal, after preferred dividends, to $4.17 a common share. This compared with $9,716,798, or $5.08 a share, in the preceding fiscal year.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Oct. 20 (AP).—Unsettled and nervous because of the disturbed international situation, grain prices displayed marked weakness today.

Uncertainty was apparent from the outset of trading. Talk had been current in the board rooms and on the trading floor that prices should start about steady with Saturday's close. Instead, steady and persistent selling forced prices backward until losses of 2½ cents a bushel were marked in wheat during the first ten minutes.

The retrogression was a steady affair, with prices yielding ⅛ and ¼ cent at a time. However, a rebound of about a cent a bushel left the market hovering, almost inactive, the greater part of the remainder of the session. Shortly before the close, however, selling orders appeared in volume and the day's biggest prices breaks, approximately 3 cents a bushel, were noted. A minor rally absorbed about a cent of the loss.

Wheat closed weak and ⅛ to ⅛ cents a bushel below Saturday's final quotations. December, 1.12⅛@1.12¼; May, 1.16⅜@1.16⅝; corn, 1¼ to 1⅜ off, December, 79½; May, 79½; oats, 1⅛ to 1½ down; soybeans, off ⅝ to 2¼; rye, 1⅝ to 2¾ lower, and provisions 27 to 40 cents down.

U. S. Prepares Priorities for New Oil Wells

By the Associated Press

Tulsa, Okla., Oct. 20.—The problem of obtaining priorities for its drilling campaign during the national emergency is gradually being solved, the Independent Petroleum Association and the National Stripper Well Association were told today.

Robert E. Allen, production chief of the Office of Petroleum Coordination and Writ Franklin, OPC district No. 2 senior director, spoke at a luncheon of the combined conventions of the associations.

But were optimistic that the 1942 drilling campaign would be maintained at the 1941 level of approximately 30,000 wells.

"I am of the opinion, said Allen, "that we will have the priorities necessary for that many wells. That is the number we must drill to keep the United States producing the oil it needs."

Franklin said some of the priorities difficulty resulted because the "oil industry oversold itself in Washington."

"A year or two ago, the oil industry told Washington that it was ready and able to meet any needs of the country—present or future," said Franklin. "But it neglected to add the qualification: 'If the industry is assured of the supplies it needs.'"

As a result, Franklin said, defense officers got the idea that "all you had to do was to turn a spigot and all the oil necessary immediately would flow."

Further Delays Refused Insull Reorganizers

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 20 (AP).—Special Master Daniel O. Hastings today refused further postponement in bankruptcy proceedings in the reorganization of Midland United States Utilities of Chicago, formerly top companies in the Insull utility chain.

Two dozen attorneys representing the two utility companies and their creditors asked a continued hearing but Hastings said the case, begun several years ago, had been pending too long already.

At least 40 million dollars in assets of the two utilities are the object of claims by Chicago's Continental National Bank and by three concerns constitution the Chicago operating companies.

In addition, United and Midland have filed claims against each other in the reorganization proceedings begun in 1934 under the Federal bankruptcy laws.

Alcoa Plans to Build $15,000,000 Plant

Massena, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP).—The Aluminum Co. of America announced today it will construct a 15-million-dollar blooming mill adjacent to its huge plant here to supply stock for the manufacture of forgings for airplane motors and other defense materials

The new mill, to cover an area of more than 450,000 square feet, will be erected by the company over and above its self-financed 200-million-dollar expansion program.

Business Failures Drop 15% in Week

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Business failures dropped 15 per cent during the week ended October 15, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today.

The number of insolvencies was 178 compared with 210 the previous week and 262 in the same week a year ago. Cases with total liabilities of $5000 or more numbered 77 against 83 the week before and 119 a year ago.

Visible Grain Supply

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Visible supply of American grain showed the following changes from a week ago (in bushels): wheat increased 1,201,000, corn increased 10,000, oats decreased 242,000, rye increased 98,000, barley increased 462,000.

Contract Bridge

In the case of today's hand there was no laughter, no explosion, only an icy silence stiff enough to skate on. Thanks to the opening lead and follow-up defense, Contributor W. H. B. made six clubs, doubled, by first using dummy's lone trump to ruff with, and then winning his diamond queen when the ace was blanked by the enemy.

Today's Hand

Both Sides Vulnerable
SOUTH DEALER

NORTH: ♠ 9 7 5 3 2 ♡ J 10 8 6 5 4 3 ◇ None ♣ 2
WEST: ♠ Q J 4 ♡ Q 7 ◇ K J 9 8 6 4 ♣ Q 5

Opening lead: K ◇.

A grand slam in hearts, though difficult to bid, could be made by his side, but this was no solace to the glacial players who flanked him left and right. Here is how W. H. B. explains the play:

"I got away with six clubs, doubled. West led the diamond king, taken by North's only trump. A spade was trumped by the closed hand and clubs were played until only one was left. Then were led the heart ace and king and a low diamond, which was taken by East's ace, as it was the only diamond left in his hand. The next lead was trumped by South and the diamond queen was led for the twelfth trick."

U. S. Answers Peru's Protest In Plane Incident

Replying to Peru's protest against the United States' recent action in barring shipment of 18 warplanes to the South American republic, the State Department last night issued a statement declaring the planes were requisitioned "in the interests of national defense."

The statement, carrying the texts of two notes written by Secretary Hull to the Peruvian Ambassador, said the United States is taking steps to give Peru "full and immediate compensation."

Seizure of the planes in New York brought a diplomatic protest from Peru and a declaration from Col. Armando Reveredo, Peruvian air attache to the United States, that the action was "a most unfriendly act" toward Peru. In protest, Col. Reveredo resigned.

LEGAL NOTICES 4

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.
Finance Docket No. 12545. Fort Dodge, Des Moines & Southern Railroad Company Reorganization. Notice of submission of plan of reorganization. The United States District Court for the Southern District of Iowa, Central Division, and the Interstate Commerce Commission have approved a plan for the reorganization of the Fort Dodge, Des Moines & Southern Railroad Company, pursuant to Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act. The plan is being submitted for acceptance or rejection to the holders of allowed claims of the following classes: Class 6, Fort Dodge, Des Moines & Southern Railroad Company first mortgage 5 per cent bonds. Class 7, Fort Dodge, Des Moines & Southern Railroad Company ten-year 7 per cent debenture bonds, series A, due June 1, 1933. Class 8, Claims, interests or securities of whatever character, other than those above enumerated in the foregoing classes, against the debtor (the Fort Dodge, Des Moines & Southern Railroad Company) or its property, whether or not the same be represented or evidenced by written instrument. Only those holding such securities or claims on October 15, 1941, will be entitled to vote on the plan. Holders of such securities or claims who shall not promptly receive a ballot by mail may obtain one, together with copies of plan of reorganization, the commission's reports thereon and the opinion and order of the court approving the plan, by writing to the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C. Separate ballots have been prepared for each class entitled to vote on the plan. Therefore, in making requests for ballots the commission should be advised of the class of security or claim for which ballots are desired and the number of ballots required in each class. In order that a ballot may be valid, it must be filled out, in duplicate, and filed with the commission on or before December 15, 1941, or the envelope containing ballot, mailed in continental United States, must bear postmark showing it was placed in the mail on or before that date. Ballots executed by persons residing outside continental United States, in order to be effective, must be returned to the office of the commission in Washington, D. C., not later than December 15, 1941. W. P. BARTEL, Secretary. October 15, 1941.

"The first five classes (to which submission is not being made because their interests are not adversely and materially affected by the plan) embrace expenses of administration and operation during reorganization and during the prior receivership, claims entitled to priority under the six months' rule (i. e., the six months prior to February 18, 1930, the date of the appointment of the receiver), claims for personal injuries to employes, taxes and special assessments and claims other than those enumerated in the court's order classifying claims which are entitled to priority in payment by virtue of the laws of any date or of the United States. 21.28

Listen! with Glynn

From Tombstone to Trubchevski, or from Nogales to Novgorod, all within the space of a few minutes, that's a regular Thursday night tongue-twisting trek made by Mark Hawley.

For Hawley is the commentator on C. B. S.'s and WJSV's "The World Today" programs and he's also the announcer on the Thursday night dramatic series known as "Death Valley Days," which, despite its fearsome title, is made up of peaceful sagas of the Old West, having nothing to do with death—and which, of course, is more than can be said of the Russian titles mentioned.

Nightly Hawley takes such names as Voronezh, Zaporozhe, Taganvog, Rzhev and Petrozovodski in his vocal stride, and it's now got so that he regards Gzhatski and Bryansk as cinches.

So, it's something like a holiday for him when his laryngeal acrobatics lead only to such names as Flagstaff and Boot Hill and Comstock on "Death Valley Days."

Thorough reading of three morning and three evening newspapers each day is part of Hawley's preparation for his news broadcasts. It helps him shift his throat gears from guttural Gzhatski to nasal Nogales without clashing. He checks unusual pronunciations—we'd say all the Russian ones were—with the dictionary and is double checked by C. B. S.'s expert on such things.

IT HAD, TOM--!
THE NEW GALVIN HOUSE
BUT I COULDN'T GIVE UP! ALL I HAD WAS SUNK IN IT--SO I BORROWED $5000 FROM THE GOVERNMENT--AN FHA LOAN--- REBUILT THE FOUNDATION--AND WE'RE OPEN FOR BUSINESS!
AND HOW IS BUSINESS?
A BIT SLOW--I DID GET THIS LETTER YESTERDAY---BUT I'M SURE IT'S A JOKE! DO YOU THINK IT MEANS ANYTHING?
WOW! IF THIS IS ON THE LEVEL--AND I BELIEVE IT IS-- IT MEANS YOUR FRONT LAWN IS A SOLID MASS OF FOUR-LEAF CLOVERS! THAT'S ALL!

NIGHT AFTER NIGHT AND STILL MICKEY CAN'T GET BUD HALE IN A PROPOSING MOOD.
WELL—THERE'S ONE WAY TO OVERCOME THAT—DO IT YOURSELF!
GUESS I'LL HAVE TO—HE'S AS SHY AS AN ADOLESCENT!
HELLO! BUSY??
OH—HELLO BUD! COME IN!
HELLO!
LOOK—I'VE GOT AN IDEA—SEE WHAT YOU THINK ABOUT IT—(SIGH) I HAVE IDEAS, TOO—BUT WHAT GOOD DOES IT DO ME?
GO AHEAD BUD! WHAT IS IT?
I WAS THINKIN'—— WOULDN'T IT BE SWELL IF MICKEY AND I GOT MARRIED! JUST OCCURRED TO ME AS A GOOD IDEA AND—

Mental Hazards

Army Life May Upset Personality

When a young fellow with a couple of college degrees is put into the Army and given orders by a sergeant with a third-grade education, some sort of complex may set in with the college fellow going "haywire," a meeting of Washington social workers was told here yesterday.

When other young men leave their very relaxed lives to undergo the routine and strict discipline of service life all the inhibitions of it may crack them up in personality. And probably headed for a distress of personality would be the young man who in the service fears too much that he may suffer bodily injury or death.

The social caste system can upset the personality of others.

Dr. Alexander Simon, senior medical officer, St. Elizabeths Hospital, and other speakers at the October meeting of the health division, Council of Social Agencies, yesterday described such maladjustments and urged that their possibility be spotted before men are inducted into the service. One means suggested was the use of social workers trained in psychiatrical investigation who could report the backgrounds of applicants to the draft board examiners.

Not Enough Workers

Dr. Harry Stack Sullivan, consulting psychiatrist for the National Selective Service, said, however, that there aren't enough of these workers available to help the approximately 6000 boards.

He supposed, on the basis of present information, that after the whole story is told, about 25 per cent of all those registered will have been found to possess some mental disability. Interest at the national headquarters has become "intense" over the situation, he said.

Dr. Alexander Simon, who has studied the backgrounds of "samplings" of service mental cases, said the families of the applicants often won't help the examing physicians because they want the applicants to get into the service. This is in belief that the service life will prove beneficial. Social workers, he believed, could have brought in objective data in such cases.

But sometimes the parents cooperate, as in one instance of a father who told the board his son couldn't even find his way to the place of examination. This put the examiners on guard.

But generally, he said, the psycopathic will lie. When asked how many times he has been arrested he will say "never." When asked if he has ever been committed to an institution he will make a convincing denial. He will say he never has been in jail. Whether or not he ever showed antisocial trends is hard to find out. "Data should be had beforehand," said Dr. Simon.

Red Tape a Problem

It is difficult to uncover a man's personality within limits of a short examination and the number of psychiatrists is limited, he said. The applicant can't be seen over an extended period of time because of the lack of examiners.

Then, when once in the service and the man begins to show symptoms, the problem of what to do with him arises, said Dr. Simon. He has to be told of his condition and some of them straightaway realize what they're being told and that something must be done. Then red tape is confronted and it takes months to move the man through the proper channels. Besides, Dr. Simon pointed out, proper facilities have to be found to take care of him.

Persons of mental deficiency were not regarded as entirely useless to national defense by Dr. Sullivan. They can be used in industry in routine, repetious tasks and be very happy about it, he said. But in the Army even the rifle has become complicated and the efficiency of the Army depends now more than even on the individual man! "Hurry the public's education of the situation," he told the council's committee. The older age groups are more succeptible to the mental difficulties because of the "extreme and mounting insecurities," he said.

300 Attend Session

Dr. Paul J. Ewerhardt, chairman of the council's mental health committee, said, "It must not be supposed that the psychiatric problem is limited to frank, obvious mental illness requiring hospitalization. The numbers not hospitalized cannot be computed . . . So-called nervous illness, not to be confused with mental illness, exists on a scale which cannot even be envisioned. . . . If all the hospital patients in the United States were under one roof, the occupant of every other bed would be a mentally ill or mentally handicapped person."

George St. John Perrott, chairman of the council's health division, presided. About 300 council members attended the meeting in the Y. W. C. A. including Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, wife of the Chief Justice of the United States.

Holds Strategic Ridge in Maneuvers In South Carolina

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Correspondent

Jefferson, S. C., Oct. 20.—The second Army Corps tonight, after a man-killing march of almost 50 miles by foot and motor, held secure a strategic ridge between the Lynches and Catawba Rivers, from which it was expected the hardened First Corps would drive it only with difficulty. From the fog which inevitably surrounds battle, even mimic battle such as this in the pine thickets and cotton patches of South Carolina, the fact stood out that the Second Corps had made a march of tremendous proportions.

This morning it started out from its base camp at 4:30, the Twenty-Ninth Division on the south or left flank, its own left on the Pee Dee River; the Forty-fourth Division in the center and the Twenty-eighth on the right. The corps objective was the high ground on which it stood tonight.

Three hours before the Second was permitted to leave its jump-off line, the First Corps started filtering across two bridges over the Catawba, given this start because of the bottleneck through which it must feed. The Eighth Triangular Division swept across at Great Falls, the Ninth Triangular at Fort Lawn, both turning northeastward after crossing.

Used to Ways of War

As soon as the two triangular divisions cleared their bridgeheads, the Thirtieth moved over, swinging southward. This division, the only square division in First Corps, is made up of former National Guard units from North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Georgia, its men born to the ways of war and steeped in its smoky traditions.

Tonight it lay across from the Twenty-ninth, whose Virginia Brigade, the Eighty-eighth, faced it along the whole division front, the Fifty-eighth, dismembered and scattered, lying behind.

Grandsons of the men who marched and fought in the Army of Northern Virginia under Pickett, Ewell and Jackson waited for dawn to bring them against the rifles of men whose grandfathers fought in the same tattered army with Kershaw, Cobb and D. H. Hill.

Smarting under the loss of its commanding general (Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord was captured earlier), the Twenty-ninth already has made one effort to fetch him back. This afternoon, on the heels of a report that Gen. Reckord was being held in Mount Croghan, S. C., the destroyer battery of the division antitank battalion, under Lieut. Col. Tom Shryock made a lightning raid on that place.

The antitankers swept into the town, found no resistance, but made a thorough search of the place anyway. Had Reckord been reported elsewhere, they would have gone after him there.

Today's movement was led in speed and penetration by the Forty-fourth Division in the center, which marched from Wadesboro, N. C., 40 miles to the westward in a little more than four hours and by 9 a.m. had its patrols battering against those of the Eighth Division in the outskirts of Lancaster, S. C. The Twenty-eighth, on the north flank, at the same hour had thrust its patrols forward to Monroe, N. C., where they tangled in the streets of that town with cavalry attached to the Ninth Division. During the day the Twenty-ninth moved its command post three times.

The battle is expected to develop fully tomorrow, with all weapons of 1941 warfare thrown in on both sides.

Girls Try for Civic Theater Roles

Nine Million Pounds of Food Daily a Major Army Problem

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Oct. 20.—The Army is using every means of modern communication from rolling kitchens to planes and radio to keep the stomachs of 1,600,000 men full.

The job of feeding an Army scattered from Panama to the Arctic Circle and from Iceland to Guam is one to stagger the imagination, Maj. C. F. Kearney, of the Army Quartermaster Corps, told the opening meeting of the American Dietetic Association convention today.

The Quartermaster Corps must think in terms of trainloads and shiploads of meat, potatoes, flour, butter, starch, fruits and vegetables and must buy by the ton instead of by the pound while providing a balanced died for every soldier. The Army consumes 9,000,000 pounds of food every day.

In addition, Maj. Kearney declared, it was hard to develop a peak of efficiency in supply, preparation and delivery never seen before in warfare because present tactics call for fast mechanized attacks which sometimes cover 200 or more miles in a single day and food must be delivered as quickly as ammunition and gasoline.

Army nutritionists attempt to deliver three hot meals a day to every soldier and when this is not possible under simulated or actual wartime conditions hot breakfast and supper delivered under cover of darkness from field kitchens are furnished and cold emergency rations are provided for the midday meal.

To accomplish this the Army has developed gasoline-burning ranges which can be tossed into a truck, fastened down and put to work. Cooks and bakers then go into action as the trucks speed along to keep up with the tanks, armored cars and "jeeps" in an attack.

To move food from the farm to the front line the Army has built up a system of 29 marketing centers throughout the country to provide for immediate needs and also to build up reserve supplies in the event of an emergency. All are connected by teletype or radio to avoid competitive bidding between supply officers and to coordinate shipments of supplies to camps nearest the source.

Airplanes are rapidly coming into service as the life line of troops operating far afield, he added. On one recent maneuver Army bombers dropped thousands of pounds of supplies by parachute to a platoon of cavalry operating in terrain too rough for an airplane landing. The supplies included four dozen eggs, only two of which were cracked.

Rep. Mundt to Address America First Group

Representative Karl E. Mundt (Republican), of South Carolina, member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, will address a meeting sponsored by the America First Committee tonight at 8:30 o'clock in the Friends Meeting House, 2111 Florida Avenue Northwest, local secretary Miss Isabel French announced yesterday.

Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, wife of the Senator from Missouri, who has just returned from a speaking tour in the Middle West, will preside.

Stronger Armored Force Called Only Tank Defense

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—Maj. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of the United States Army's armored force, said today that "there appears to be no defense against armored formations except by more numerous and stronger like formations."

For this reason, he told the American Society of Metals at its opening session, the American armored force is "striving hard to be prepared to use our tanks and other armored vehicles as the spearhead of attack should the immediate need of our Army arise."

"For our 5 armored divisions and 15 separate tank battalions," he said, "we have a large percentage of our authorized tanks on hand. There is an ample number for all training purposes.

"If an urgent situation required us to use all tanks produced in the United States, the production would, in a very short time, fill all units to authorized strength."

General Devers did not reveal actual figures.

As the metals society opened its convention, announcement was made of the development of a tool to toughen up the vital pins holding together the endless track on which an army combat tank rolls—long regarded as the Achilles heel of all tanks.

Should one pin give way, the revolving track breaks, putting the tank out of action.

The new tool, an electrical induction surface hardening unit, produces pins with greater resistance to wear and to the normal shock of combat during an attack. It was developed by the Ohio Crankshaft company of Cleveland.

An announcement said that 11-inch tank track pins can now be surfaced hardened in 15 seconds with the new tool whereas the older methods required at least 36 hours. Induction hardening turns out 225 large pins hourly or 416 small ones.

The metal congress, contionuing until Friday, will take the form of a huge defense conference with representatives of many leading munidown with Government officials to discuss ways of speeding the defense program.

Tank production problems, ways and means of increasing aircraft output, speeding up the manufacture of shells, development of new materials to ease the strain on metals not available in sufficient quantities for present needs are all topics for consideration during the week.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.
